

The Weekly British Colonist

Wednesday, January 19, 1899.

Immigration of labor is a subject which has been the subject of much discussion... The word 'Immigration' has been so often placed at the head of our columns...

of these hard-headed, honest, willing-hearted, and horny-handed Englishmen and their wives transferred from the overworked soil of the Old Country to the fertile and inviting lands of this magnificent country... As was stated in a previous article, the English mind is becoming more alive to duty in this matter...

THE CAPTAIN AND CREW SAVED.—The Captain and crew of the schooner 'The Captain' were saved after a long and dangerous voyage... The schooner was wrecked on the coast of the Sandwich Islands...

THE JAPANESE.—The Japanese are turning their attention to the 'social evil,' which is assuming vast proportions in that city, and working incalculable mischief among the foreigners... The authorities of Yokohama are turning their attention to the 'social evil,' which is assuming vast proportions in that city...

REMAINS OF THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY.—The remains of the Southern Confederacy were sold at auction... The Confederacy was a free country, and its people are entitled to the same rights as the people of any other country...

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.—The Canadian Pacific Railway is a great work of engineering... It will connect the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, and will be a great benefit to the people of the West...
