Sambo Won't Work.

NEW YORK, May 18.—One of the Herald's correspondent's, writing from General Kilpatrick's cavalry camp, near Lexington, N. C., says that the planters of the surrounding country are greatly troubled regarding an anticipated scarcity of hands to perform the necessary agricultural labor, and design visiting the North to procure laborers. They say that the negroes, now that they are free, are unreliable, and that the poor whites of the State are too lazy to work. The dissolution of the rebel armies threw loose upon North Carolina, as well as other States, thousands of disorderly characters, who roam through the country plundering from friends and foes indiscriminately, and causing a reign of terror and anarchy. This condition of things has been to a great extent terminated by the judicious distribution at various points through the State of detachments of national troops.

GEN. SHERMAN.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Times says Gen. Sherman's conduct recently has been "extraordinary":—"Painful stories of discourteous conduct on the part of Gen. Sherman to a brother officer at Richmond are in circulation here, and are founded on fact. When Gen. Sherman arrived at Petersburg from Raleigh, via City Point, Gen. Halleck sent word to him that he had secured a resident in Richmond for his (Sherman's) use, as long as his headquarters should be in the city, and tendering him the hospitalities and civilities due to his position. Gen. Sherman replied curtly, declining the proffered courtesy, and adding that he could not recognize Gen. Halleck. The latter replied in a friendly tone, and expressed the hope that Gen. Sherman would not consider a friendship of twenty year's standing severed, because he (Halleck) had been compelled to officially perform an unpleasant duty, and expressing a hope that he might have the pleasure of reviewing Gen. Sherman's troops on their passage through Richmond. To this Gen. Sherman replied in substance that he could not recognize Gen. Halleck, and that his corps commanders were instructed that if they found him in their march through Richmond in a position to review the troops they must change the direction of their march and avoid him. The committee on the conduct of the war, it may be added, sent a message to Gen. Sherman, asking in view of their early adjournment, that he proceed from Richmond to Washington by boat, and appear before the committee at an early day. He declined peremptorily, and proceeded to march onward with the troops."

CIDER DRINK EXTRAORDINARY.—A writer in Onece a Week is responsible for the following statement:—"It may be thought an exaggeratio', but I have known a Somershire labourer drink 16 quarts of cider in a day. I asked this man what he would do if he were to become rich. He replied, 'I'd sit and drink zider all day, and when I could na'zit, I'd lie.'

HARD FEELING.—There is much bitter feeling among the soldiers who had been detailed as clerks in the War Department on account of physical disability, and now dismissed, while civilians are retained.

'Ike,' said Mrs. Partington, 'how do they find out the distance between the earth and sun?' 'Oh,' said the young hopeful, 'they calculate a quarter of the distance, and then multiply by four.'

AN AFFAIR OF HONOR.—Two young men, of Grass Valley, Cal., became jealous of each other about a girl, and resolved to fight it out. The time and place were fixed and the rivals (C. Hall and Oscar Warnock), together with about twenty of their friends, including the seconds, were on hand to witness the terrible combat which would put an end to one or both of said young men. Three shots were exchanged with nobody hurt on either side, when the duel ended by a shaking of hands on the part of the duelists. It seems that only cork bullets, covered with tin foil, were used. One of the parties was let into the secret, but the other supposing he was firing real bullets and receiving the same in return. He was of course greatly agitated, while the other was quite cool. The story does not state which of them is to get the girl.

☞ On the evening of the 3rd inst., a great sensation was created in Liverpool, England, on the receipt of a telegram from Queenstown announcing that Wilkes Booth had arrived there on the "Edinburgh," and was captured. Great satisfaction was expressed. It afterward turned out to be false. The man arrested was a passenger named O'Neill, who bears a resemblance to Booth. He was of course liberated.

The New York World after quoting the arguments which are used in favour of trying civilians by military Courts, draws the following sad picture of the state of the administration of justice in the States:

Yet these are the very best arguments which have ever been adduced by anybody to shield the lawless, arbitary, revolutinary proceeding of Secretary Stanton and his underlings during the last three years of war. Peace has come, but bad, disloyal, lawless man at the head of the War Department does not lay down his tools. Still he seizes photographs not his own; taps news still off the telegraph wires; still he lightly esteems the laws of the land, and disregards them or wantonly tramples them under foot; still he strives to keep his muzzels on the press; still he rings his little bell and locks up in the national forts whomsoever he pleases, for the commanders of departments truckle still; daily some poor wretch is buried from these prisons in a nameless grave; and hourly the cry of hundreds of innocent men and woman, and boys and girls, imprisoned by Stanton's orders, for no one knows what crime—imprisoned and forgotten—ascends to heaven for the mercy and release which never come. The assassins of President Lincoln, who should be sent to the gallows by the justice and the judgement of the sentence of Law, out of the merest respect to the dignity and honor of the nation which has suffered so keenly by their atrocious crime, will be huddled to the rope by platoons, with every contrivance which this Stanton can devise to make justice look like injustice, and the avenging of a national crime seem the resentment of a chef of police.
