

POW WOW, which will be issued monthly, will consist of from sixteen twenty pages to commence with, and will be illustrated. It will contain one serial story, three or four short stories by well known writers, a page or so of useful information, also a page devoted to puzzles, riddles, etc. The remaining pages will be contributed by the little readers themselves, who will be requested to send from time to time stories of interest, of their own composition. Three prizes will be given in connection with these, each month; one for the best true story, one for the best composition, and one for the best piece of poetry. All contributions must be more or less concerning animals. Each prize will amount to $2.50 or 10 shillings, and will be sent off as the stories are inserted in the Magazine.

The price of an Annual Subscription is one dollar or four shillings and six pence, post free.

The serial story called "Murphy of Alaska" is about a real dog, and he has gone through even more than you will read in these pages.

I shall be glad to answer any questions about animals that my little readers may wish to ask me. Simply cut out the coupon and enclose it with your letter, and I will tell you about feeding and caring for your pets, or give you any such information as you may wish. Always direct your letters to
