It appears that on Saturday the 3rd of August last, Mr. A. Simpson, plasterer, of Davisville, on his way home southward for Eglinton, stopped his wagon at the Davisville Hotel to procure some swill for his pigs, and while so engaged the four men, who were hangiag about the place, pulled two bottles of ale, which he was taking home, out of the wagon, and were carrying the "find" away, when a by stander warned them of the consequences and persuaded them to return them. They had scarcely done so when Simpson came out, and seeing the fellows standing there, took them in to drink with him. After the clinking of glasses and wishing of "good health" to each other, was over, Simpson went off again on business, and while his back was turned the bottles came out of their hiding place the second time and there being no bystander, never returned. A gallon jug of beer, which was in the wagon with the bottled ale, was also missing, and Simpson, thoroughly aroused by the discovery, gave the case into the hands of Chief Constable Lawrence. Hinds came up on the 8th of August, and was convicted.
