-----A Child's Conversation with a time shall flee before the radiance of the millenial morning, thus shall it ever be. Star.

Star! beautiful Star!

I would go and dwell with thee I have sought a home in the forest grove, I have wandered for hours in the haunts I love, choir of God. I have sat by the side of the murmuring brook In some grassy dell or sequestered nook ; I have walked at " moonlight's fairy hour,' Through the garden paths to the vine-clad bower. And ever when gazing on thy fair face, Have I tasted the purest happiness. Star ! beautiful star ! I would go and dwell with thee. For in thee alone I read My future destiny.

Child ! lovely child !

Dost though seek to dwell with me ? I have shone on thee through the stilly night. No clouds can obscure my radiant light: Thy choicest blessings have come from above I have watched over thee with a parent's love : the Lamb is the light thereof. Thou shalt taste of that bliss which no sorrow can quell,

For with me does thy guardian angel dwell; Thou shalt learn that nought can the pleasure mar.

Of her who inhabits thy favourite star. Child ! lovely child ! Thou shall come and dwell with mas, For with me alone is linked Thy future destiny.

Star ! radiant star ! Thy light hath perfect power

I gaze at it oft in the dark midnight.
