LOCAL NEWS

THE PULP MILL G. C. Outler was unable to make his inspection of the city's pulp mill property at Mispee this morning but will go out this afternoon and hopes to be able to take the matter up with the commissioners tomorrow when he will be in a better position to discuss the value of the property.

NAVES-FORBES. Last evening at 173 Waterloo street at the home of the officiating clergyman Frederick Naves and Miss Margaret Forbes were united in marriage by Rev. M. F. McCutcheon, Mr. and Mrs. Naves both belong to St. John and will take up their residence here.

THE MERRY-GO-ROUND MAN. Manager Parker, who ran the Ferris wheel and the merry-go-round at the St. John exhibition, is in the city today after playing the fairs at Halifax, Sydney and St. John's. He is a great rover and has travelled in this business as far as San Francisco. Mr. Parker says that for attractiveness, attendance and business the St. John exhibition was the best in the maritime provinces this year.

FATHER O'NEIL LEAVES. Rev. A. B. O'Neil, C. S. C., left St. John at noon today for his home at Notre Dame, Indiana, Montezuma, Montreal and Columbus, Ohio.

When he will pay a brief visit to his religious brethren at St. Laurent and Cole de Neiges, and then proceed to Columbus, where he is booked for a lecture on the 29th inst. Father O'Neil said before leaving the city that he had thoroughly enjoyed every day of his four months' sojourn in his native province and that while his walking record during that period was considerably below his average, his farwell sermon in St. George on Sunday last was his thirtieth for the summer.

ALLOW NO DRINKING AT COURTENAY BAY WORKS

Two Cases Deal With—Actions of Young Men and Girls on Marsh Road Draw Comment

"The action of a gang of young men and also of several girls, on the Marsh Road last Sunday, were simply disgraceful, and they could be termed nothing less than savage," said Magistrate Ridd in the police court this morning, in dealing with two prisoners charged with being drunk on the Courtenay Bay works. "The language and actions of them were awful, and a stop will have to be made of this sort of thing at once. People passing along on their way to and from Courtenay Bay were forced to step off the sidewalk and onto the road to get clear of this gang, some of them under the influence of liquor. It is a shame that in this city of St. John should have to be disgraced by a gang of rowdies like this, especially in the vicinity of the construction work at East St. John. The county police and also the city police will be instructed to put a stop to this, and if it continues, the guilty parties will find themselves in the police court. We are going to put a stop to all liquor selling and drinking at Courtenay Bay, and those who are arrested will have to suffer."

Two laborers, charged with being drunk pleaded guilty and were fined $8 or two months in jail. Superintendent Puffer of the Courtenay Construction Company was in court to prosecute the men, and said he was determined not to allow any drinking around the works. "I want to state to the court, said Mr. Puffer, that we intend to have order kept at East St. John, and if we can assist the police in any way to keep order, we will only be too glad to do so. One other prisoner charged with drunkenness, pleaded guilty and was remanded. Arthur Brandie, charged with scattering waste paper in Charlotte street was fined $2.

ALONG THE RIVER

There are three dredges at work in the St. John river at Fredericton. There are still some logs floating past Fredericton, and activity still prevails at the rating grounds below. Farmers were busy making hay on the islands above Oak Point yesterday. The recent fine days have been of great benefit. The wharf at Sandy Point, where the river enters Grand Bay, is nearing completion. The number of summer cottages along that shore has been increasing, and with a wharf at the point it will be even more popular. The traveller along the river sees here and there green fields of oats, a remnant of the wet and late season. Farmers who send produce to market should be sure they use strong barrels. While the Elaine was taking on freight at an up-river wharf yesterday the bottom fell out of a potato barrel and more than half the contents rolled down the sloping wharf into the river. At another wharf the bottom fell out of a barrel of turnips, and some were lost in the same way. The men were handling the barrels carefully enough, but the bottoms were not well fastened. Queenstown and Cosar's Stock Farm are the only places along the river that have a sign to tell the stranger the name of the locality. Mr. Cosar has a very large printed announcement about his farm and what it produces, easily read from the steamer's deck. He realizes the benefit of advertising. Only two of the old style of woodboats were to be seen along the whole river from Fredericton to St. John yesterday, and they were not carrying wood. The old style of craft is practically down and out. One young man at Upper Gagetown bagged eleven wild ducks last week, and others are said to have had good luck in the same line of sport. Evidence of the growing interest in orchards is seen here and there along the river, in an occasional new plantation, but what most impresses the observer are the neglected opportunities for orchard planting. At several points along the river between Gagetown and Fredericton, and above latter city progress is being made with Valley Railway construction, and the observer can get some idea of the magnitude of the work. Here and there long hills are seen, and steam shovels eating into the cuttings, with large crews of men at work. As a result of the general activity in construction work in the province and the harvest excursions to the west the farmers along the river have had great difficulty this fall in securing help. One farmer said he had never found it so difficult to get a man when he wanted one.

KILLEN BRINGS HOME TWO BOYS

Charged in Connection With Recent Thefts

WERE IN TEWKESBURY

Breaks Into J. H. Hamilton's and J. V. Russell's—Phillips Fighting Extradition in His Own Case

One of the most important captures made by the local police for some time was that of yesterday afternoon when Detective P. F. Killen arrested Lawrence McCarthy, aged sixteen, and Oscar Beckwith, aged fourteen, in Tewkesbury, a suburb of Boston, on the charge of having broken and entered the store of John H. Hamilton, in Wall street, and also that of J. V. Russell in Main street. From the Hamilton store the boys are charged with stealing about $400, and from the Russell store about $200. The breaks were made on the night of September 1 and it is believed that the perpetrators made their escape to the states the next day. Both breaks were very daring, and looked to be the work of experienced crooks. The young fellows under arrest were formerly employed in one of the cotton mills. Soon after the break suspicion was fixed on them, but they were not to be found in the city. The police have been diligently at work on the matter, and a few days ago Chief Clark learned of their whereabouts. Detective Killen happened to be in the states in connection with another case, and Chief Clark wired him about the two boys. The detective immediately went and placed them under arrest, and brought them to the city this morning. Both young fellows were well dressed, but had practically no money on them at the time they were taken into custody. According to the detective they had not been working. When searched four photo cards, a knife and three neckties were taken off McCarthy, and two photo cards, one post card, a watch fob, ten keys on a ring, two account books, one pocket-book, eighteen cents, a jackknife and a ring off Beckwith. Detective Killen also visited Marlboro, Mass., where Herman G. Phillips, wanted for the charge of theft, is in custody. Phillips is charged with stealing a post office money order from the office mill. Soon after the break suspicion was fixed on him, but he was not to be found at the post office, by representing himself to be the owner of the order. According to the detective, he is fighting extradition.

FRED. TEMPLE'S SON IS NOW EXPELLED IN FLAG INCIDENT

Former St. John Boy Refused To Change His Mind and Swear Allegiance to United States Flag

New York despatches a few days ago told of Leofric Temple, son of Fred L. Temple, formerly of St. John, refusing to announce allegiance to the United States flag during exercises at the Cedar Grove, N. J., high school which he attended. The boy said he had acted under his father's instructions. A despatch today says: "When the Cedar Grove, N. J., public high school opened yesterday morning, Leofric Temple, the seventeen-year-old son of Frederick L. Temple, was present. The school board of the village had decided in a regard to the boy's refusal to announce his allegiance to the American flag, and as the boy refused to reconsider, under his father's orders, he was expelled. "One of the members of the board of education said last night: "This Temple boy has caused us trouble before. About a year ago he publicly insulted the flag, and we were obliged to apologize, which did not do us much credit. Now we cannot have exceptions of this sort in the school which, after all, is a government institution. If he is not an American he should go to a private school and pay for his tuition or go back to Canada or England, but if we made an exception in his favor, I suppose that any anarchist might refuse to salute the flag. He can be reinstated if he reconsiders his decision, otherwise he is expelled." Young Temple precipitated the trouble by putting his hands in his pockets on last Monday morning, when the other pupils saluted the flag and repeated a formal pledge of allegiance to it. Principal Hutchinson asked him why he did it. "I am acting under the instructions of my father," answered the boy. "He told me under no circumstances to pledge allegiance to the American flag, and I propose to obey him."
