

Expert Tea Blending

Have you ever tried to blend colors to match the shade of the red rose?
 Pretty difficult, yet an expert can do it easily.
 Why? Because he can tell by looking at the rose what colors are required to produce that tint or shade. He can make that precise color every day in the week.
 Just as the artist in colors blends the tints of the red rose, so my artists in tea blend the "rich fruity flavor" of Red Rose Tea.

With expert knowledge and intuitive skill he selects the particular picking of rich, strong Indian tea and the precise grade of fragrant, delicate Ceylon, and by skillful blending produces the peerless flavor of Red Rose Tea—a tea which for delicacy and strength is matched by no brand of Ceylon alone.

IS JACK OF ALL TRADES

Darius Chute, Inventor, Farmer, Poultry Raiser, Falls to Dig, Well, Makes Water Run up Hill.

(Published by request.)

Inventor, practical farmer and jack of all trades are the variety of names by which Darius Chute, resident of Worcester for the past twenty years is known. Mr. Chute is now making his home on the lake near side of Lake Quinsigamond, in a little house which he built with the labor of his hands and the honest sweat of his brow.

About eighteen years ago Mr. Chute became the possessor of a acre of land at the lake, and immediately began to clear it of the trees and underbrush with which it was overgrown. After clearing quite a space he started to build his home.

The foundation was strongly built of heavy weathered timber, and, instead of clapboards for the outside, sheet tin was used. Though the house is only thirty-six feet long and sixteen feet wide, it is very cosy inside, there being two rooms downstairs and two up.

When a reporter called on Mr. Chute a few days ago, he found him working in the garden at the rear of the house. He said he was very glad to meet a newspaper man once in a while and that he had always been a reader of the Telegram ever since he came to Worcester.

Mr. Chute then took the reporter over his property, showing him a great collection of Angora rabbits, of which he is very proud. On one side of the yard there is a large inclosure in which are kept a stock of 150 hens. There are also on the farm a number of ducks. The reporter was then introduced to the horse and the watchdog, Jack. After a peep at the rabbits and other domestic animals, Mr. Chute then invited the reporter into the house.

The main room, which is the living room as well as dining room for Mr. and Mrs. Chute, is the largest and coolest room in the house. Just off this room is a tiny kitchen with spotless floor and shining range. Mr. Chute is proud of his "little man" he calls it, and said that though it is not a palace it is home.

After leaving the house, Mr. Chute then told of the greatest inconvenience about the whole place. He has been trying for the past thirteen years or more to sink well near the house, but, on account of quicksand, he can get no further than forty feet. That there is quicksand in the spot where he started his work, he is sure, for, according to him, his register showed thirty feet. Mr. Chute's contrivance by which he could draw water from a well in a hollow nearly five rods away to within a few feet of the front door, though he has not had it patented, he is not afraid that anyone will steal his idea and make use of it, and he also claims to be one of the first men to make water run up hill.

Mr. Chute's invention consists of a trolley arrangement which runs from the house to the well. Uprights are set about a rod's distance from each other, and at the top of each post are fastened strong steel wires which lean from one post to another, forming a bridge across the well.

On the wire is the carrier. The carrier is a hollow wheel with a crank on each side with a pair of grooved wheels.

The pulleys are placed on four hooks attached to the beam and then the contrivance is pushed to the edge of the hollow, and when let go runs itself down the incline to the pump. It is then a matter of walking down the path and filling the pail. After the water is drawn and the pail is once more replaced on the hooks, Mr. Chute goes back to the first pair of uprights and turning a crank which is fastened to a drum, the carrier is brought back to the starting point, the pail remains on the hooks, work is done, Mr. Chute thinks the plan is a pretty good one, for it saves many a weary step and makes the back, doing away with the carrying of heavy water pails up a steep embankment.

Mr. Chute said that he intended to try and have his own well before this year passed, and thereby do away with his trolley road.

While walking about the house, the reporter, seeing a great number of wagons piled about, remarked to Mr. Chute, "Two-thirds" made its first appearance on the stage in Lit, the Johnny Jones." George H. Coban, the dramatist, says he first heard the expression in San Francisco several years ago. He does not know its origin. Another explanation is given when telegraphers try to tell some other operator to get off the wire number 23 when he was executed in the Tale of Two Cities; only 22 horses are permitted in a big race, and when another entry is offered the owner is informed that he is No. 23. —Vancover World.

Best Kidney Remedy Known To Science

For pain in the back—scanty urine—highly colored urine—irritated bladder—irregular bowels—bad stomach—there is nothing that will bring such quick relief and so certain a cure as FRUIT-A-LIVES.

These marvelous tablets are nature's natural remedy for irritated or weakened kidneys. They act directly on the kidneys—soothe the irritated membrane—clean, heal and strengthen the organs—and help them to new vigor with their work.

Often kidney trouble is not due to any organic defect in the kidneys. If the bowels are constipated—if the acids do not throw off the tissue waste of the body—then these impurities are carried to the kidneys. It is a vain endeavor to rid the system of impurities, the kidneys are overworked—the blood vessels are dilated—the nerves inflamed. That causes a host of kidney troubles.

Fruit-a-lives

not only cleans and strengthens the kidneys but they also increase the action of the skin, and act directly on the liver, thus curing the constipation.

FRUIT-A-LIVES are the natural and logical cure for all kidney troubles. They are pleasant to take and a guaranteed cure when faithfully used. —and a guaranteed cure when faithfully used. —and a guaranteed cure when faithfully used.

Medicine for Children

A medicine which keeps babies and children well, or restores them to health when they are ill, is a priceless boon to humanity. Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets cure all stomach and bowel troubles, soothe the pain of teething and give sound, healthy, refreshing sleep. And the mother has the guarantee of a competent analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of the poisonous opiates found in so-called soothing mixtures and most liquid medicines. The Tablets are equally good for the newborn baby or the delicate child. Mrs. Robert Currie, Loring, Ont., says:—"I have found Baby's Own Tablets a splendid medicine for curing constipation and other ills of little ones." You can get these tablets from any medicine dealer or by mail at 25c, a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SLANG EXPLODED

Correspondents have asked the meaning of "Skiddoo" and "23" which are coming into general use. The two words are considered synonyms. They mean "get out," "it's you to the woods," or in other words indicate that the person so addressed is not desired. "Skiddoo" was originated by an eastern vaudeville performer. "Two-thirds" made its first appearance on the stage in Lit, the Johnny Jones." George H. Coban, the dramatist, says he first heard the expression in San Francisco several years ago. He does not know its origin. Another explanation is given when telegraphers try to tell some other operator to get off the wire number 23 when he was executed in the Tale of Two Cities; only 22 horses are permitted in a big race, and when another entry is offered the owner is informed that he is No. 23. —Vancover World.

Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.
