Rheumatic Pains

Rheumatic Pains
Require no description, since, with rare exception, all at some time have experienced their twinges. Rheumatism is not easily dislodged, only the most powerfully penetrating remedies reach to its very foundations. The most successful treatment known, and it is now frequently resorted to by medical men, is the application of that now famous remedy for pain—Polson's Nerviline. It is safe to say that nothing yet discovered has afforded equal satisfaction to the suffering. A trial can be made at a small cost, as sample bottles of Nerviline can be had at the drug stores for 1c cents, large bottles 25 cents.

Inspector Seath's Reply to the Recent Action of the Board of Education -He Does Not Want It Reorganized.

The Board of Education, at its last meeting adopted the report of No. 1 Committee, which contained a somewhat strong allusion to the opinions of the inspector of collegiate institutes and high schools, Mr. J. Seath. They referred to his desire to have the institute reorganized on a classical basis, and expressed the opinion that the London Board and the parents of the pupils were better able to judge of the require-ments of the institution in the matter of ments of the institution in the matter of commercial education than was the in-spector. The following letter, which en-closed an extract from the ADVERTISER'S report of the Board of Education meeting, is self-explanatory and will be found of in-terest:

To the Beputy M nister of Education:

When Perry tore himself fro detaining arms, she did not busy herself in preparations frow, but sat reflecting upon th fate that had led her directly to fher childhood as the daughthe man who had practically death of both her parents. Again the man who had practically death of both her parents. Agai she had always cherished a fe if not a desire for revenge, and riage he had become her father. And it was the unquiet spiri beloved parent which was supp through the haunted house.

How strange and inexplicable mysterious weaving together of present life. How complex the web of fate.

But as love is the maste woman who love as Annet soon cast aside these idle spec somber reflections, and gave wholly up to the rapturous she had regained—nay, never Perry's heart; and like the
