"GOLDEN FLEECE"

A Sermon on the Moral Effects of Secret Societies.

Labor Associations—Three Tests of the Goodness or Badness of a Secret Society.

BROOKLYN, April 17.—The Rev. T. De Witt Tammie, D. D., announced to his congregation to-day that as the Brooklyn Tabernacle has been uncomfortably crowded at its regular services, he had purchased the adjoining ground, on which a great church, prayer and Sunday school building, and a hall, wherein convocations can be opened into the main sanctuary, thus giving room for at least six thousand people are crowded into the present building, 4,600 of these in number, and about 1,800 seated in aisles and standing. The improvement will add greatly to this capacity.

The sermon was given by the Rev. Tammie to-day was, "What is the Moral Effect of Free Masonry, Old Fellowship, Knights of Labor, Greek Alphabet and other societies?" The text was from Proverbs, xxix. 9: "Discover not a secret to another; he that is trustworthy keeps confidence." It was bled, bold, and full all things knew. It was bled, bold, and full all things knew.

It appears that in Solomon's time as in all subsequent periods of the world, there were people too much disposed to tell all they know. It was bled, bold, and full all things knew.

Many physicians revealing the case of their patients, lawyers exposing the secrets of their clients, and others who, notwithstanding the faults of the next door resident; pretended friends betraying confidence; the half of the trouble of every community comes from the fact that so many people have not capacity enough to keep secrets.

There's something disarming of you my first duty is not to tell you. But if I tell you, you will ask me to tell you. And then they'd go out and tell everybody else what I told you, and they'd go out and tell everybody else what you told them, and you, and we all go out, some to hunt up the originator of the story and others to tell the story to him, and then we'd be constantly talking about what you did do and what you did not do, and there'd be

AS MANY SCALES TAKEN

As though a band of Mordochs had swept upon a helpless village. We have two different ways of dealing with this. The suggestion that we ought to hear a good deal more than we take. Let us join a church that will not let us hear only the good and nothing of the ill, and then we will not be so sure of the wisdom of sermon on Solomon's words: "Discover not thy secret to a stranger."

There is a question here. Do our religious associations that do their work with closed doors, and admit their members only by secret sign, are right and wrong. The answer that it depends entirely on the character of the secret. If it is the secret that it pass the hour in revelry, yassall, dalliance and obscene talk, or to plot against the neighbor, then the secret is a disgrace, then say with an emphasis that no man can mistake, No! But is
