The outstanding feature of this progress tions in St. John today, but it might apis in the development of orchards. There is more good orchard land in New Bruns-wick than in Nova Scotia, and apples which are grown in the Annapolis Valley can be grown equally well in this province. The fruit exhibitions at St. John last fall and the fall before were a revelation of the strick is in the development of orchards. There pear more frequently in honor of our visiince. The fruit exhibitions at St. John last fall and the fall before were a revelation even to New Brunswick people. They were held under the joint auspices of the provincial Fruit Growers' Association and the provincial government. Selections from these exhibits took a very high place afterwards in exhibitions at Ottawa and Toronto and in London, England. It was only last week the papers told of the purchase of a large fruit farm in the St. John Valley by an English gentleman who had made a tour of Canada, and who at the suggestion of Sir William Van Horne came to New Brunswick to make this investment. While some 40,000 new apple trees were planted last year in the province, more than 60,000 were planted this year, and each year will see a further in great will see a further in great will see a further in great will see a further in the st. tinection is exceptionally bright.

The poultry industry is another to which a great deal of attention is now being given, under the direction of an expert, and although the progress made has been small yet there is perhaps no more irriving field for intelliguent enterprise. Everything the farmer has to sell brings high prices. The dairying industry has also made steady progress, but is expalse of great and profitable expansion.

For many years past the sheep raising industry in the province had been declining, but there is now a marked change. A gentleman who had been engaged in sheep farming in Ontario came to the province, went into the business here and made it a success. Sheep experts sent out by the federal government, after a very wide tour, declared that nowhere on this contract could there be produced a first quality of wool or first contract could there be produced a first quality of wool or first could be produced a first quality of wool or first could be assured of a steady market for their products.

The Provincial legislature at its last season and conditions are such that they would be assured of a steady market for their products.

THE FLAG QUESTION

A citizen of the United States who went about the city yesterday asked the Times why he was only able to discover one small American flag among the street decorations along the route as far as he had gone. He had understood that an invitation was extended to Americans to visit St. John during Old Home Week, and in Boston when provincialists are much in evidence the flag of their country is also to be seen.

"The nomination of Mr. Woodrow Wilson brings reciprocity with the United States again into the field of practical politics on both sides of the border. With the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt by the Republican party, or an undisputed nomination of Mr. Taft, and a subsequent victory for that party, reciprocity would have been done to death, as a congress elected in touch with either of these champions would not be willing to hold open to us as good a bargain as is now upon the A citizen of St. John also communicated with the Times yesterday touching the Champ Clark and a victory for the Demowith the Times yesterday touching the question of flags. He said that on one building there was a British flag and an American flag, and the latter was higher up than the former. He said that sort of thing would not be tolerated in the United States, and he did not think we should stand for it here. His objection was not the stand for it here. His objection was not the stand for it here. The programme just as it is with the Liberal programme j

1877, THE RELIC, 1912

A rough, unsightly, jagged mass
Lies resting on the grave-yard grass,
Sad relic of that dreadful day
Now five and thirty years away.
If one could wake it from its rest,
And hear the secret of its breast,
What dreadful story would it tell,
Of blocks and streets a seething hell,
Of desolation in the air,
Of ruined merchants in despair,
Of homes and fortunes swept away
And homeless thousands in dismay.

mercial orchard under the direction of the provincial horticulturist who is now selecting suitable locations. Fruit farming will develop very rapidly hereafter.

When we come to consider other lines of agriculture, potato culture perhaps takes first place. Within the last three or four years New Brunswick potatoes have found a large market not only in Quebec and Ontario, and even as far west as Winnipeg, but in the Island of Cuba, and there has been a very rapid increase in the acreage devoted to this crop. Farmers have been making money out of potatoes, and the outlook for the future in this direction is exceptionally bright.
