TALKING IT OVER With Lorna Moon

"A LADY FROM HELL" AND A DOUGHBOY

The Doughboy fitted his overcoat cap at a jaunty angle and leaned his arms on the counter of the canteen "and you can take it from me," he said, "the Scotch Highlanders are bears to fight—Ladies from Hell—you know," he looked significantly at the Fair Canteen, he nodded to show she understood. "Say," he went on attacking the peach cake with a ruthless fork, "say, I never was so tickled in my life as I was over a compliment a Highlander paid me. He and I were on a reconnoitering party together. I was new at the game and a bit chattering about the teeth, the Highlander was like a Sphinx, and I wouldn't have let him know for a fact that the dark was getting my goat—I stammered. We were sitting in that listening post for several years I KNOW—the Highlander said it was 'just a wee while,' but he couldn't put THAT over on me, it must have been a day and a night AT LEAST.

"After several hours had passed, my Scotch friend whispered: 'We'll gang back now after day light.'—I nearly clasped him round the neck and kissed him, but I restrained myself and said 'what's yer hurry?'

"We had just gotten out of the tunnel and were crawling across the open when BINGO!!!—there was one roar and the dirt flew in every direction. I got a lump of dirt on the small of my back—ZOWIE, it weighed a ton. The Highlander gave a dry laugh and pulled me into a shell hole with him, and glanced back towards the noise and said 'than ye vera much.' 'What was it?' I asked him.

"The listenin' post laddie—I think it was vera considerable o' them ta wait till we got out."

"Sufferin' eats my heart was in my mouth as I thought of the narrow squeak we had had, but I just answered him as calm as could be: 'IT SURE WAS,' I said, and we crawled on again.

"When we got back Jock shared my coffee (he doesn't like coffee) and I ate part of the oat cake his wife sent him (I hate oat cake), then we sat and smoked, after an hour of silence had passed Jock took his pipe out of his mouth and said 'yer a' right Laddie,' then he clasped his pipe back in his mouth and didn't say another word. But you bet I didn't want him to sing any hymn of praise; he had measured me up and he said I was 'all right' and that was good enough for me."

ACTION IS APPROVED BY GENERAL PUBLIC

General Strike Unlikely
 London Feb 5—The best informed opinion to-night is that the menace of a general strike in London is removed. Many conferences were held to-day and the Board of Trade and the Cabinet had another meeting but there has been no marked change in the situation.

Labor Leaders Disapprove.
 London Feb 5—The Associated Society of Engineers as evidence of its disapproval of the strikes in London and Ireland and on the Clyde has suspended the functions of its committees in the three areas affected. The secretaries in the districts have been suspended and will not be permitted to hold office in the society for a certain period. This action it is declared is without prejudice to more drastic action being considered by the society.

London Feb 5—In order to prevent strike of power house employees, an Order-in-Council was issued to-day under the Defence of the Realm Act making it a summary offence for any person employed by the Government, a municipality or a company of which has assumed the duty of supplying electricity, gas or water to break his contract of service or otherwise to strike. The penalty is a six months imprisonment or a fine of $500 or both.

It is also made an offense to persuade men to break such contracts.

Approved by Public.
 The Government's quick action in taking advantage of the King's presence in London to-day to call a meeting of the council to enforce under the Defence of the Realm Act the same legal means to coerce the communities as an electric supply as already exists to protect in a similar manner the gas and water supplies against strike measures, has the full support of the general public and although the Electrical Trade Union at to-night's meeting to consider the situation reached no decision but adjourned till to-morrow it is believed there will be no electrical workers' strike.

Have no Grievance.
 The attempt of the electricians to force the Government to act in favor of a 48-hour week by threatening to deprive London of its light and power is almost universally condemned especially as the electricians have no grievances themselves demanding such remedy.

In addition to invoking the Defence of the Realm Act the Government also has taken measures to insure a supply of current in the event that a strike is persisted in and to protect loyal workers. It is understood that Premier Lloyd George now in Paris is being kept informed of all the happenings.
