Says the Brantford Expositor: "There seems to have been no more reason 4.200 bushels mangels, 1,600 bushels for laying charges of personation against Messrs. O'Gorman and Cooper, of London, because they happen to have been in Brantford on the day of South Brant election day, than for preferring a similar charge against two ons of Lieut.-Col. Tisdale, who acted as scrutineers for Mr. Henry, or against Major Beattie, of London, who was also here. It does not by any means follow because strangers were in the riding that in all cases they were here for other than purely legitimate work."

The Year at the London Asylum for the Insane.

There is much that is interesting in Superintendent Bucke with regard to All are well cared for and kindly treatthe London asylum. At the date of ed by the officers, from the superinwere 1,014 patients in the asylum here -478 men and 536 women, cared for telligently treated than in Ontario.

The deaths were all from natural and unpreventable causes. In the matter of providing means for ameliorating the conditions of the insane, the London asylum occupies a very advanced position. Dr. Bucke has always been a strong believer in healthful occupation as a means for alding a cure, and his colleagues in other asylums have followed his example. Inspector Christie points out the advantages of this modern system. In 1882 the average percentage of days' work done by patients in proportion to the collective number in residence was 42.21 per cent. In 1895 the average was 69.83 per cent, showing a gain in thirteen years on the original average of 65 per cent. During the past year the average was
