Commence is a business services firm providing a broad range of services from the incorporation stage to the handling of transactions. It arranges all bank documents and fund transfers, and administers the general affairs of the client's company, leaving the decision-making role to the principals/beneficiaries. Commence provides trade-related services. It handles all functions related to trade between Asia and the rest of the world.

Commence was founded in 1979 by two Harvard Business School classmates who were both involved in international tax planning as it relates to cross-border business activities. It is today a multi-services firm providing administrative services for companies belonging to the international businessman or high-networth individual. It sets-up international company structures in consultation with lawyers and accountants to fit the specific circumstances of each client.
