The Judge Talks on Divorce.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

Can you imagine anyone better qualified to talk on the causes of divorce than a judge who has tried hundreds of cases? I cannot. And that is why I feel I have something of unusual interest to offer you to-day. Among my letter friends, I am proud to say, is such a judge, and for your benefit and mine he has at down some of the conclusions which have crystallized in his mind during many years of experience in hearing and weighing both sides of matrimonial tangles.

"You wished for some of my conclusions as to the divorce problem. I have tried hundreds of cases and I answer to similar inquiries I have given solution to offer. Each case is different. There are no generalizations possible, it seems to me. One cannot point to any similar series of cases or omissions for a considerable number of cases and say, 'Here is the cause.' There have been nearly as many causes as cases before me.

Common Sense Badly Needed. "Yet, after all, perhaps one conclusion as to the divorce problem. It is that if common sense were used by both parties to the contract, there would be fewer cases of divorce.

"I used to think this common sense could be exercised in the choice of mate, that is, before marriage. I believe in that, but misingating is nearly so bad as lack of common sense, want of tact and judgment after marriage.

Dangers of Ill-Advised Joking. "Lately in several divorce cases I have had my attention strongly drawn to the ill effects of a perverted sense of humor. Two cases last week showed the evil results of the parties' attempts at joking or jesting on delicate subjects. In each case what one says was a mere joke later becomes the source of deep suspicion. Alleged jokes about attentions to or from persons of the opposite sex may be tolerated sometimes, but when there arises the least trouble the aggrieved partner reflects upon those supposed jokes and begins to suspect they were more in earnest than in jest, especially if the least jealousy is aroused. In the cases last week the parties, especially the husbands, had said too much about intending to pay attentions to another woman, about liking such others or seeking such or regarding it easy to replace the spouse they had, etc. Religion and the sanctity of the marriage relation are unsafe subjects on which to jest.

How Accumulated Little Things Cause Divorce.

The divorce problem is one of the greatest questions we have with us to-day. And so long as human nature remains human, we shall have it by laws. Anyone who is in a position (like the above contributor) to have helpful ideas on the subject is cordially invited to send them along.

WALT MASON

In summer time the girl wore furs which must have been distressing, and much discomfort then was hers, or I am badly guessing. I well remember Susan Jane wrapped up in seal and ermine, when everything upon the plain in silencing heat was squirming. And yet she uttered no complaint, most martyrlike of creatures, although the heat dissolved her paint till it ran down her features. Some brand new fad in winter wear she'll spring, we well may trust her; when blizzards frolic she will wear a fan and linen duster. We'll see her in the howling storm, a simple dyet round her, and she will say she is quite warm, when snow and hailstones pound her. Girls would commit, in Fashion's name, all crimes, clear up to treason; at her decree the modern dame abandons sense and reason. (And here the hausfrau says to me, "The men are just as silly; they'll go as far, at Style's decree, as any blooming filly. The rat you wear gives me the blues, your shirt has gaudy primping, you're always wearing pointed shoes, although they keep you limping. Your linen collar saws your ears, your pin has plate glass in it; you'd better quit this handing fairs to women every minute.")

If Britain Fails, Canada Fails.

Canada hardly heard of Napoleon yet Canada would be one of the first vassals of a new tyrant in Berlin. Britain is fighting for her Empire and her internal prestige. Canada is fighting for her existence, her democratic institutions, the right of her people to govern themselves in their own way. Montreal Star.

Two seamen for desertion were ordered to go back to their ship or take 30 days' imprisonment.
Two drunks were discharged.
Three young men were summoned for refusing to support their mother. The defendants gave a promise to support the complainant.

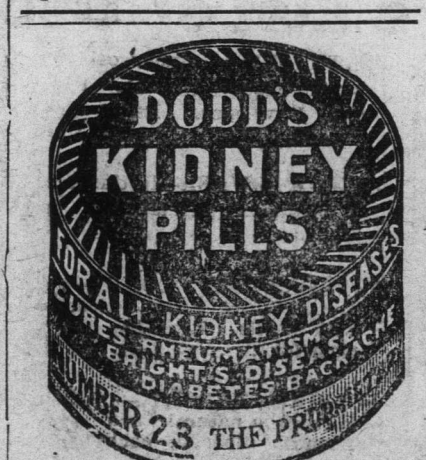

"LOOKED THE PART."

Men must look right and be right to command success. Clear eyes, clear skin and clear brain mean money to the man who possesses them. Dull eyes, sluggish brain and a pimply, blotchy skin are a serious handicap. O'Mara's Hypophosphites will remove pimples and blotches, brighten the eye and increase vital power by giving you pure blood and good circulation. Price $1.00.
We recommend it because we know what it contains.

Moltkeism vs Mahanism

The English press will not be slow to pick up the statements now coming from Berlin that with the operations in the Balkans, the war becomes a test of Moltkeism against Mahanism, of land power against sea power. London will take this as an admission of failure by Germany with regard to at least one object, which at one time was held out as the great object towards which Germany strove—the freedom of the seas—New York Evening Post.

B. I. S. Lecture.

Mr. C. J. Fox, B.L., lectured to a large gathering at the B. I. S. Club Rooms last night, taking as his subject: "A Trip Through France." For over an hour Mr. Fox entertained his audience with an interesting description of his visit to Paris, Lourdes and other important points in the great Republic, describing the national characteristics of the country and the characteristics of its people. The address was both interesting and instructive and at the close a vote of thanks proposed by Mr. P. K. Devine and seconded by Mr. J. G. Higgins, B.L., was accorded the lecturer. On Thursday night next Mr. J. G. Higgins will, by request repeat his lecture on "Daniel O'Connell as a Lawyer."
