

continue their endeavours to the close of the year by further liberal donations from His Excellency the Administrator of the Government and the Lord Bishop of Quebec. But they are now at the commencement of a second year so much reduced, that unless they are aided by the renewed liberality of the public, they cannot hope to pursue their labours with any effect.—The expense of providing materials of industry, of paying the salary of a matron, of furnishing clothing occasionally to those who are destitute, of supporting the schools which have been begun, and of providing as far as possible for the relief of the children of prisoners,—these and other objects of incidental expense, it will be seen by the subjoined statement, have exhausted the ordinary funds of the Association; but if they be objects (as the Committee trust it will be acknowledged they are) worthy of an enlightened benevolence, the Committee will rely with confidence upon the result of the present appeal to the public, for further aid in the good work which they desire to pursue.

By Order,

J. CHARLTON FISHER,

Secretary.
