The Appetite

May be increased, the Digestive organs strengthened, and the bowels regulated, by taking Ayer's Pills. These Pills are purely vegetable in their composition. They contain neither calomel nor any other dangerous drug, and may be taken with perfect safety by persons of all ages.

I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation. I had no appetite, became greatly debilitated, and was constantly afflicted with Headache and Dizziness. I consulted our family doctor, who prescribed for me, at various times, various purgatives, but with no permanent relief. I finally commenced taking Ayer's Pills. In a short time my digestion and appetite was improved. My bowels were regulated, and by the time I finished two boxes of these Pills my tendency to headachae had disappeared, and I became strong and well. I am in perfect health. WHO IS MY NEIGHBOR?

"Oh, what a lovely bunch of pansies! Is it possible they are for me?" I exclaimed to a tiny, brown-eyed girl, who placed the fragrant bouquet of the gold and purple blooms in my hammock while I was idly swinging under the big maple.

"Aunt Lee sent them," said the wee child, "and she hopes the mountain air will soon make you well, and she's your neighbor down under the hill."

"Who is this neighborly Aunt Lee?" I asked the woman with whom I boarded when next she came within hearing of my voice.

"Oh, then she's sent ye some posies," remarked talkative Mrs. Evans, coming briskly from the garden and sitting down on the steps of the little porch so that she might entertain me while she was shelling peas, "thus killin' two birds with one stone," as she said. "I was a wonderin' how long 'twould be afore she'd find out about ye an' send ye suthin'."

"I can't see for my part how she can afford to do as she does."

"Why, what does she do?" I asked.

"Oh, she says she aims to be neighborly, and if anybody happens to be sick anywhere around she sends 'em little things to eat, an' flowers to cheer 'em up, as she says, and she always has her knitting work in her pocket, and her odd job of knittin' as she calls it, grows 'bout like magic into gloves and mittens and wristlets and stockin' that she gives away."

"To her friends, people fully able to buy them I suppose?"

"Oh, dear no. To poor children, and to old men and women, that I suppose are real needy, an' that set great store by her warm an' handsome presents, for her yarns are as bright as her flowers; an' I've told my man a good many times that the color went half towards making her little gifts so welcome. An' then she has so much company."

"Rich people from the city whose visits she returns?"

"Oh, land sakes, no; poor folks, who are tickled to death to get an invitation to her pleasant little home. Yes, her home is an amazing pleasant one, though her man is a very poor mechanic. She is always a sayin' that she rather does a little good every day as she goes along, than to be awatin' to dew some great thing when she gets able, and then prap lose her opportunity and never do nothin'."

"I told her one day last year, says I, 'Miss Lee, says I, I should rather put a little suthin' in the bank for a rainy day, than to be givin' away all the time, and says she, 'Mrs. Evans,' says she, 'that's your way; I can't find no fault with it, but all the little things that I give away would never get into the bank, an' so you see they'd be lost, an' I should pass away without ever doin' anything for my Master. An' I don't want to go to bed at night without thinkin' that I have that they tried to lighten some of her mortal burden; brought a smile to some face, a streak of sunshine to some heart. It's only givin' a bunch of posies in the right spirit.'"

"And these flowers cost her a great deal, first and last, I suppose," said I, caressing my paws.

"Oh, 'twould cost me a good deal to run such a flower garden as she does; but Mrs. Lee says she's strong, so she gets fresh air, sunbaths, and exercise in her garden and spends her time workin' in there instead of visitin'."

"She returns all her calls by sending her compliments with a bunch of posies."

"She hires some one to carry them about I presume."

"Massey, no. There isn't a child in the village but would run its legs off for Aunt Lee," and having finished shelling her mess of peas, my talkative little hostess trotted about her work again saying as she disappeared through the doorway, "It's well enough to be neighborly, of course, but Miss Lee may see the time when she'd wish she had a little of somethin' out at interest."

"The Vermont mountain air agreed with me, my health gradually improving, and I stayed on week after week, spending a great part of my time, when the weather did not positively forbid it, in my hammock under the maple. As yet I had not once seen my neighbor, Aunt Lee, but grew to love her on account of her pretty nosegays that daily found their way from her hand to mine by one and another child messenger."

"One night in August there was a heavy thunder shower. The sudden downfall of rain swelled the little river that skirted our village, to a veritable mountain torrent. A mill-dam some miles up the stream had broken away and the angry flood came rushing down sweeping all before it."

"Aunt Lee's husband's shop has gone," shouted my hostess, Mrs. Evans, as she knocked at
