A telephone message was sent to Indiantown for a tugboat and at 8.30 o'clock the W. H. Murray left for Cameron's wharf. A lot of bright and catchy songs were very badly rendered, many ancient jokes were perpetrated, and there was any amount of shouting and screaming. Yet it was all done in a manner that made the audience laugh, and those who went not expecting a first-class performance.

Last evening, for the first time, Carleton was supplied with electric light by a current generated on the eastern side of the harbor. The new 2,000 candle power enclosed arc lamps were installed yesterday and last night were producing a much better light and giving satisfaction. No decision has yet been come to as to what use will be made of the old Carleton power house. The building has been examined by an expert and his report is awaited. There is a suggestion that it may be used for a west side car shed.
