Ryerson pres risks job, loses

TORONTO

Dave Maxwell, student president at Ryerson, was forced to resign Oct. 9 by a student council determined to make him keep his word.

Maxwell had threatened to resign three weeks ago if a proposal to turn Ryerson into a 'free school' was defeated by referendum vote.

The proposal went down in flames and Wednesday night anti-Maxwell forces on council rammed through acceptance of his resignation.

Arts representatives bitterly opposed acceptance of the resignation but lost 16-11.

McGill can't decide on change

MONTREAL

The McGill Tripartite Commission on the Nature of the University, set up in the aftermath of last November's crisis at the university, is now facing its own crisis.

Nothing short of an act of god will produce a consensus on the direction for change at the university according to student president Robert Hajaly. As a result, the commission is having trouble producing a final report.

Such a consensus, said Hajaly, would be forced and artificial and would reflect "nobody's views." There is broad "divergence of opinion on the fundamental issues facing the commission," he said and singled out the intended orientation of the school in terms of its "social position and its academic curriculum" as a major disagreement.

An alternative would see two or three different reports designed to serve as the basis for debate and legislation.

'it's like owning my own business'

Roger Kedwell, a London Life sales representative in Toronto

"It's true. At London Life you get a concentrated, personalized training program that's recognized as the best in the industry. You can choose where you want to work. Then you go out and sell. From the very first day, you have the responsibility of shaping your own career. You determine how fast you grow, how much you earn. And you have the London Life name to help you."

An economics graduate of the University of Western Ontario, Roger began a three-month London Life training course in the summer of 1966. Within a year he had established himself as an exceptional life insurance underwriter. To learn more about a career in life insurance sales, see your placement officer.
