Thieves entered the house of Mr. David Anshel, 59 Mutual street, one night last week and stole some valuable silverware, a rubber coat and a pair of pants. The police yesterday arrested Joseph Bernas and Robert Wilson as the thieves, and returned the property of the owner. The thieves will be tried in the police court today.

A rumor which has gained credence in Toronto, to the effect that Col. Otter had run into the wind at a dinner party at the funeral of the late Private Wright of E company is baseless. The secretary and member of the company put the rumor to rest by stating that the dinner on Saturday night, and she decided on having the dinner in the house of the deceased.

Headed in yesterday's grave and several other graves in the cemetery. The graves were: "Human Hamburgs"; Some Sicilian; "Brown's Household Panacea"; has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back, Neck, Head, and any kind of a pain. It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heat, as its acting power is won, being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and doubtless the strength of any of our Lighter Elixirs or Lotions in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best Stomachic Pain Reliever of all kinds," and for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Miss Helen Dudley of Ellenville, N.Y., while walking through a field, carried an immense snake on her arm, and held it until her screams caused it to uncoil itself and crawl away.

Mr. Humphrey of Bergen Point was visiting near Ellenville, N.Y. He went to the Shawangunk Mountains one day, and while crossing a newspaper in the shade a snake quietly crawled upon her, and followed up the paper, and the first she knew of reptile appeared over the top of the paper, sticking out its forked tongue and hissing in her face. An eyewitness says that she dropped the paper.

While John Warner was cutting corn near Orwigsburg, Pa., he was horrified to see a large snake coiled about the body of his little child who was sitting on the grass. The child did not seem to be frightened, but patted the head of the snake as it lay in its lap. As Mr. Warner came up the snake was alarmed, and crawled away. It was pursued and killed, when it was found to measure over three feet in length. It was of a dark brown color, and had a head as broad as a man's hand.

The latest style of overcoating for the fall season has been napped. A large variety of the above can be seen at J. M. Maloney & Son's, merchant tailors, 88 Bay street. They have also on hand a complete new stock of colored worsteds, west of England trappings, &c.

THE METROPOLITAN SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THE 63rd ANNIVERSARY OF THE METROPOLITAN SUNDAY SCHOOL WAS CELEBRATED LAST EVENING BY A MEETING IN THE CHURCH. AFTER SINGING AND PRAYER.

Dr. Correll read a letter written by him on the subject of Sunday schools in 1818, the year in which the first Sunday school was established in Upper Canada, and gave some interesting personal reminiscences connected therewith.

Mr. Percy Mason read the annual report, which stated that 72 prizes were given to the two scholars in each class committing to memory the greatest number of verses. Improvements have been made in the library to the amount of $37 1/2, which now comprises 1432 volumes. There has been $1404 raised by the school during the year.

Rev. George Cochran then gave a description of his mission work in Japan. W. H. Howland followed with an interesting lecture on the Boat way to get on. Mayor Murray, in his address, narrating the events connected with the funeral of President Garfield in Cleveland last week. Rev. Samuel P. Rose then read an address on "The Vision of St. Winning," after which the meeting was brought to a close. There was a large audience present, the Sunday school children occupying the gallery, and the public the lower floor.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE WRIGHT. The funeral of George Wright, the victim of Friday's sad drowning accident, took place yesterday afternoon, from his late residence, 14 Emma street. About thirty members of A company, Queen's Own Rifles, to which the deceased belonged, marched as an escort in front of the hearse. The pallbearers were Privates C. J. M. Fairchild, J. J. Dixon, W. P. Higgins and J. J. Favours, the company, and Alfred Curran, Wm. Platt, A. M. Armstrong and George Woodcock, fellow-employees of the deceased. Dr. Potts performed the funeral service.

CANADIAN WHEAT AND FLOUR. The Messrs. Dunlop, prominent flour and produce dealers of Glasgow, Scotland, were in the city yesterday, making arrangements for extending their trade in Canadian flour. They say that Canadian wheat this year is remarkably free from any impurities or defect, and is in every way superior to any produced for many years past. In view of the rapid development of the Northwest, they expect Canadian wheat in a short time to entirely eclipse American wheat in European markets.

THE ASSIZES. Southworth v. McKinley was an action for alleged arrest. Southworth, who is a second-hand dealer, was negotiating for the purchase of a wagon from McKinley, and was taken away and refused to give it up. Southworth was arrested for trespass, and acquitted, hence the present action. The jury gave a verdict of $75 for plaintiff.

ARCHBISHOP LYNNCH INTERVIEWED.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF TORONTO STOPPED OVER AT DETROIT ON HIS WAY HOME FROM MANITOBA, AND A NEWS REPORTER TOOK ADVANTAGE OF THE OCCASION TO INTERVIEW HIM.

His grace told the reporter that he had started from Toronto August 27, and left a colony of five sisters at Prince Arthur's Landing, where the people, although very poor, had erected a fine brick convent for them. The chapel is attended by the Jesuit fathers from Fort William. At Winnipeg the archbishop preached at the dedication of a new convent. He mentioned a number of other places which he had visited during the past month, including Bishop Ireland's colonies at Graceville, De Graaf and Avoka, Minnesota, as well as Duluth, St. Paul, Chicago, and points in Iowa.

The archbishop said he was delighted with the progress which the Catholics are making in America. He found them everywhere, and he thought a great many Protestants would be surprised if they knew the number of Catholics around them. He thought that the Catholics in Minnesota and Iowa during the past few years had been something wonderful. At Dubuque he visited the great farms, and saw the fathers, who are great farmers, and own about 4000 acres of land.

In view of all these things the scribe asked what the pope would probably come to America.

No, replied the archbishop, laughing, you need not be alarmed at the pope's coming; he will never cross the ocean; at least not in our lifetime.

What about annexation? said the reporter. Is there any in Canada about joining the United States?

Not at all, replied his grace. The Catholic people in Canada have more church privileges and are more free than they are under your government, and they do not care to give them up. Under Canadian law they are not obliged to pay taxes for any schools except Catholic schools. There are various other reasons why the Catholics oppose joining the United States.

A ROMANCE OF THE DINNER HOUR.

(Written for The World by an Amateur.)

When I was a young man I had a very susceptible heart and an equally lively imagination, and these two qualities led me into many an affair de cour. So many were they, in fact, that the particular of most of them have escaped my memory, but one alone retained a vivid place in my recollection, partly from the fact that the young lady was a rather uncommon one, and partly from its peculiar ending.

My occupation was of a sedentary character, and, in consequence, in selecting my boarding-house I endeavored to get one quite a distance from my place of business, in order to have some enforced exercise.

In walking home to my dinner I met with many folks on the same errand, the same folks day after day. In time I became well acquainted with the faces of many of them; and one young lady in particular took my especial fancy. She was not a beauty, but she was generally pleasing and "taking" countenance and very pretty eyes.

We take notice of one another, first by a glance of the eye, then by a smile, and finally by a little nod of the head. But we never were on a speaking acquaintance; for although, as I said before, of a very susceptible nature, I was very set in my ideas of propriety, and it did not seem to me to be proper to address her without a proper introduction. Our intimacy, even up to the nodding point, had been of very slow growth. After some months I had become so well acquainted with her, that I was able to get an introduction to my unknown charmer, and was wondering by what means I should accomplish it, when one day she fell to my notice. The next day, and the next, and the next, she did not put in an appearance, and then I thought she must be ill; but when she came back she had clasped and she still did not resume her daily walk, I felt quite disconsolate. I made such inquiries as I could regarding her, but gained no information, and at last gave up in despair. She had more than an ordinary impression on my feelings, and I settled down to business with a rather melancholy air; so much so, that even my fellow-laborers wanted to know what was the matter with me.

About a year after the sudden disappearance of the young lady I was walking along one day at noon on the same street as of old when I saw the young lady, and she, and the smiling glance she gave that she had come out on purpose to exhibit to me, I did not know on Thursday evening.
