On Saturday Valleyfield showed to better advantage with Pierce on the slab, the score being 9 to 6. Ottawa is scheduled to play Montreal in Montreal next Sunday.

KID M'COY TO WED WOMAN OF MILLIONS

Off-Mated Puglist Wins Heart of Mrs. Edward C. Ellis, Worth $5,000,000

Puglist "Kid McCoy" is going to marry Lillian Earle Ellis, widow of Edward C. Ellis, and possessor of a fortune estimated at between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000, says the New York World.

"The date has not yet been fixed for our wedding," said Mrs. Ellis to a reporter in the presence of "Kid McCoy" in her apartment in the Hotel Dupont, No. 149 West Forty-fourth street.

"We are very happy, but our plans have not been settled."

This marriage will furnish the climax of a series of romances, a climax, such as no novelist would dare to write, because every one would scoff at it as impossible.

Many critics have laughed at Bernard Shaw because he dared to marry his puglist-hero, Cabell Byron, to the beautiful Lillian Carver, who had $20,000 a year.

Lillian Estelle Earle was the intimate friend of Julia Selby, the first wife of "Kid McCoy," whose real name is Norman Selby.

Mrs. Earle in the summer of 1902 visited Mrs. Selby at Cedar Bluff, Kid McCoy's farm on Saratoga Lake.

All so staying at the farm, which McCoy was running as a sort of athletic sanitarium for overworked and over-played men, was Edward Ellis, son of Edward Ellis and grandson of the late John Ellis, who founded the locomotive works at Schenectady, N. Y., and established the family fortune.

Young Ellis was coronator of his class crew (1896) at Yale and a substitute quarterback back on the football team.

Wounded by too much strenuous life, Henry Joy, the old St. John Albert player, has been released by New Haven.

Mike Long is still very weak with the whooping cough he has been every punk of late.

The Lyons team beat the Ridge-wood (N. J.) team on Saturday, score 20. Long had no hits or runs, but accepted two fielding chances.

The Young Stars defeated the Young Champions last evening by a score of 10 to 2.

Batteries—Shaw, C. Duffy and H. Short; Champion, J. Kirk and E. Hanabury.

A Challenge

The Young Victorias challenge any team whose members are under thirteen years of age.

The Young Victorias are—F. Sullivan, C. F. Doyle, P. G. Smith, A. J. D. McNeil, P. J. DeLoe, A. F. M. Daley (capt.), L. F. Doyle, manager, F. Moran.

Boston's Poor Average

Not a regular man on either Boston team, with the exception of Wilhelm of the Nationals, is in the 300 class.

Schuch, for the Chicago, has the highest average, with 296.

Such men as Collins, Freeman, Grimshaw and Stahl are many points behind. There must be something wrong with the batting eyes of the Cubs team, when such players as Corbin and Burbert are batting at 200 and 188 respectively.

Wilhelm has an average of 283 for the Boston Nationals, and he has the highest mark of either team.

Fraser, Needham, Tenney, Haymer, Boffy and Cunnell, however, have improved much lately.

Baseball Notes

The Federation Turtles have decided to procure uniforms similar to those it was used by Joe Page's team.

They will be light grey with blue trimmings.

ATHLETIC

Sackville May Not Compete. SACKVILLE, N. B., May 30.—The intercollegiate sports are probably off so far as Mount Allison is concerned.

The June 3 date is acceptable to all the colleges, but the Halifax grounds are not available, and on June 5, the date acceptable to Acadia, Mount Allison cannot send a team.

THE RING

Britt to Meet the Winner. SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—James Britt has signed with the Hayes Valley Club to fight the winner of the Hanlon-Corbett battle.

The match is to come off in July. The details of the match have not yet been arranged.

Boxing Talk. The most important fight of the week will be decided at San Francisco, Friday night, when Eddie Hanlon and "Young" Corbett will face each other for the third time.

The Duverneis has secured a draw and a decision over his opponent, who expects to come out the winner in this engagement.

Corbett has been going back rapidly lately, but Hanlon has been keeping pace with him in this regard, and, if anything, has got a little the better of "Corbett."

When Hanlon met Terry McGovern last year, the now broken down "Terrible One" walloped him so hard that the bout was stopped in the fourth.

Followers of the game, as a rule, pick "Corbett" to win, but they say the bout will be a tame affair.

Battling Nelson has two bouts on for this week, both of which he should win in easy fashion.

He goes against Jack O'Neill in Philadelphia on Wednesday night, and against Kid Sullivan in Baltimore on Friday night.

He has been against O'Neill before, and put him away in short order.

Sullivan boxes him in a style that just suits Nelson, and a quick finish may be expected.

John L. Sullivan, Jr., the Boston boy who is now in England, and recently defeated Bobby Dobbs, the English champion welterweight, will probably meet the colored boy again, as a match is now pending and Sullivan has cancelled several bouts to prepare for the match.

In the first match Sullivan was disqualified in the first round for hitting in the clinch, but the bout was resumed because the crowd protested and Sullivan wanted to continue.

Dobbs underrated Sullivan and received one of his noisiest right smashes in the 17th round that put him to sleep.

Sullivan has made a great hit with the fighting fraternity in England, and will be put against some of the best men in the near future.

Jim Clark, who took Sullivan abroad, says that he will bring Ike Bradley over here in the fall to meet the best boys in the 116-pound class.

Bradley has a big reputation on the other side, and is now busy keeping engagements.

MANY FAST YACHTS WILL ENTER IN RACE TO HALIFAX

Corona, Constellation, Puritan, Vigilant and Other Famed Yachts Will Participate in the Big Event.

The next big yachting event will be the ocean race from Marblehead to Halifax.

A New York dispatch says—So far as famed yachts go, the ocean race from Marblehead to Halifax will eclipse the contest for the Kaiser's Cup.

In the latter there were no Constellations or Vigilants or Puritans, as will compete in the Halifax race, and these famous yachts will make the struggle of exceptional interest.

Arthur F. Lake's schooner Corona, formerly the cup yacht Colonia, has been entered formally in the race.

The Constellation is a lively entry, and the Vigilant and the English yawl Sabinia will probably make the contest a continuation of the cruise.

The America's Cup defender, Puritan, is also expected to start. The race is open to yachts of any country. The course is approximately 200 miles.

The Corona was built for a wealthy syndicate, headed by A. J. B. Rogers, as a candidate for the America's Cup defense, and for the keel atop Colonia was used as a trial horse for the successful defender.

Herreshoff designed her, and launching took place in 1893. Ex-Commodore LeRoy, New York Yacht Club, purchased her and changed her name to Corona.

In 1895 she was changed to a centerboard schooner. She defeated the Emerald repeatedly, and in one of the closest races of her career she was just beaten by the Vigilant. On Aug. 1, 1900, she won the Astor cup race for schooners, off Newport, and won the same cup the second time on Aug. 12 last.

On Aug. 4, 1902, she won both the commodore's and vice-commodore's cups in the run from Vineyard Haven to Provincetown, and took the vice-commodore's cup again on Aug. 17 last.

Perhaps her most noteworthy ocean race was on Sept. 6 last year, when a 240 mile contest of the Atlantic Yacht Club she defeated the Endymion, now racing across the Atlantic.

The Corona is built of steel and is 120 1/2 feet long, 12 feet over all, 35 feet on the water line, 24 feet beam, 16 feet 4 inches depth and 18 feet draught.

The start of the race will be the day after the finish of the New York Yacht Club cruise for Marblehead, and it is expected that as many of the yachts would be that far on the journey, they would decide to continue in the race to Halifax.

The race starts at 10 a. m. August 21, and the yachts are expected to arrive at Halifax August 24.

The yachts will remain in Halifax until August 26. On Saturday, August 26, all the visiting yachts will compete in the race for the Prince of Wales Cup.

This race is open to all classes, and it is anticipated that there will be a very close race.

The Royal Nova Scotia squadron has decided in addition to the cup, with a prize five times as large, that the winning boat in each of the class competing will receive a prize.

AT THE END

(Toronto Star). It was in a school room and all the innocent pupils were looking with awestruck interest at the school marm.

She wanted them to give sentences ending with the words "bitter and." And the little darlings proceeded to do so, one led with a martial bearing declaring that Bessie would pursue the war to the "bitter end."

Another incoherent kid said that the Easter holidays had come too soon to their "bitter end." But after the third example the teacher asked for no more sentences.

A little cherub arose and this is what he said: "My bulldog chased our cat and as she was going under the fence he 'bitter end'."

"That great" protested the boarder, "is not exactly it ain't," replied the waitress, "it's done over, 'as is the same meat you had yesterday."—Philadelphia Press.

First Race June 17

The first race in the R. K. Y. C. series.

Montaine "Kid McCoy" had had much marital tribulation. His wife, Julia Selby, eloped to Japan with his friend, Ralph Thompson, at the same time of the Ellis romance.

McCoy got a divorce from Julia. He married, late in 1903, Miss Ingrid Arnold, a pretty girl, now on the road with the Law Fidelity Company.

The marriage was annulled by the Rhode Island courts last winter, upon Mrs. Selby's application.

The puglist began a new life when his latest marriage was annulled. He has not touched a drop of alcoholic liquor since he fled to Japan with his friend, Ralph Thompson, at the same time of the Ellis romance.

ROMANCE OF A WOMAN'S WILL

Has Been Found in Old Monastery—Forgery and Imprisonment.

LONDON, May 30.—One of the strangest stories of a will ever told in a court was narrated in Dublin before Mr. Justice Kenny.

Miss Margaret Brown died at Fernoy in 1801, and a man named Thomas O'Keefe, her house and annuities, the discovery of a will. This will was found to have been forged and O'Keefe was sentenced to penal servitude.

In February 1804, relatives in America came on the scene, and an inquiry into the next of kin was ordered.

Then an extraordinary event took place, says the Irish Independent. The monks of Mount Mellary, who had not heard of any of the proceedings, believing that Margaret Brown was still alive, sent word to a Mr. Mannix, whose son was a priest in the order, that she had left a bag in the monastery in the year 1801.

Mr. Mannix then informed the local abbot for the first time that Mrs. Margaret Brown had died more than two years before.

She was found in a post-office savings bank book for £22 10s, deposit receipts for £200, and a will by which she left everything she had to the monks of the monastery.

Counsel for the monks stated they would not take all the money and the next of kin were quite satisfied. Thereupon the will was admitted to probate.

Hubb—"I'd never heard her before."
