A HANDLESS HIGHWAYMAN.

Russian beggars are notorious vaga-bonds, and few countries can beat Russia in the productions of such specimens of humanity. But she surpassed herself a year or two ago when Oberlov, the armless footpad, scared the inhabitants of the town of Borovsk, near Moscow, with his cap-rices. His method of working was to sit by the wayside asking for alms, and when by the wayside asking for alms, and when a charitably disposed person offered him a coin he butted him violently in the stomach with his head, incapacitating him, and then dragged him along by the teeth into the woods. There he killed his victim by beaching on his throat, ransacking his kneeling on his throat, ransacking his clothing and buried the corpsc in a disused

SLEEP FOR WOMEN.

A physician who is a specialist in nervou A physician who is a specialist in nervous diseases says that women should sleep at leastnine hours at night, and one hour in the daytime, says a writer in the New England Farmer. A woman will plead that she hasn't time to lie down for a few minutes in the daytime, and she will infringe upon the hours of the night, which should be given to sound, healthy, needed sleep, in order to finish some piece of work which could be well completed on the morrow. She will rush and hurry all daylong and then when the household is hushed morrow. THE CHINESE BIBLE.

THE CHINESE BIBLE.

The Chinese scriptures or ascred books were compiled and partly composed by Confucius himself. They were divided into five books, viz.: 1. The Yi-king, which treats wholly of cosmogony, 2. Shu-King, the acts and wise maxims of Yaoa, Shum and other Chinese kings and philosophers, who are now being held in great veneration. 3. Shi-King, which contains 311 sacred poems. 4. Ee-King, or "The Book of Rites," which is a repository of maxims and directions for everyday life of all sorts and conditions of people. 5. Chun Tsien, which is a history of the time of Confucius. These books, taken collectively, are usually referred to in lists of "Bibles of the World" as "The Five Kings." The word "king" in this connection simply, means "book."

THE STING OF A BEE.

The sting of a bee is composed of two spears of polished horn held in a sheath. One gets a notion of the sharpness of the weapon hy a very simple comparison. The edge of a very keen razor, when examined under a good microscope, appears as broad as the back of a thick knife, rough, uneven and full of notches. An exceedingly small and delicate needle similarly scrutinized resembles a rough bar from a smith's forge. The sting of a bee, viewed through the same instrument, shows a flawless polish, without the least blen.ish or inequality, ending in a point too fine to be discerned. In the act of stinging, the spears, each of which has nine barbs and is grooved with a channel for the passage of the poison, emerge from the sheath. One of them is plunged into the flesh of the victim, the other following, and alternately they penetrate deeper and deeper. The venom is forced to the ends of the spears by much the same process as that which carries the poison from the tooth-of a snake when it blues.

PROHIBITION VS. TARIFF. What tariff, high or low, would begin to enefit the American farmer like the exis benefit the American farmer like the existence about him of a community free from saloons and drunk 7ds, with every member eating his three full meals a day, possessing his two or more good suits of clothes and sleeping under his sheets and blankets made from the products of the farm? Drink burdens the farmer by increasing his taxes. Drink narrows his markets just in proportion to the poverty and number of the drinkers. Banish saloons and saloon legislators and you open to the farmer the flood-gates of prosperity.—[The Voice.

THE GREATEST SUFFERERS. The very persons who suffer most from rlous." That's the worst of the drink evil trious." That's the worst of the drink evil. The sober and industrious are the ones who must shoulder the economical burdens that drink imposes, for the drunkards can't shoulder them. It is the drunkard that breaks down the labor market, for he is ready to sell his labor below its market value. It is the drunkard that in four cases out of five defeats the efforts of organized labor to obtain justice. It is the saloon labor to obtain justice. It is the saloo labor to obtain justice. It is the salloth that blocks the pathway to industrial reform and the emancipation of the producers. There is drink in every case of poverty, directly or indirectly. It is not the only cause, but you can always count on it being a contributory cause.—[The Voice.

PROFIT AND LOSS.

One of the judges of the United States Supreme Coure, Justice Grier, has well and truly said: "If loss of revenue should accrue to the United States from a diminished conto the United States from a diminished consumption of ardent spirits, she would be the gainer of a thousandfold in health, wealth and happiness of the people." That is true, every word of it. While Canada's Finance Minister has been asking, "what about the revenue" of those who have been urging for prohibition, and while our present reyal commission is taking "evidence" on that point to submit to the consideration of Parliament, there are higher and nobler considerations involved that make the mere matter of dollars a very small importance indeed. The venerable Gladstone has well said that, "No considerations of mere revenue should ever stand in the way of a great moral reform."—(The Templar.

THE ONLY SAFETY.

THE ONLY SAFETY.

Some are still harping away about "What harm is there in taking a glass of heer now and then?" Of course a good many men who thus indulge cannot see any special wrong in it or they would not do it. Many of them are conscientious and honorable men—some of them ministers of the gospel. But, lock squarely at the facts of the case: Thousands who have thus commenced have been ruined, thousands more are being ruined now. There is no doubt whatever about these facts. Every one who thus indulges unnecessarily exposes himself to induiges unnecessarily exposes nimed to the danger that has ruined others. Any habit that is a source of danger to many and a source of ruin to many is surely a habit to entirely abstain from. No total abstainer ever became a drunkard. There issafety in total abstinence alone,—[Good Templar. dulges unnecessarily exposes himse Templar.

EQUALLY RESPONSIBLE.

The men who buy and drink liquors are just as much parties to the continuance of the liquor traffic as the men who make and sell it. The liue cannot be easily drawn anywhere in regard to the moral responsibility. The distiller and the brewer are just as deeply in the mire as the ordinary bar-keeper. The makers may raise their heads and be elevated by the electors alaw-makers for Canada, but why are they better or more to be preferred than the ordinary saloon-keeper? They all know that their business is devilish and destructive. If the brewer and distiller all the buyers and drinkers withhold their custom, the saloon-keeper must needs close. If the buyers and drinkers withhold their custom, the saloon-keeper would bankrupt. If either the drinker, the maker or the seller should go out of the business, the other must go out also. They all stand and falltogether.—[The Templar.

SAVE THE CHILDREN.

The sins of the fathers, in connection with liquor drinking, are visited on the children to the third and fourth generation to a greater extent than with most other sins. Recently, in England, about 50,000 children in connection with 105 schools were examined by competent physicians, and ever 30 per cent. of them were suffering from physical or mental effects, attributed mainly to the drinking habits of their parents. If all the children of all the schools of the country were examined, and a trutbful report furnished, what a terrible indictment it would make against a business sanctioned and protected by the laws of our nation! All these thousands and thousands of children must go through life impaired, and in many instances ruined, not because of any fault of their own. The loss to the whole country because of such defective citizens is tremendous. And yet SAVE THE CHILDREN. he Beverly police court's tariff.
