

What to do for POISON

By a Physician.

Potemine poisoning comes from eating tainted food, usually fish or meat. It manifests itself in vomiting, purging, fever, headache, pain in the abdomen and sometimes by an eruption of the skin in the form of blotches or irregular shape.

Give the patient two tablespoonfuls of castor oil or upon salt. If these are immediately thrown up, give a grain of calomel every hour till five grains have been administered, then at the end of another hour give a Sieditz powder or a tablespoonful of Rochelle salts.

Give the patient no food at all except under the advice of a physician.

THE HEN.

The hen preaches her annual sermon round the world.

John Bunyan counted seven or eight distinct calls of the mother hen—all natural and appropriate. On the shoulder of the hill where the city comes in sight, desecrated the stubborn stupidity of the people; he came to warn, to gather, to save, "thy ye would not."

I mark the patience, the reserve, the wisdom, the progression of the infinite One. His teaching was parabolic, prophetic, introductory, preparatory. I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot receive them now.

I mark his condemnation and his mastery. He bore with the people and bore with their doom; it was not that their doom was coming, but he saw the gate closed. "Now are they hid from mine eyes." Jerusalem was not destroyed till fifty or sixty years after he spoke, but their door of opportunity was already closed.

He saw the wide fabric topple to its fall, and yet he did not begin to denounce the fact until he had laid the foundation and beheld His unchanging purpose.

Only with His little finger did He touch the edifice. He upset a few tables of the money changers, opened the cage doors, and let out the doves, made a sound of small coins; these were but the childish symbols of His power. On the shewbread and the caution. He moves slowly, as men count slowest. He saves their mind and degrading sports. He walked in the slave market and saw the bleeding feet and broken hearts, but he was not fond of the subject of slavery.

At the while he was conscious that he carried the fire that would burn. He held the hurricane that would overturn. He saw Jerusalem plowed with the plow of destruction—yet one stone left on another.

Behold the magnificence of His reserve, the discipline of stillness, holding to the tattered clouds of rain.

At the close of His short life the Romans had not been driven out; the slave had not been restored; the sheep had not been gathered; the harvest had not been reaped. The harvest had not been reaped; the sheep had not been gathered; the slave had not been restored; the Romans had not been driven out.

Isn't it nice? There is a prayer, for when he is found asleep. And the evidence of summer rumbles forth in a mighty clatter, and a sleepy voice says, "Well!"

Who now below implies if he has rays stamps to sell.

There is probably more than a thousand in the making power here, but in any other line. Most of it contains large quantities of rain. To avoid the use of this dangerous and so that all ingredients are plainly stated in English on the package of an A. I. is an efficiency.

ARMAMENTS AND TAXES. The armaments and taxes are a heavy burden on the people, and the government should take steps to reduce them.
