

less than tools to establish what the "bottom-line" is, and are essential in any accountability regime aspiring to transparency and unambiguous results. This has been partly due to under-resourcing of delivery of the program. Now that there is a system of operating budgets, and with the experience gained so far, it is timely to draw up an evaluation framework for the next five year period, and to prepare for future program evaluations in line with Treasury Board evaluation policy and working standards.