HUN AIRMEN
SHUN ALLIES

"Won't Fight Unless They Outnumber Us" Writes
Flight-Lt. Saunders

Writing to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Saunders, 11 Centre St., Flight-Lt. Saunders says:—
"I suppose you are enjoying very nice weather at home now, or you should be, away over there where there is no war on. My idea was to fine weather and yours are a little different since I have started doing jobs. When we get tired of patrolling we pray for rain. I have been hoping for an hour it would rain to-night so I would not have to go to town a job. I have been doing about five hours a day in the air lately and expect to keep on with it for some time. It is really too long. That is two and a half hours. I generally feel very tired and fed up when we get back to the drome after a long, tiresome job.
"I haven't been in a good scrap with the Hun yet. We have dived down several times on formations of his scouts but they immediately divided away from us into the clouds.
They won't scrap unless they greatly outnumber us. I barely missed a shot at a keen two seater this morning. My flight commander suddenly divided. I was a little late in following him, but when I got my nose well down I saw the old Hun down there with the other chaps firing at him.
I just about had my sights on him when the formation turned away and I had to follow them. It wasn't because there was a bunch of enemy scouts just above us in the sun. It doesn't pay to struggle with them about you. That is what they are waiting for.

"I saw something very pretty this morning. We were flying all over the place to dodge Archie. He was shelling us pretty heavily and they were coming in too close. We got over on top of a cloud and changed our direction so he couldn't find us.
We were then about fifteen thousand. I happened to look down under me. There on the cloud was a very large circle, just like a rainbow, only the circle was complete.
In the very centre of the circle was the shadow or silhouette of my machine. It is very often seen, but is very pretty. All inside of the ring is colored like a rainbow.

"I have had a few looks into the front line from a few feet up, but really think I prefer life in the flying corps. Several times we have been returning from the lines just about dusk, and it's some sight to see our shells bursting all along and behind the line. One time I saw the little spits of flame from the rifles in the trenches. There are always great varieties of different colored lights going up. One would think it was a great twenty-four hour celebration. However, all this has something to do with pushing the old Hun back and winning the war."

MAYOR AND THE COAL QUESTION

To the Editor of The Courier:
"All the world hates a coward," and therefore it is quite unnecessary for me to reply at any length to the lying effusion which appeared in the Expositor during my absence from the city. As a matter of fact, the letter itself carries its own answer.
Even a child in the primary class can figure the cost of the city coal and show that we have surplus of nearly $1000. Instead of the "magi-cary deficit pictured by the 'elongated' gatherer of unconcealed trifles," signing himself "Call a Cop." When a letter writer resorts to the subterfuge of signing a fictitious name, it is a safe bet that he is not only the possessor of a cowardly heart, but that his statements are false. In this particular instance there would be no need to "call a cop"—an ordinary mouse trap would answer the purpose quite satisfactorily.

The Expositor's procedure obviously is an attempt to justify the publication of a report that had not passed the committee stage (a report that was acquired by subterfuge on the part of its reporter) as really too ridiculous for words. A newspaper is perfectly within its rights to publish any report on the public files, and no objection has ever been taken to such a course, but as a matter of ordinary decency, it could easily have waited until the council had passed the name. This is the procedure observed on all committee reports, and the fact that the rule was not followed in this instance is further proof that the report was obtained by underhand methods. That motto "First in Everything," seems to have outbalanced the better judgment of the acting editor, who quite carelessly served on all committee reports, and the fact that the rule was not followed in this instance is further

I regret exceedingly that such an unpleasant attack should have been made while I was absent from the city. I have not had time for a reply, but a square deal, and have always been ready to meet my traditions face to face. Business circumstances have made it necessary for me to accept a position on the road, and consequently for the next few months I cannot give my whole time to civic business. I have already given practically eight months of close attention to civic matters, and have succeeded in providing this city with a considerable quantity of coal and wood. I have secured an enormous amount of work, and at the end of the month of August, (after nearly every other civic official had had a holiday) I asked to be given a month, stating that I was tired out.
Before taking leave, I showed the false statement to the different aldermen of the board, and asked if they wished to take it into consideration before my leaving or let it wait until my return. In every instance, it was agreed that it should stand.
I shall be absent for another two weeks, and on my return will give a complete report of all fuel matters, (financial and otherwise), and the Expositor or any other newspaper will be quite welcome to publish same just as soon as the council has passed upon it. I dropped in for the week-end for the purpose of speeding up deliveries to the soldiers' wives and mothers. It is through no fault of mine that this coal was not delivered some time ago, and the criticism of a few "political tricksters," under the guise of non-plume does not worry me any.
The soldiers and their dependents have learned to appreciate these people at their true valuation, and are not all deceived.

I shall have a few interesting facts to state re. that Echo Place letter on my return. I shall not make any "veiled inference," as seems to be the custom of certain letter writers.
I shall state facts and state them emphatically over my own signature —not any "hidden hand" tricks for me.

In the meantime the soldiers' homes will get their coal just as fast as the Standard Coal Company and the city trucks can deliver it, and if any of them are without fuel, they will be supplied from the city yards with sufficient to "carry on" until their regular order is delivered—this applies to either coal or wood.
There has been a very extraordinary complaint at the mixing of pea and chestnut coal. It is true that on the Waterous square we were obliged to dump three cars of pea coal on top of about sixteen cars of chestnut.
We had no other place to put it at the time, and there is no justification for any complaint. As a matter of fact, pea coal is a mighty good thing to mix with chestnut. It is free burning, and there is an entire absence of clinkers in the large size. The city coal is all an A1 quality. Any citizen is privileged to go and look at it, and there need be no home without coal. It is not hand-picked by any man, but many other cities would be mighty glad to have it. Hamilton, for instance, reports 7000 homes without a bucket full.
The same applies to hundreds of other places.

Let us have a square honest deal on the fuel question. I state most emphatically that Brantford is better off than any other city in Canada. I have given eight months of effort to this problem without one cent of expense to the city. Other cities have from two to three men engaged in the work. It is all very well for a few irresponsible sore heads to circulate malicious propaganda—a Hunnish trait—but I challenge any man or woman, or The Expositor, for that matter, to state in his report, that there has been any transaction in connection with either coal or wood that has not been open and above board.

The final report will show that we have not only averted an emergency in this city, but that we have not lost one cent of the city's money.
Mr. Bunnell and Mr. Kerby have arranged that during my absence emergency cases will be cared for on receipt of order from either Ald.
Burrows or Mr. William Glover.
(Signed) M. MACBRIDE, Mayor.

P.S.—It is only right that I should acknowledge the fact that The Courier in its responsibility, that there has been any transaction in connection to our fuel supply. This action has been of great assistance to us in our endeavors to get supplies shipped to the city.
M. MACBRIDE.

EMPHASIZED
IMPORTANCE
OF ARMY SHOES

Illustrated Lecture Given in Brant Theatre This Afternoon

The utilization of the camera and film as a means of education upon any particular subject is a very modern getting on. The Expositor has been the first to bring to the public the facts that the eye can absorb and transmit to the brain a story of any incident or transaction, portrayed by the moving picture better and more impressively than the same thing retold in the old way. The moving picture is to the old way as the telephone and purposes life itself, and upon the art of the photographer and his ability to preserve the dramatic and impressive features of the scene, produced depends the success and impression made.

The United Shoe Machinery Corporation has seized the film and camera as aids to education, the public use upon the appreciation of the value and importance of the shoe industry on the continent, and also as a part of the service they are giving to the shoe industry itself.

The new showing is "The Making of the Pershing Shoe," the American Army Shoe. It was shown for the first time in Washington a few weeks ago, and last week in the military city of Jacksonville, Fla., it was seen by nearly 10,000 soldiers in the same exhibit.

Mr. John F. O'Connell, the Publicity Director of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation showed this film at noon to-day in the Brant Theatre at the meeting of the Ontario Shoe Manufacturers' Association, as Washington and Jacksonville, the audience, under an opportunity of learning how a purely industrial film, whose details have been skilfully assembled and its scenes abundantly made of dramatic and gripping scenes of domestic and military life, and its scenes of domestic heroes, villains, comedians and vanpires.

The pictures were preceded by a brief talk by Mr. O'Connell, who has solved the problem of condensed and compact interest and were accompanied by a rapid-fire talk of explanation, that added very much to the pleasure of the audience.
"The Making of the Pershing Shoe" is only one, and the latest, of this valuable contributions of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation to the shoe industry, and one that the trade generally have long been waiting for.

Mr. O'Connell said in part:
"Napoleon, the greatest soldier of his age, declared he won more of his battles with the legs of his soldiers.
The great military truth that emerges from this is that—ability to make long and swift marches is an army's best asset."
"Ability to march is dependent on the sound condition of the soldiers' feet; and since good feet mean good soldiers and good shoes mean good feet, capable of withstanding the rigors of the road or the tests of the trench, the industry that makes good army shoes is a potent element in organizing victory. All else being equal the best shoe army is the victorious army; and unquestionably the Allied armies are the best shoe in the world."
"The Pershing Shoe, its trench model, is the shoe of the American army. Nothing better is made, for into its construction have gone the best thought, experience, ingenuity and skill of soldiers, surgeons, manufacturers and shoe operatives and these working harmoniously together, have with the best machinery in the world, combined to produce one of the vital instrumentalities with which we will secure victory and make democracy a living palpitating enduring principle of a civilization, whose corner-stone is the valor and humility and reverence for God and religion."
"The purpose of this film is to show you the Pershing Shoe in the making, to give you a practical illustration of the patriotic work of the Army of Peace, the army behind the machine, whose efforts must succeed those of the men in the field, and whose skill and sweat, and the majority of those in the audience on Saturday afternoon and evening were witnessing the production for

AT THE GRAND If you don't believe that "fairies" still exist, and that they still bob up at unexpected moments, and do the most unexpected things in the most unconventional way, you can be convinced by going to the Grand Opera House next Wednesday night, to see "Daddy Long Legs."

Cinderella was a real person who stole away from her kitchen drudgery to attend the ball and dance with the prince. Any child with imaginative qualities can tell you so much, and many a grown-up with the same enviable qualities can verify the statement. So that, after all, it is no strain upon the imagination when "Judy," the heroine of the play, is abruptly transferred from her duties as a drudge in the orphan asylum, to an atmosphere of happiness and love, and all the things that she dreamed of, as girls will dream whether in the sculleries or the drawing rooms.

If there remains a bit of your youthful fancies and understanding of the "once-upon-a-time" world of things, which made your childhood the glory time of your life, you will not wish to miss the opportunity of seeing "Daddy Long Legs."

"HEARTS OF THE WORLD." In all 120,000 feet of film are exposed in making David W. Griffith's supreme triumph, "Hearts of the World," which comes to the Grand Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 7, 8, 9, 10, but only 120,000 feet are shown on the screen. As Mr. Griffith and his camera man spent days and days cutting this precious film—every inch of which was a drop of blood cut out of his heart—the great producer had the saddest period of his life.
Every turn of the crank represented the realization of his life, the greatest picture ever made and to have to cut it down to an evening's entertainment—was like cutting off the ears of his favorite child.
