ANNEX E

MAJOR RESEARCH PROJECTS

APRIL 1991 - MARCH 1992

Arms Control and Disarmament

In-house

Karen Ballentine completed her research on the problems of conversion in the Soviet defence industry with the publication of a Background Paper on the subject.

George Lindsey completed a major study on "Modernization of Weapons and the Qualitative Problems of Arms Control," using ICBMs, SLBMs, combat aircraft, and tanks as case studies.

Jean-François Rioux continued as lead researcher on weapons proliferation issues. He organized the Institute's June 1991 international conference on supply-side controls, and has been editing the proceedings for publication as a book.

Commissioned

"The Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons," Albert Legault (Centre québécois de relations internationales), principal researcher.

Canadian Defence and Security Policy

In-house

Roger Hill completed his manuscript of an oral history of Canada's role in NATO. He also organized a workshop on defence economics at the Institute in June, and co-organized two workshops on "Satellite Surveillance and Canada" in September and November.

George Lindsey continued his project on "Space Surveillance: A Strategic Opportunity for Canada," surveying the use of surveillance satellites for Canadian defence and civil applications. He also co-organized two workshops and convened a panel of experts on the subject.
