

CURE CANCER BY GREAT HEAT

Dr. Doyen Explains Electro-Thermal Coagulation—Paris Therapeutic Congress Interested.

Paris, April 5.—Interest in the Physio-Therapeutic Congress has been centered on an address describing a new supposed cure for cancer presented by Dr. Doyen. The doctor calls the treatment, electro-thermal coagulation. Explaining the system, Dr. Doyen said there was one predominant factor in the surgical treatment of cancer, that is the constant relapse or re-occurrence of the disease. After an operation the cancerous cells, which resist the action of the phagocytes, are disseminated like seeds scattered by the wind. They become the nucleus of fresh cancerous growth.

In his experiments, he said, he observed that the diseased cells may be destroyed by heat. Healthy cells of the body can withstand heat up to 140 degrees, whereas cancerous cells are destroyed by heat at 131 degrees and even at 122 degrees. This lower degree of vitality therefore may play an important part in the treatment of cancer. It has opened up a new way of treating it through the living tissues. Even at a considerable depth in the temperature above 122 degrees would kill the diseased cells without injuring the healthy ones. Dr. Doyen adds:—

Electro Coagulation.
"I solved the problem by means of electro coagulation. I obtained the thermal effect by a special kind of arsanization. With the help of a particular device which I conceived I was able to cause heat to sink through the tissues to a great depth. When I placed an electrode on the tissues there was a coagulation of the diseased cells just as the white of an egg thickens by boiling. The coagulated cells eliminate themselves after a certain time and definite cicatrization occurs whenever the whole extent of the cancer has been covered."

"By allowing heat of about 135 degrees to penetrate the tissues under a tumor a sort of electro process goes on, the diseased cells being destroyed while the healthy ones remain intact."

Dr. Doyen asserts that all accessible cancers of the skin, mouth, tongue, &c., may be cured by two or three applications of electricity, provided cancer is diagnosed in time.

There is a row in the historic Comedie Francaise and all Paris is laughing over the epithets which are making blue the atmosphere of the ancient playhouse. Jules Claretie, the manager and M. Labargy, a member of the committee as well as a popular leading man, are slugging each other heartily. The old adversaries are horrified and think the end of the world has come when in the one theatre in the universe where everybody is invariably polite to everybody else the managers and stars are waging a wordy scrap, but the rude boulevardiers laugh.

The row has indeed become a grave matter of state. Premier Briand intervened and held a long conference with MM. Claretie and Labargy separately. He begged M. Claretie not to resign and told M. Labargy that the interests of the national dramatic art forbade him to quit the theatre in which he has played for 30 years.

Labargy's grievance is that Claretie has become the manager of the theatre and that since the suppression of the committee that reads plays Claretie produces only plays that please him. Labargy says that Claretie is a chronic kicker.

Labargy declares that Labargy ought not to complain, because he was treated better than the other members of the company. He asserts that Labargy is a chronic kicker. Labargy says that Claretie's quarter of a century of management has been filled with incompetence. Claretie retorts that Labargy's quarter of a century has been filled with efficiency; that Labargy never acts, but draws his salary and that he delays plays by refusing to rehearse. The manager winds up by saying that he (Claretie) has ruined the Comedie Francaise. On the contrary the theatre's surplus during the last ten years grown to 1,000,000 francs, on $200,000.

It M. Briand does not succeed in settling the quarrel Parisians are hopeful that there will be a duel. The row is creating more excitement in Paris than the imposition of the new tariff.

CHATHAM COUNCIL IN CLOSING SESSION

Present Board Holds Last Meeting—Considerable Business of a Routine Nature is Disposed of.

Chatham, N. B., April 5.—The last meeting of the present town council was held last evening. All were present but Ald. Gallivan.

A letter from Geoffrey Stead, C. E., resident engineer was read by the clerk, stating that he would call the department's attention to need of dredging at the ferry wharf.

Aid. Cassidy for the water, light and sewerage board reported balances as follows: Light, $192; water, $184.78. This is a great improvement over previous years.

Ald. Williams read the Scott Act Inspector's report for March. This showed three convictions.

Ald. Logie reported for the finance department. The receipts for the past month were $2,591.53 and payments $1,896.29.

P. McKay was re-elected road commissioner for the town of Chatham.

The question of the railway route into town was brought up by Ald. Logie, who was against putting the track to the south of the present high way, as it would entail a new work of local crossings.

Nearly all those present spoke on the subject, but no decision was arrived at.

Ald. Logie announced that he would not run for a third term for the present board and strong expressions of regret at this decision were given.

Earl Grey Has Praise For The Boy Scouts of Montreal

Boy scouts "making camp"—The lower part of the tent is basketwork quickly made out of strips of bark—Thus the canvas top is made to cover twice as much space as it would if used alone.

Montreal, April 5.—Once more the Boy Scouts have come in for words of approval and encouragement and their future importance has been recognized. Once more the Boy Scouts of Montreal have led in new tactics so far as any Canadian corps is concerned.

His Excellency the Governor General recently inspected the members of the local corps and at the ceremony he spoke warmly to Colonel Gardiner, who was in command of the works of the corps and of the efficiency which was everywhere noticeable. As the boys marched from the grounds in the rear of Lord Strathcona's residence, where the inspection was held, His Excellency remarked that this was the beginning of another territorial army.

The boys fell in at 4 o'clock in front of Col. Gardiner's house on Chomedey street, and with a detachment of buglers from the 6th Regiment leading the way, and a bicycle patrol bringing up the rear, these youthful fellows of Baden-Powell marched to the grounds in rear of Lord Strathcona's house.

At the grounds they were inspected in every detail, manoeuvres were gone through, the march past was given, and, accompanied by his aides and Col. Gardiner, Earl Grey went over the entire corps. Before the inspection began the royal salute was given the Governor General as the buglers played.

There were about 100 Boy Scouts in parade, and in addition to its being the first instance of a parade of Boy Scouts before His Excellency it was the first case of a patrol of Scouts mounted on bicycles appearing in connection with any Canadian unit.

With Earl Grey came Lady Grey, Lady Sybil Grey, Lady Alben Roberts, daughter of Field Marshal Lord Roberts, "Dobs"; Lord Lanesborough and Earl Grey's aide-de-camp. All were pleased with the military spirit and bright appearance of the Montreal Boy Scouts in their natty green and white sweated uniform.

At the signal for the opening of the ceremony the clowns paraded into the ring in single file, each in his fantastic garb, and a chorus of the bride party entered as if coming out of a tunnel under the great hills of uncoupled seats.

Graze Paint.
Mr. La Pearl's countenance was smeared with white grease paint, with spots of red on his cheekbones and forehead, and his costume was a combination of green and red. He presented an old appearance, beside the little women he was about to wed. Miss Magindley was a pretty countenance of grey silk and carried a large bouquet of lilies of the valley. She was attended by three bridesmaids and there were three "best men" to encourage Mr. La Pearl.

While the bride party stood in the centre of the ring the Rev. Samuel F. Gordiano, of Calvary Baptist church, entered in his black gown, and while the assemblage stood with bared heads the marriage ceremony was performed. The clowns who acted as "best men," Albert Olfant, "Bill" Scott and "Spot" Jerome, with grins painted on their faces, made a strange picture, for they looked as solemn as the occasion demanded. The bridesmaids, the Misses Julia Shipp, Nella Florence and Mary Olfant, were radiant.

When the clergyman finished the ceremony there were great cheering and handshaking, which aroused the animals in the quarters below, and the elephants, lions and tigers trumpeted and roared as if in approbation of the wedding.

The bride and bridegroom and their attendants took seats at the table reserved for them on an elevated platform. The bride was summoned to the front and received a bride as a gift. The bridegroom also got something, but he didn't like it and threw it into the ring.

Many telegrams were received from circus men in all parts of the country and the reading of these was followed by speeches by newspaper and magazine men who were guests.

Mr. La Pearl gets a leave of absence for two weeks and last night he and his bride started on a honeymoon trip.

by Mayor Snowball, Ald. Haley and Wm. They declared Ald. Logie to have been one of the best aldermen Chatham ever had.

Ald. Haley stated he would run for a third term.

James Nicol, president of the Chatham Curling Club was heard in reference to a request from the club to get the use of some additional land adjoining their rink, that they might enlarge their premises.

A committee of Ald. Williams, Haley and Logie was appointed to report to the committee of the whole.

The council then adjourned.

THE DEFICIT IN ENGLAND

British Finances Responsible for a General Apathy—Three Elections Predicted in One Year.

London, April 5.—The impending political crisis is approached with apathy by men of all parties. Even the astounding deficit of over £31,000,000 fails to make a deep impression on the calculation that over £201,000,000 must be provided in the two budgets this year does not appear to frighten anybody. It is not because the partisans are bent on fastening the responsibility for the financial disturbance on the other party, nor because the Radical party is calling the Tory kettle black. It is because the result of the general election, when it comes, is expected to be indecisive and because a third appeal to the country is regarded as a foregone conclusion. It is indeed politicians of all parties assume that an election in May will be followed by another in July or August, since the relations between the two main parties are not likely to be altered and the Nationalists will hold the balance of power and block the necessary financial legislation.

Disputes for Politics.
The prospect of having three elections in a single year without a definite assurance of authority for levying an income tax tends to create a disgust for politics of every color, when the expenses are heavy and the results are uncertain. The candidates are tired and are disposed to abstain from public life for the superior excitement of the rubber market and the Rhodesian boom. The whips of both parties are sounding a warning that an election is very close at hand, and every week candidates are falling out. Meanwhile, stock speculation is rampant and turnpikes are forecasting heavy plunging on the horses as a consequence of the suspension of the income taxes.

One important change likely to be effected by the elections is in the relations of the Irish factions to each other and to the two main parties. William O'Brien's action in founding the All for Ireland League points to a coalition with the other Irish parties and the Protestants. Starting originally with opposition to the whiskey and land taxes imposed by the budget, and with a disavowal of the revolution, he has already taken an advanced position in favor of reconciliation with the Unionist lords and the Protestant minority.

An expansion of Mr. O'Brien's movement seems almost inevitable. It is dependent on overseas contributions, but on subscriptions from the Conservative lords and the good will of the Protestants in the districts which have been unconquered for many years. Land reform has revolutionized Ireland by the creation of a large body of small owners with a Conservative bias. Mr. O'Brien appeals to them and endeavors to dispel the distrust of the Protestants by assuring them that their property rights and religious liberties will be safe under the new rule. He welcomes assistance from Lord Castletown, Lord Rosemore and Lord Dunraven, and denounces Messrs. Redmond, Dillon and O'Connor for setting up a system of Roman Catholicism more detestable than Protestant Orangism.

In Power.
If Mr. O'Brien largely increases the number of his supporters in Parliament at the next election there may be a faction strong enough to keep the Unionist ministry in power. The Nationalists, in that event, will be divided into two groups, one with Conservative and the other with Liberal sympathies, and each intensely hostile to the other. The strangest anomaly of all is the possibility of a coalition between the Liberal and the Roman Catholic faction in alliance with British Liberalism and Nonconformity, the government has introduced the mechanism for carrying the first veto resolution next week and the remaining two by the end of a fortnight, and for forcing the budget by rapid stages into committee, where it will be hunk up until John Redmond makes up his mind whether to let it pass or not. The Lords will employ the interval in discussing the definite reform proposals submitted by Lord Rosebery.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

IN NEW JERSEY
One Man Accidentally Shoots Another and Then, Seized With Fear, Turns Gun On Himself.

Trenton, N. J., April 5.—A tragedy in which a man was accidentally shot dead followed by the suicide of the man who fired the fatal shot occurred Monday today on the platform of the Philadelphia and Reading station at Trenton, N. J., about five miles from this city.

The man shot dead was Frank Fracello, a cab driver and the suicide was John Connolly, employed as a watchman by the railroad company at Trenton. These men with a railroad detective and the station telegraph operator were standing on the station platform when the shooting occurred.

Connolly had two revolvers, one of which was empty. He was showing them to Fracello, the two witnesses say, and remarked, "How would you like to get a load from this one," when the weapon was discharged. It is said Connolly thought he was exhibiting the empty revolver to the cab driver. Connolly was seized with fear and started to run. The detective and the telegraph operator started after him when Connolly suddenly stopped, placed the revolver to his head and fired. He died instantly.

The double tragedy unnerved the two men and for a moment they did
