was the ease and elegance with which the students rendered these works into their own language. It was not a mere literal translation that they had learned; they had gone still further. They had mastered every difficulty, had seized upon the meaning and spirit of the original; had divested the ideas of the foreign garb in which divested the ideas of the foreign garb in which Michael J Phelan, New York. 1st Accessit, Thomas they were clothed, and knew well how to express O'Brien, East Boston; 2nd, William J Morrow, St them in the purest and most classical English.

The English compositions of the Rhetoric class were, I might almost say, perfect models. The purity and chasteness of the style, the beauty and originality of the thoughts, indicated in a manner not to be mistaken that the students had had successfully applied the rules of Rhetoric whilst writing, and had read with advantage the standard English works in poetry and prose, the study of which forms so large a part of their course. I may remark-and the remark holds good for all the classes—that the cultivation of the English language appeared to be an object of particular attention; and I found that the students had not acquired a knowlege of the Latin and Greek languages at the expense of their own.

The Philosophy class was last in the order of examination. It was interesting to mark the masterly manner in which the students handled the most difficult obstruse questions on Metaphysics. The lucidness and logical precision which characterized their statement of the subject, the force and propriety of the arguments which they adduced to sustain their own views, and the skill and fulness with which they refuted every objection framed by the examiners, left on the minds of all present an impression favorable alike to the students themselves and their talented professor. Nor was the impression weakened when we turned from Philosophy to Mathematics. Algebra, Zuclid's Elements, Trigonometry, Analytical Geometry, and the Differential Calculus were the principal branches reviewed.

On Thursday, the 30th ult., at 2 o'clock p.m., the Exhibition opened, His Lordship the Bishop of Kingston presided. Among those who were assembled in the Hall I noticed several clergygymen from the surrounding parishes. Mr. John F. Leonard, of Peterboro', a student of Philosophy, first came forward and delivere a discourse on the Middle Ages. He rapidly sketched the state of society during that period, touched lightly on feudalism, chivalry, savery and the crusades, and the beneficial influence which the Catholic Church had exercised on Literature, the Arts and Sciences. His style was neat, terse and eloquent. Then followed the distribution of prizes; and as this was concluded, Mr. D. Barry, of Rockwood, C.V., stepped forward to address the audience. He spoke on education; showed its importance, its advantages and its pleasures; dwelt for some time on the excellence of a classical education; and proved that it was necessary that education should be based on religion. His pleasing and graceful delivery gave an additional effect to the speech which was particularly remarkable for its ability, and the sweetness and beauty of the

His Lordship then briefly addressed the students. He congratulated them on the progress they had made; exhorted them to perseverence; and wished them all pleasure and happiness during their vacations. After a few more addresses had been delivered, it was announced that the Exhibition was ended, and I rose to depart with a feeling of gratitude to all those who are connected with the institution, but especially to the able Directors, for having expended their time and labor in endeavoring to raise up amongst us a college where parents might secure for their children a solid, secular and religious education. A SPECTATOR.

We have received from our friends in all parts of the country, reports of the proceedings at their several Colleges, and places of education, with a request for their insertion at the earliest opportunity. As it is physically impossible to insert all the communications that we have received upon our fourth and fifth pages, we have transferred some of them to our second page, as it is our desire to comply with the requests of our respected Correspondents.

Mr. George Brown has been elected tor South Oxford by acclamation. The people of the West are convinced that he has made no concessions to Lower Canada, and that he has well secured the interests of their Province.

We read in our exchanges apropos of Piedmontese politics :-"A party with the principles of Garibaldi is forming in the Italian Chambers.' Such a party, that is to say a body holding the principles of Garibaldi, has long existed, and is to be found in all the convict bulks, jails, and Penitentiaries of the civilised world. Nothing more probable, and more appropriate than that such a party should exist in the Parliament of the felon king, the first and most notorious thief in Europe.

1812. THE WAR, AND ITS MORAL-A CANA-DIAN CHRONICLE. By W. F. Coffin, Esq.

John Lovell, Montreal. A very handsome volume, with a full, and we believe accurate account of the last war, in which Canadians were called on to take a part, and in which the French population played a part so ances, intently reading a newspaper. His dishonorable and important ; their services deserved a better return than they have met, or seem likely to meet with. We hope that Mr. Coffia's book may have many readers, and that it will Respectfully differing with him, however, Davis inspire them to emulate the gallant deeds of their called assistance, secured the deserter, and pro-

Canada Medical Journal, and Monthly RECORD OF MEDICAL AND SURGICAL SCI-ENCE. Edited by G. E. Fenwick and F. W. Campbell, M.D., L.R.C.P.L. Dawson Brothers, Montreal.

This is the first number of a new medical journal which we hope will meet with the encouragement it well deserves. Though we are not competent to pass an opinion on its professional articles, that headed " The Cause of the Innocents," and which treats of the monstrous mortality of this City of Montreal, is a move in the right direction; and we hope will be followed up, until some great sanatory reform be undertaken. Of all the filthy and stinking cities in Europe, Asia, Africa or America, we have seen none so filthy, or with so abominable a stench of its own, as Montreal. A man cunning in stinks, might write a volume on the fetid odors of our good city. We have ourselves smelt. and clearly distinguished in the course of a walk through the City, as it were seven prismatic stinks, so that Montreal might be mapped out by its peculiar smells, as for instance-" Ammomacal District, Sulphuretted Hydrogen Ward," and so on. Not in Smyrna, not in Constantinople-not in the back slums of Lisbon have we ever seen such filth, or had our nostrils assailed with such villanously compounded stenches, as are to be met with in the course of a walk through parts of Montreal.

As a necessary consequence of this, and of our filthy undrained yards, loathsome diseases, pasty low fevers, small pox, scarlatina, &c., are our constant guests; and when we say that the average mortality is five per cent, as the test of weekly interments reveals, we have said enough to show how abominable must be the sanatory conditien of the commercial capital of British North America, and how urgently reform is called for. With proper precautions, attention to cleanliness, the exclusion of all stink producing trades from the city, and a good system of drainage. the bills of mortality might be reduced 50 per cent. Fully one-half of the deaths that occur are a wanton waste of life, the consequence of previous neglect-for certainly we do not in any manner hold the present Corporation responsible for the accumulated errors of years. However we again express our hopes that the Medical Journal will keep the matter before the public, until a remedy be applied and the annual slaughter of the inno-

LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW. April 1864. Dawson Brothers, Montreal.

The current number commences with a dissertation on the Prospects of the Confederacy, conceived in a hopeful, but not too sanguine spirit. The writer evidently inclines to the belief that, though in so doing they will have to suffer much, the Southerners will be able to through off the Yankee yoke. An interesting account of Pompeii, and the progress of the excavations there. comes next in order, and is followed by an elaborate treaties on Mexico. To this succeeds, perhaps, the most generally interesting article in the number, being a notice of that noble soldier. Napier. Great Britain never sent forth a more truly chivalrous spirit; and as a writer of vigorous English prose, and an accurate chronicler of the feats of the Peninsular War, Sir William Napier's is without a rival. A discussion as to the origin of Shakspeare's Sonnets, and the person to whom they were dedicated is lengthy, and perhaps learned, but is it not very entertaining. The "Foreign Policy of England" is severely denounced, as essentially cowardly - that is to say, in the words of the Reviewer, as " dashing, exacting, dauntless to the weak, and timid and cringing to the strong." The number concludes with a review of the late judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, and the probable effect of that judgment upon the fortunes of the Government Worshipping Department. The contents are good and varied.

MACKAT'S MONTREAL DIRECTORY-1864-65;-We have to return thanks for a copy of this very useful compilation, which every year manifests an improvement upon its predecessors. The index to the different Streets, Lanes, Avenues, &c., of the City must have caused much pains to the compiler, and will be found of immense service to the general public.

Owing to press of matter several important communications — including one from Mount Forest-unavoidably omitted. Shall appear in our next.

DESERTER CAUGHT .- Some few days ago, Edward Davis, the "lookout" man of the Military Train stationed at St. Johns, nabbed a private of his regiment who was endeavoring to effect his escape. The prisoner, Murphy, was formerly a pay sergeant in the Military Train now stationed at Montreal, but for some misdemeanor was recently reduced to the ranks. This humiliation, probably, influenced the rash step which will bring on him further severe punishment. Shaving off his heavy whiskers and moustache, donning a pair of formidable spectacles and exchanging his regimentals for the clothes of a civilian, he took pussage on a regular express train of the Montreal and Champlain Railway; and arrived at Johns unmolested. When discovered there, he was sitting composedly in the car, leaning slightly forward, his face partially shielded by his bat, and, to all appearguise was remarkably good. When accosted by Davis, he gently intimated that his interlocutor was mistaken in the person he was addressing. ceeded with him per next train to Montreal.

CANADIAN VICTIMS TO THE WAR. - A Young man named Robert Murphy went to the OF JOHN FLEMING, Blacksmith; who left Mont-United States from Prescott a couple of years since, and was drafted in the Federal army in St. Lawrence county last fall. Before he could prove the fact of his still being a British subject, he was put into a regiment and sent off to the seat of war. Intelligence has reached Prescott that he was shot through the head, and instantly killed, during one of the late engagements. A merchant of this city who once taught a school in Storrington, states that of four brothers who attended his school, three of them, having gone to the United States, have been killed in battle, and of two sons of a wealthy farmer in one of the united counties, one of them has left his bones to bleach on a Northern battlefield, and the other has recently returned home mained and crippled for life. These are but a few out of some thousands of instances of a similar character which may never become known. - Kingston News.

Another Canadian Victim of the War. -Mr. Ambrose Parrot, of this city, has just received a letter from Bermuda Hundred, stating that his son Thomas, who was in the Federal army, has been missing since the battle of Olustee. He is undoubtedly killed or taken prisoner, the writer of the letter being unable to ascertain which .- Hamilton Times.

THE WEATHER AND THE COOPS. - Last Sunday night, a heavy, but unhappily short thunder shower visited us, and helped in a certain degree to alleviate the miseries of the suffering crop. In Lanark, we are told, there did not fall a particle of rain, so that this good fortune is considerably curtailed of its advantageous results. Porth Courier.

The accounts of the growing crops have not been very flattering in Canada West. In many places the drouth had a very serious effect; but it is to be hoped the recent rains have done good. It is to be feared that the insect is making sad havoc among the wheat.

The Owen Sound Times says :- There seems but one opinion respecting agricultural prospects-that they are very gloomy. By referring to the state of the crops two years ago, a good idea can be had of their state at the present moment. Then there was no rain all the month of June; and spring frosts extended far into the month of May. The spring grain and hay, which under the influence of genial showers and warmth, might have largely recovered, were parched up by the drought, and yielded scarcely half a crop. It is the same this year; with this difference, that the spring frosts were later - extending into June. Hay, contrary to our opinion of a few weeks ago, has been budly injured by the fronts; and under the extremely dry and hot weather now provailing for some time, is nearly burnt up in some localities. On Thursday and Friday of last week, rain visited some small portions of the country, but was by no means general. About Arthur and that vicicinity it was quite abundant. To sum up the prospects of this part of the country in one sentencethere cannot, from present appearances, be more than half a crop, either of grain or hay; and even this much depends on the fall frosts keeping away long enough to let the late grain thoroughly mature.
