

200,000 PEOPLE PERISHED

The Greatest Tragedy That Has Ever Befallen the Christian World.

A despatch from Rome says: The measure of the greatest tragedy which has ever befallen the Christian world cannot yet be calculated. It is known in general terms that out of a population of 1,750,000 in the devastated area of Italy at least 125,000 perished. This makes no account of dozens of towns near the centre of the disaster of which there is only good reason to fear there are no survivors to describe their fate. The destruction of property cannot be as great as at San Francisco, for Messina and Reggio, the two principal cities destroyed, were not rich or magnificent from a metropolitan point of view. As a great calamity of nature, however, this disaster is on a far greater scale than the California phenomenon. The whole face of the country and the coast line have been altered. Even Scylla and Charybdis have changed the position they occupied since Aeneas' legendary voyage.

REFUGEES AT NAPLES.

A despatch from Naples says: Time only confirms the unspeakable horrors of the overpowering catastrophe in southern Italy, for earth and sea ruthlessly claimed thousands of human beings, and the flames mercilessly completed the unfinished devastation. Naples, vibrant with the memory of Vesuvius, is prostrated anew by the misery and woe from Messina confided to her care. The hospitals, hotels and homes are crowded with refugees, and the people are vying with one another in aiding the stricken.

CENTRE OF VOLCANIC ZONE.

Those who have expert knowledge on the subject agree that the centre of the cataclysm was the Strait of Messina, which also is the centre of the volcanic zone, the highest peak of which, Mount Aetna, is now silent. From this base, the telluric disturbance extended, abating little by little, northerly as far as Cape Vaticano and southerly as far as the Bay of Catania, ravaging the eastern region of Calabria and the eastern coast of Sicily to a distance of nearly 100 miles. It is impossible to accurately ascertain the extent of the movement east and west in the inland regions, but it is certain that the beauty of one of the most charming sections of Italy has been made irretrievably despoiled.

Vineyards are no more; waving rows of lemon, orange and olive trees have been torn up and the enchanting coastline, with its soft and fragrant foliage, has been converted into a hideous desert. Reggio, whose gay aspect set off the severity of the mountains, and Balmi, perched jauntily amid orange and olive trees, have become mere blots.

OVERRUN WITH FUGITIVES

Catania, the largest city nearest to the scene of the disaster, is crowded with refugees, and the continuous stream of fugitives coming, the sight of the wounded and repetition of real and imaginary earth shocks, has so alarmed the population that they are becoming uncontrollable. There is no longer place there where the refugees may find shelter. Cardinal Franchina Nava di Bontie, Archbishop of Catania, has employed all the money in his possession to provide bread for the fugitives, but the people of Catania, also, are in great need, as the ordinary business pursuits have been entirely interrupted.

FATE OF FOREIGNERS.

The government is floundering in its uncertainty as to the fate of many foreigners who were in the earthquake zone at the time of the catastrophe, enquiries concerning whom are coming from all parts of the globe. The commander of the battleship Makharoff, which arrived with fugitives at Naples on Wednesday, confirms the report of the death of the American consul at Messina, Arthur S. Cheney, and his wife, who were buried in the ruins of the consulate. The number of Americans in Sicily and southern Italy is believed to be small, and several of them are reported to have been staying at Taormina, which is on the east coast, about 20 miles southwest of Messina. According to the latest reports, this place suffered no harm from the earthquake.

WORSE THAN WAR.

The minister of war, in despatching orders to the military authorities who have practically taken over the absolute power throughout the zone of the earthquake, explained:

"This disaster has resulted in a greater loss of life than any of our wars for independence. Indeed, the situation is much worse, as while war always is preceded by a period of preparation, this happened within 40 seconds. While war only affects the young and strong among the people, this present calamity has mowed down women and children, old men and youths."

UNIVERSAL SYMPATHY.

All the sovereigns and the heads of states of the foreign governments have sent expressions of warmest sympathy and deepest condolence. France's message was especially warm, and she is despatching five warships from Toulon to Messina, which is hailed as a token of love from a sister race. The minister of marine on Wednesday night received word that the steamships Taormina and Campania, with 45,000 deeds and a large supply of provisions aboard, had left Genoa bound for Messina. Other steamers also bountifully stocked are on their way to the stricken cities from various ports. The despatches from the stricken zone say that a large army would be required to cope with even the pressing needs of the unfortunate people, who are roaming about half clad and starving, some of them dragging articles of clothing from the smouldering ruins to protect themselves from the piercing winds. Terrible suffering is inevitable before the much-needed relief can arrive.

SCENES AT NAPLES.

A despatch from London says: William Maxwell, the well-known correspondent of the London Daily Mail, who was ordered from the Balkans to the devastated districts of Italy, arrived at Naples, whence he telegraphs as follows:—"Naples is like a city receiving her dead and wounded after a great battle. The approaches to the quays are crowded with sympathetic spectators, many of whom come laden with bread and wine as offerings to the victims as they arrive."

"Motor cars, ambulances and stretchers hurry through the streets escorted by soldiers. As they pass one catches glimpses of the agonized faces of men, women and children on whom are the wounds and terror of the awful catastrophe."

"Churches, schools and hospitals fail to meet the demands for accommodation, and private houses are opened to receive the sufferers. Funeral processions with all the sumptuous ritual of the Roman Catholic Church show that many have reached Naples only to die. Three thousand injured have already arrived, and two ships are now discharging their cargoes of pain."

NEW SHOCKS ALARM PEOPLE.
A despatch from Rome says: There were slight shocks felt in the earthquake zone on Friday, completing the ruin of the crumbling buildings. These shocks are contributing to the keeping up of the alarm of the population. One quite severe shock was felt at 3 o'clock in the morning and another at 9. Fires are still burning, although investigations on both sides of the straits make it certain that many more than half the population of the coast towns and villages have been killed. Professor Riccio, director of the observatory at Mount Etna, estimates that the victims of the earthquake exceed 200,000.

Hundreds of dangerous criminals have been arrested and are under close guard.

A despatch from Rome says: The correspondent of the Corriere d'Italia, now at Messina, has succeeded in sending via Naples a graphic description of the pathetic sights seen on the streets there. Four carabinieri, with a handcuffed man, whom they had evidently arrested during the night, were all killed while returning to their barracks. A peasant and two oxen were smashed into a shapeless heap. High up in the window of a house, only one wall of which was standing, was a boy hanging head down, being held by the legs by a fallen rafter. Sitting on a doorstep was a lady cuddling a headless baby, calling it endearing names and kissing it. Her face was red with the child's blood. Four Russian sailors strove to persuade her to allow them to bury the child and convey her to one of the ships, but she indignantly refused, saying she would not be parted from her only child, all that was left to her in the wide world. Her husband, an officer, had been killed, she said, but she insisted that the child was alive. The sailors persisted in their requests, whereupon the mother insisted they leave her. The sailors were so affected that they wept.

SUICIDE AT OTTAWA.

Mr. Hilmer Shoots Himself Near Golf Grounds.

A despatch from Ottawa says: K. A. I. Hilmer, a draughtsman in the City Engineer's department, committed suicide on Saturday afternoon by shooting himself with a revolver near the grounds of the Ottawa Golf Club. He had not been at his office for several days, but no reason is given for his ending his life. He was about forty years of age and leaves a wife and two children.

BOR EDOWN AND SEE.

French Scientist Suggests Drilling to Earth's Centre.

A despatch from Paris says: M. Camille Flammarion, the famous astronomer, who attributes the disaster in Italy to volcanic action, suggests again as he did forty years ago that an attempt be made to find out with certainty the internal composition of the terrestrial globe. The only means of doing this would be to bore a gigantic well several kilometres deep. Such a work would not be beyond the power of present day engineering. This well would be a source of inexhaustible heat for humanity. "If the various Governments would agree to direct toward this object all the soldiers of Europe, each employed in accordance with his special trade or occupation, they would win a victory superior to all past and future wars of extermination by bringing to light the mystery which is hidden beneath our surface, and as while this work was being executed the habit of fighting would be lost, humanity would have gained by it a double process, both scientific and social."

BEHEADED HIS MOTHER.

Horrible Crime of a Demented New York Man.

A despatch from New York says: In a fit of insanity on Wednesday, Arthur Trotter killed his aged mother, Mrs. Ann Trotter, by beheading her with an axe and a knife in her apartment on West Eighteenth street. Trotter jumped from a second story window as the police broke in the door, but was found outside practically uninjured and then did not resist arrest. He declared that the end of the world was coming, and that he had been divinely inspired to commit the crime. Trotter is said to have quarrelled frequently with his mother, who was a woman of seventy years and of reputed means, and only on Tuesday, the police say, he finished a six months' term for beating her.

DEATHS BY VIOLENCE.

Montreal's Sorrowful Record for Last Year.

A despatch from Montreal says: Montreal's morgue statistics for 1908 form rather a gruesome record. In all, 850 violent deaths or deaths under suspicious circumstances occurred. Of these twenty-three died from foul play and ten by Italian atrocities. There were twenty-nine suicides, nineteen from gas inhalation; seventy-nine were drowned in the St. Lawrence, fifty were killed on the railways, twenty-two by the street railway; fifteen by explosions, ten of which were due to the Ile Perrot accident. There were 218 sudden deaths recorded, fifty-seven were burned and six scalded to death. One fireman was killed on duty.

THE OKLAHOMA STYLE.

Robbers Built Barbed Wire Fence About Bank.

A despatch from Muskogee, Okla., says: Five robbers dynamited the bank at Wellston, Okla., early on Wednesday and escaped with $5,000. The robbers erected a barbed wire barricade around the bank, and with some members of the gang went to work on the bank safe others stood guard. The pickets for two hours kept the townspeople at bay while their confederates worked on the vault, and when finally the robbers succeeded in getting the money it contained the five men rode off, covering their departure with a heavy fire. No one was injured.

ALABAMA A DRY STATE.

Prohibition Becomes Effective With New Year.

A despatch from Mobile, Ala., says: With the passing of the midnight hour on Thursday night prohibition became effective throughout Alabama. A number of social clubs have been opened and chartered for these places will now be in great demand. In these clubs drinks will be dispensed to "members only." Before the doors of the saloons were closed on Thursday night whiskey and beer were given away in large quantities, and during the day drinks of all kinds were sold at nominal prices.

FIREMEN'S MANY RISKS.

Four Were Nearly Asphyxiated at Vancouver.

A despatch from Vancouver, B. C., says: The Smith Company's furniture store on Granville street caught fire on Saturday night. J. Degraives, Robert Souden, Frank Gurney and Captain Mitchell, firemen, were overcome by smoke and narrowly escaped asphyxiation. Gurney and Souden are in the hospital. Captain Duncan fell down an elevator shaft, but was able to walk home. The fire was confined to the basement and first floor.

INDIAN TRAINING.

How the Mother Teaches the Child Nasal Breathing.

The Indian believes absolutely in nasal breathing. "Again and again," writes Mr. George Wharton James in "What the White Race May Learn from the Indian," "have I seen the Indian mother, as soon as the child was born, watch it to see if it breathed properly. If not, she would at once pinch the child's lips together, and keep them pinched until the breath was taken in and exhaled easily and naturally through the nostrils. If this did not answer, she would take a strip of buckskin, and tie it as a bandage below the chin and over the crown of the head, forcing the jaws together; and then, with another bandage of buckskin, she covered the lips of the little one. Thus the habit of nasal breathing was formed immediately the child saw the light, and it knew no other method."

"But not only do the Indians breathe through the nose; they are also experts in the art of deep breathing. When I first began to visit the Hopis, in northern Arizona, I was awakened every morning in the ' wee wee' hours," as I slept in my blankets in the open at the foot of the mesa upon which the towns are located, by cow-bells, as if a number of cows were being driven out to pasture. But in the daytime I could see no cows nor any evidence of their existence. When I asked where they were, my question brought forth nothing but a wonderful stare.

"Cows? They had no cows. What did I mean? Then I explained about the bells, and as I explained, a merry laugh burst upon my ears."

"Cows? Those are not cows. To-morrow morning, when you hear them, you jump up and watch. I did so, and to my amazement I saw, fleeing through the early morning dusk, a score of naked youths, on each one of whom a cow-bell was dangling from a rope or strap round his waist. Later I learned that every young man was required to run ten, fifteen, twenty miles, and even double this distance, upon certain allotted mornings. This develops a lung capacity that is nothing short of marvelous."

WANDERING IN THE WILDS.

Hardships Endured by Aged Mexican Woman and Child.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: Wandering about in the wilds of the north, among the haunts of innumerable timber wolves, Margaret Romaro, a Mexican woman, old and frail, together with her daughter, a child of thirteen, have been found by Indians in a starving condition, almost frozen and desperate from hunger. The place where the two were found was at Calling Lake, seventy-five miles west of Athabasca Landing. The pitiful story came to the immigration offices of Mr. J. Bruce Walker on Wednesday. The place is uninhabited, and only wolves and big game abound in the bush and swamps, which in winter are buried in mountains of snow. Evidently the victims have endured unknown hardships for a long time. Both have been driven from Canada into the United States, and from the States into Canada again.

O'BRIEN MINE SOLD.

Report That English Company Has Paid $8,000,000.

A despatch from Montreal says: It is stated that the O'Brien mine has been sold to an English company for $8,000,000. The report is made by several men who have just arrived in the city from Cobalt.

$4,900 FOR A SERMON.

The most costly bit of preaching in the world was delivered on Whit-Sunday in Elberfeld, a town in Rhenish Prussia, on the River Wupper. The preacher received for a sermon lasting about half an hour, a sum of $4,900. The origin of this custom dates back to the year 1660, when a wealthy French baron named Favard died and bequeathed a legacy to the Protestant church in that town, on the understanding that every year a clergyman selected from among those holding the present livings in the diocese should preach a short sermon extolling the good deeds of the deceased baron.

MUSICAL FISH.

Lake Batticaloa, Ceylon, has the probably unique distinction of being the home of musical fish. The sounds emitted by these are said to be as sweet and melodious as those which can be produced by a series of Aeolian harps. Crossing the lake in a boat one can plainly distinguish the pleasant sounds. If an oar is dipped in the water the melody becomes louder and more distinct.

HANDING OUT JUSTICE

QUEER SENTENCES IMPOSED BY THE BENCH.

Freakish Punishments are Sometimes Decried by the Presiding Magistrate.

"To make the punishment fit the crime," as Gilbert wrote, should be the ambition of all those in whose hands rests the administration of justice.

Law, unfortunately, interferes sadly with the desires of just-minded people, but now and then one hears of an individual with sufficient good sense or strength of mind to decree a fit and appropriate punishment.
