FAITH.

If I could feel my hand, dear Lord, in Thine,
And surely know
That I was walking in the light divine
Through weal or woe;

If I could hear Thy voice in accents sweet
But plainly say,
To guide my groping, wandering feet,
"This is the way."

I would so gladly walk therein, but now
I cannot see.
Oh, give me, Lord, the faith to humbly bow
And trust in Thee!

There is no faith in seeing. Were we led
Like children here,
And lifted over rock and river bed,
No care, no fear.

We should be useless in the busy throng,
Life's work undone;
Lord, make us brave and earnest, in faith strong,
Till heaven is won.
—Sarah K. Bolton in Congregationalist.

GIRLS WHO HAVE PUSH.

Says The Boston Journal:—"There is an interesting group of bright girls, at the New England Conservatory of Music, in Boston, who represent the quality of push characteristic of the American girl. There are some thirty-five of these girls, and they are being musically and vocally educated by The Ladies' Home Journal of Philadelphia. Some time ago this magazine offered, as a stimulus to girls to get subscriptions for it, free educations at the Conservatory. The American girl is quick to see a chance, and one by one these thirty-five girls have come from all parts of the country to Boston. They receive the very best the Conservatory affords, the most desirable rooms in the buildings are theirs, and they have all their wants carefully looked after by a wealthy periodical. Perhaps in no other country on the face of the globe could such a thing be possible. These girls, too, the reporter was told, belong to nice families, but they preferred to earn their own musical education rather than depend on the family purse. Of course, the particular girls are unknown to the scholars at large, and to all intents and purposes they are paying their own way. And they certainly are. It is said that the magazine is also educating a number of other girls at Wellesley, Smith and Vassar Colleges.

BOOK GOSSIP.

We have received the "Canadian Newspaper Directory," a new and useful hand-book which has just been issued by the Canadian press of A. McKim & Co., newspaper advertising agents, Montreal. In its get-up it is all that can be desired, being convenient as a book of reference, and the contents well arranged. An interesting feature of the work is a history of Canadian journalism, by E. B. Biggar, and the fac-simile of the Halifax Gazette, the first paper ever published in Canada, which was printed in Halifax in 1752, also possesses an unique attraction. The volume is not free from errors, but the compilers deserve credit for the book as it is. They should see that in future editions the paragraph about Halifax is corrected. Our "Narrows" are not nine miles long and four wide, and all the navies of the world could not float in them. Bedford Basin would come nearer these dimensions, but even it is not more than five miles in length. Our business manager has had glory thrust upon him in this directory, for he is designated as "editor and manager." This also would bear correction. The price of the work is $2.00, which is cheap considering that apart from the historical portion 30,000 separate facts are presented.

Worthington Co., 747 Broadway, New York, have just published as No. 12 in their Rose Library: "Some Children of Adam," by R. M. Manley. This is a well-developed story, easily winning and retaining the reader's attention to the end. It presents a picture of American life that is most captivating to the thoughtful reader. There is such an atmosphere of the reality over the uncommon happenings of the novel, the narrative shows such careful study and shrewd observation of metropolitan life, that those who will notice the types, distinct and interesting in their personality, will at once recognize the veracity of the representation. Thousands who wish to read the book with the expectation of being entertained will be fascinated by the magnetism of the story, the charm of its language, its intricate plot, its telling incidents, its strange coincidences, and its vigorous and at times thrilling actions, revealing the inner life, pleasures, intellectual pursuits, as well as the frivolities of the wealthier classes of New York. Price, cloth (illustrated,) $1; paper 50 cents.

Joel Chandler Harris's new book, "On the Plantation," is said to contain fresh stories of Brer Rabbit, Brer Owl, Brer Buzzard and other characters immortalized in "Uncle Remus." Much of the book, however, is understood to be the story of the author's own life, and it is described as a singularly fascinating narrative. E. W. Kemble has illustrated the book, which is to be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co.

The complete novel in Lippincott's Magazine for April, "But Men Must Work," is by the well-known and popular author, Rosa Nouchette Carey. In it the narrator, as visiting governess and presiding genius, digs her way into the family secret, and at last banishes the family skeleton. In the Athletic Series, Julian Hawthorne sounds the praises of walking, which he considers the only proper mode of locomotion, and C. Davis English expounds the mysteries of Four-in-Hand Driving. In the Journalist Series, Melville Phillips tells us that the Literary Editor is much less frequent than we commonly suppose, and gives some odd samples of his experiences,
