Learn why PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand

PURITY FLOUR is unlike any other brand of flour. No two milling companies follow exactly the same process of milling. In fact, no two different brands of flour in the world are exactly alike in quality.

And here is another fact worth knowing. Purity Flour contains both high-grade and low-grade portions. The process of milling PURITY flour costs more than to mill ordinary flour. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded. PURITY is an ALL-HIGH-GRADE, hard wheat flour. It has greater strength, greater absorption and greater expansion. It is a thirstier, more elastic flour. It drinks more water and expands into more loaves. Use PURITY FLOUR for your next batch of bread. Count the loaves. You'll find you have made "MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD" from PURITY than when you've used an equal weight of weaker and cheaper flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

IMAGINE, if you can, how much whiter, and more toothsome, and more nutritious, the bread made from such a HIGH-GRADE flour must be.

And can you imagine yourself enjoying the flaky pie-crust and the light, delicate cake?—your reward for using PURITY FLOUR. When making pastry, please remember to add more shortening than required with ordinary flour—for on account of its extra strength, PURITY FLOUR requires more shortening for best pastry-results. Yes, PURITY FLOUR costs slightly more than ordinary flour. But use it once and you'll say it's worth more—much more—the difference. Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now.

The Bright Side Out.

The sun may have its troubles, but it has the bright side out. The lark may have its doubts, but she hides away her doubt; she waits for the sun to shine, and the lark for ever singing. Man has joys from birds and plants, also they "keep the bright side out."

The orchard pink with blossoms, clearly points the bright side out. The lilac has no trouble. That they ever grieve about, and the world is prone to treasure the remembrance of pleasure in the name of him who ever tries to "keep the bright side out."

The Hurt of Jealousy.

"You look tired, Bob. What happened at the bank today?"
"A rash day. Everybody coming to cut coupons and take out jewels before going to Europe."
"Nothing more interesting than that?"
Robert Hayward, supt. of the deposit vaults of the Second National, did not seem to hear Mildred Lorne's question. He stared out of the window addressed lost in reverie. This was most unusual. So unusual that, watching her distraught caller, Miss Lorne's fine face and clear-cut, strong features were bathed in a flood of indignation.

"You ask me to be nice to you—I try to be so, by talking of what will interest you, your work, and you don't even hear me."
"I beg your pardon, dear. I might suggest that there are other topics of greater interest to men after a hard business day."
"As for instance?"
Again Mildred Lorne was conscious of a detachment of interest by this man, who had been her waiting slave for—how many years? She could not remember when it began, when it had not begun. Had she not heard him try to explain to a catechising mother why he had plucked a green apple from his yard while she looked over the fence of hers, an explanation that consisted chiefly of "No, she didn't ask me to pick it exactly, but she looked as though she wished I would"—and that was interrupted by what Miss Lorne, listening in a tearful silence, decided was unmistakably the splash of a whip. A fend she had not suspected lived in her placid bosom.

The pink in her cheeks faded and crimson banners flung their signal instead.
"Robert Hayward, you are thinking of a woman—and it is not me," Robert Hayward's gaze came back from the rose garden and fixed itself upon her. She had never noticed how cold those blue-grey eyes could be, nor how shrewd their glance. They looked at, through, beyond her, and behind this there was nothing. There was silence, save for the strange beating of her heart. This sense of suffocation nearly overpowered her. She walked to the window. She tried to calm herself, but failed.
"Isn't it—true, Bob?"
"Yes, Mildred."
While Robert's eyes left her pleading ones and searched the room, each second's hesitation was a stab in her heart. She struggled a sob in her throat and whispered:
"Tell me about it, Bob, dear. I am sure it was not your fault, but her's."
The young man's lip twitched. With an effort he controlled his emotion.
"I met her first eight years ago."
"Oh, Bob!" the words were like a moon.
"She came to the bank. She was a soft, gentle, unassuming little creature. I always thought of her as my little lady in gray."
Mildred's cheeks flushed, and her eyes burned. She had been described once or twice as militant.
"She engaged a lock box, paid for it and wrote her address, handing it to me with a shy little smile. Mildred, from that moment I could not help it."
"Bob! The commonplace man-payable, had become a cry of an

Are You as Well as a Year Ago?

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS POINT THE WAY TO HEALTH AND STRENGTH.
Ask yourself the important question whether you are as strong as you were a year ago, as bodily fit as you should be. Many a reader has to confess "No." Some weakening ailment has during the past year laid hold of the system, unfitting you for the duties of life and seriously clouding the outlook of the coming days. It may be rheumatism with its sharp twinges of pain, indigestion, headache, nervousness, depression and lack of energy, or the pains and aches which only common folk know. It is well to know that all these weakened conditions arise from an impoverished disorder of the blood. Renew and enrich your blood and all your troubles will cease. This is a strong statement, but it is made on the testimony of thousands who once suffered, but who have gained health and strength by the aid of the new, rich blood supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We can quote thousands of cases similar to the following: Mr. Jos. Gradmaison is a young man well known in the town of St. Jerome, Que. He says: "For a couple of years I began to find my strength failing, but did not dream that the trouble was serious. As I grew weaker I began to doctor, but it did not help me. The least exertion made my heart palpitate violently, my stomach seemed out of order and my whole system became so run down that I was finally forced to quit work. I had now been doctoring for almost six months and was very naturally growing discouraged. At this juncture I read of a case similar to mine, cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. I took the Pills faithfully for about two months, gradually growing stronger and at the end of that time I was as well as any man could be. I shall always praise the medicine that raised me from despair to the blessing of good health."
Sold by medicine dealers everywhere or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It is estimated that for an annuity alone, the cost of a big sea battle would work out at well over $5,000,000 an hour.

Have you considered that Profit earning was a point to be considered in buying Life Insurance? Have you considered that profits were derived from INTEREST EARNING SAVING IN MORTALITY ECONOMY IN MANAGEMENT? If you have considered also that in interest earning The Excelsior Life Insurance Co. has always been in the fore front, second to but one Company in Canada in 1910.

What Causes Fires. Foreign insurance experts, when they pay a visit to Canada and the United States, are amazed at the number of fires that annually occur on this side of the Atlantic and the amount of damage done, which to them, appears astonishingly large. The fire losses in America are due, in a great measure, to "rank carelessness," while in common opinion property loss is caused by an organized band of incendiaries who, for retaining, let set fire to buildings to permit the owners to collect insurance.

Men of Maritime Canada. The victory of the Conservative Party in Canada and the elevation of Mr. R. L. Borden to the Premiership of the greatest British Dominion adds another name to the long list of eminent men whom the Maritime Provinces have produced. Mr. Borden is a Nova Scotian, born at Grand Pre and comes from the vigorous and cultured stock of the Empire Loyalists who, forsaking their homes and property in the States, emigrated to what was then the Northern wilderness, rather than desert their King and Father. The majority of Nova Scotians do not, of course, claim their descent from the Loyalists; their ancestors emigrated direct from Scotland; but they come of a stock at once vigorous and enlightened. In New Brunswick descendants of the same Loyalists are to be found, and, owing to the comparatively small immigration of foreigners into these provinces, the natives have preserved to a remarkable degree the courage, energy and enlightenment of their progenitors. It does not inter that because their forefathers were loyal they were necessarily enlightened; but the very fact of forsaking their homes and worldly effects, and journeying into the wilderness, rather than yield up their nationality, is proof of a certain nobility, enterprise and hardihood of nature.

Water does not weigh alike. For instance, a gallon of distilled water weighs ten pounds; of sea water, ten and three quarter pounds; of Dead Sea water, twelve pounds. Eight and a half of salt go to every hundred pounds of Dead Sea water, and two pounds to ordinary sea water.

What Would You Do? In case of a burn or scald what would you do to relieve the pain? Such injuries are liable to occur in any family and everyone should be prepared for them. Chamberlain's Salve applied on a soft cloth will relieve the pain almost instantly, and unless the injury is a very severe one, will cause the parts to heal without leaving a scar. the head of affairs. During a recent tour, covering a very important portion of the Dominion and parts of the United States, I saw evidence of this fact at every turn. It mattered not whether it was in politics, religion, law, banking, finance, manufacturing, or farming, Maritime Canadians were always at the top of the tree. I was so much impressed with this fact that on returning to Ottawa, from a trans-continental trip, I mentioned this impression to the Hon. W. S. Fielding, himself, by the way, a Nova Scotian. Mr. Fielding laughingly reminded me that in his early days they were taught that the two things requisite for the success of a Nova Scotian were oatmeal and the Catechism. He agreed with me that there was something in this whimsical theory, because while the oatmeal built up a sturdy frame, fitted for the rigors of life, a little Catechism, no doubt, laid the ground work of a conscientious mind. But, seriously, we will not attribute the good qualities of Nova Scotians to these causes, because there are people upon whom one might waste a whole mountain of oatmeal and a whole library full of nothing but Catechisms, and yet not raise such specimens of humanity as one finds in the Western Provinces of Canada. No; I rather attribute their sterling qualities to the law of heredity; and because they have not been swamped with an alien influx, the stock instead of deteriorating from the original standard, has ripened under the excellent educational systems prevailing in these gallant little provinces.

A visit to the Dominion House of Commons will convince one of what I say. In the late Parliament for instance, such men as the Hon. W. S. Fielding (Minister of Finance), Sir Frederick Borden (Minister of Militia), Mr. E. M. McDonald and Mr. R. L. Borden (leader of the Opposition and now Prime Minister elect), were Maritime men. Then there is that grand veteran, Sir Charles Tupper, who was born in Nova Scotia. But I am not going to attempt to enumerate all the prominent men who have come out of the East—like the wise men always did. I suppose that the successful bankers, manufacturers, financiers, ministers, doctors, and lawyers who claim Maritime Canada as their birthplace would fill many columns. At home, here in London, we have—mention only two—Sir Wm. Aitken, M. P., born at Chatham, N. B., and Mr. F. Williams Taylor, one of the ablest of our present-day bankers, who was born at Moncton, also in New Brunswick.

If there is a fault to find with the men of the Maritime Provinces, it is their unconquerable roving spirit. They have some of the best territory in the British Empire on the Atlantic seaboard of Canada, and yet the sons of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and "The Island" will always wander into far parts. To use an Irishman it is a pity Nova Scotians and New Brunswickers cannot be born somewhere else. If they could, I am quite certain they would very soon be found emigrating to Maritime Canada. As
