Under certain conditions the rubber tires insulate the machine partially. If wet they fail to do so. The electric current running over the damp surface. The handlebars again are apt to attract the fluid, and the flame is dangerous. The safest thing for one to do is to lay the machine down flat and stand some distance from it, taking the chance of getting a thorough soaking.

They are not aware of the danger to which they pay no heed. They suffer from bilious or nervous disorders, from indigestion, from colds, from rheumatism, from chills, flushings of heat, shortness of breath, blotches on the skin, loss of appetite, and a host of other ailments. In the stomach after meals, loss of sleep, lassitude, and a host of other ailments, are the advance symptoms of serious and fatal maladies.

Thousands of this nature are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores the lost appetite, gives the system a new vigor, and aids in the digestion process, the liver activity. It purifies the blood, and gives the system a new vigor. The elements of the food. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It makes the body strong and healthy. It is the great purifier of nerve tissues. Thousands have testified to its merits, and it is the only medicine from which you can expect to derive a profit if you afloat.

 Household Hints.
 When ink is spilled upon linen, try dipping the damaged material in pure melted
 wax. The hot matter seems to absorb the ink, and, after disappearing, the stain will be gone.
 When the fingers are stained in peeling
 soap, preparing green walnuts, or in similar, dip them in strong tea, rubbing
 well with a nail brush, and afterward
 them in warm water and the stains disappear.

panners and picknickers and the food for the vast of it. A common day's supply may be made good in a keep and it will be better cool and firm. Place the plate of butter and wash around it, wet in cold water, sprinkling water on the outside of the cloth as it becomes soiled. Milk will remain cool and sweet if kept in the same manner. It is not so hot nor water or any kind of water. If you have had liquid grains, do not put them. First, sprinkle buckwheat flour over the place and let it absorb grease, brush off the flour, and then fresh flour until all the grease is absorbed. A little cream rubbed into black kid will prevent the dye from coming off. If you have a lot of black kid, wash all young housekeepers bear in mind that the old and young in all things are indispensable in the management of a well-ordered household.

The Treatment of Sprains.

For the most part, the best remedies for a sprain are either hot or cold applications. As a rule, as possible after the injury place the hand, wrist, foot, ankle,—whichever is injured—in a vessel of water, keep it hot (this is best accomplished by adding boiling water from time to time, and emptying the vessel each time) and remove the part for several hours. A steady heat reduces the inflammation greatly, favors a more rapid cure. If injury is at the knee, it can be more effectively treated by the continual application of a hot wet cloth, and the knee bent. Have a new wet cloth ready to put on instant the other is withdrawn. This, the heat, must be kept up for two or three hours. After the heat apply a band not tight enough to bind, merely close firm enough to make gentle pressure.

Upon any consideration attempt to make the member until the swelling and pain has subsided, then begin gradually. First from the member to movement, then straightening it, and very gently lifting it. The joint is injured when far removed from a where hot water can be secured, cold treatment may be employed, and the after treatment conducted the same as when heat is used.

It is one of the most fallacious of practices attempt to economize by wearing old shoes about the house unless they possess all buttons, have straight heels and soles are daily brushed and aired, as are their fellows. Only in this way may the feet be continually braced into straightness and the toes allowed to move gently in the shoes. If the feet are not braced, the toes are thrown out of balance by worn down heels, the toes, attempting to retain a level position, perform prehensile feats which free use of sulphur the moment one has a cold prevents development. I heard of a case of diphtheria where children were made to eat sulphur every day they had a cold. A lump as big as a walnut every night when they go to bed is a sign if they are not well as you are. They ought to be. It won't hurt them, may save lots of trouble and suffering.

the most life giving and digestible food has been given to one just recovering from the cold. Take a pound of castor oil round of raw beef, cut off all the fat to two onions, pepper and salt. Chop the beef and meat together, turning them over and over. The onions are reduced to a pulp. Spread on slices of dry bread, and eat flowers. There is nothing which the nerves without bad results, like the use of them induces sleep, and strength is obtained from them. This ideal food for convalescents, or for who is in a weak state of health.

The use of flowers, such as rose leaves and petals, for making cosmetics is well known. Now the nuxtrigen is treated in a similar, and the products are received in the form of a powder, and its properties are said to possess valuable dietetic properties and are classed among the approved additions for salads and sand-to vary the menu.

A Martyr to Melons.

Melon crop was short this year, and sweet Georgia farmer who had practiced his art in his neighborhood had seriously from the deprivations of the hungry colored brethren. So he sat that he had poisoned his melons, the news went forth he ceased to eat.

After night an old negro who lived in fine melon patch had gazed at the sides with hungry eyes, but the thought of the poison kept him hungry still, conscious of it, however, his appetite fought him. He looked in the of the melons long and earnestly; auding a sack, he started off.
