SOME business men want to sell out; others want to buy; some desire a business partner and others seek additional capital for the extension of their trade. One way to attain the desired end is to advertise in some paper that reaches the persons sought after. Such a paper is

The Monetary Times

This Journal has a larger constituency than any other Canadian publication. The rate, for this class of advertising, is ten cents per line each insertion. A space like this is worth $5.60 for one insertion, but ordinarily this is too large for a "Want" Notice. Fifteen lines is the regular size, which costs $1.50. Address,
