MR. MASSEY'S CONVERSION

Mackenzie King made one of his characteristic errors of judgement when he counted on the inclusion of Vincent Massey in his Cabinet to create the impression in the public mind that Canadian industry was content with the record of his Government in regard to the tariff and with its future prospects under a continuance of that record. Mr. King launched Mr. Massey on the country as an answer to criticism of his Government and to the Conservative policy of protection. Mr. Massey has not proved a very effective answer. The psychological effect of his entering the Government has disappointed the Prime Minister's expectations. Mr. King was unflattering in his estimate of the public intelligence when he thought it could be so easily deceived. The people of Canada have seen for themselves, individually and collectively, the effect of the King Government's performances regarding the tariff and other questions of public policy; they were not to be made to forget what they had seen and experienced through four unfortunate years just because Vincent Massey, who was an unreserved advocate of protection for Canadian producers a year and a half ago, is now ready to denounce protection after having been adorned with the mantle of a minister in Mr. King's Cabinet. When Mr. King reduced the tariff duty on agricultural implements in 1924 Mr. Massey was in favor of protection. Mr. King professed at the time that he was acting in the interests of the Canadian farmer. He was, of course, seeking to keep the Progressives in line in order thereby to keep himself in office. But with neither the professed nor the real purpose of the Prime Minister was Mr. Massey at that time in sympathy. Now, having been made a Minister, he desires it to be believed that he has seen a light and is in sympathy with both. He is preaching a low tariff policy as being in the interest of the farmer, and is devoting himself to a futile effort to keep Mr. King in office. Was it likely that merely because Mr. Massey, now with the rank of a Minister newly upon him, professes to have other views regarding the tariff and Mr. King's fitness for office than he had a year and a half ago when he was a plain citizen and the president of the Massey-Harris Company, the people of Canada would also change their minds on those subjects? The Prime Minister and his new colleague should have credited them with some judgment of their own instead of relying on the late Mr.

Barnum's assertion that the public likes to be fooled.

Hereto Mr. Massey has believed in protection. He regarded it as essential to the success of such enterprises as the Massey-Harris Company. He did not believe that the disabilities of the farmer were to be remedied by the abandonment of protection. Nor did he worry over the thought that "Confederation would crack" because of protection. If protection was needed for Canadian enterprises during the years Mr. Massey has been of mature mind, if it was not during those years a disadvantage to the farmer, how has the situation so suddenly changed? Mr. Massey does not say. Nor does he explain how it is that although he has been for many years a student of public affairs he is only now discovering "cracks in Confederation"—the cracks he is telling the people of Durham about. All Mr. Massey admits is that he has switched his belief. However, that is something. It testifies to his fitness to be a colleague of Mr. King. Men who would be Ministers with Mr. King cannot afford enduring principles and convictions. They must be ready to be inconsistent.

The suggestion that Mr. Massey's entry into the King Cabinet was a vindication of the Government's conduct in regard to the tariff was absurd on the face of it. Where Mr. Massey has abandoned his former convictions in order to take Cabinet rank under Premier King, dozens of men who were formerly prominent Liberals are leading in the fight to rid the country of the King Government because of the failure of the Government to vindicate itself in any way. Furthermore, although heralded on his joining the Government as the president of the Massey-Harris Company, he has not retained that position. He has not committed the industry with which he was identified to his support of the Government. Were he voicing more than his own changed conviction in supporting Mackenzie King and denouncing protection he should have remained at the head of his company. Mr. Massey apparently speaks for himself alone. His change of view is also solely his own.

UPSETS CONVICTION BY MAGISTRATE

His Honor Judge McLatchey in the Northumberland County Court upset two convictions against Geo. Gallon for having in his possession apparatus for the manufacture of liquor. The first conviction was made by Magistrate Demers on information laid by Fraser Saunders, a provincial prohibition inspector. The second was made on information laid by G. Perley Stewart, Customs Excise officer at Chatham.

In the case in which Saunders laid the information Judge McLatchey ruled that his temporary appointment as a federal officer had expired and that, even if it had not expired, there was nothing to show that he had a right to operate in Northumberland county, his commission authorizing him to work "at Fredericton." Moreover he ruled that the magistrate had dealt with the case as justice of the peace and, therefore, had no jurisdiction. On like reasons the second conviction was quashed.

The first case was an appeal against a conviction in March, 1925, made by A. Stuart Demers, police magistrate, Newcastle, whereby Gallon was convicted of having, without a license under the Inland Revenue Act, at the Parish of Derby on Sept. 20, 1924, in his possession a worm or apparatus suitable for the manufacture of spirits without having given notice thereof to the collector, as required by the act. The magistrate sentenced Gallon to jail for one

ELECTION HOLIDAY ISSUE IS SETTLED

Ottawa, Oct 19—Inquiries on the subject indicate that considerable confusion had arisen over the halt holiday on election day, which has been proclaimed by Order-in-Council. It will extend from noon till evening. When the Election Act amendments were being discussed in the closing days of the session, A. W. Neill, of Alberni, proposed a full holiday on election day. This was not accepted but a half holiday amendment carried. A mistake by the clerical staff caused the amendment, as carried, to be left out of the votes and proceedings and it was not included in the full bill that went to the Senate. Consequently, it is not the law. The Order-in-Council proclaiming the half holiday reflects the intent of Parliament and by-law the error will be rectified next session.

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW

Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N. S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. WILLIAM MORSE, Bloomington, Annapolis County, N. S. Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes." This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial. Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving great benefit. Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

"I may further state that the dampers are most convenient and that we get no gas or dust through the house when putting coal in the furnace. I am so pleased with it that I really would not take ten times the price if I could not get another like it."—M. W. Wood, Hallsboro.

"No More Coal Than a Baseburner"

"We were dubious as to its heating capacity, but in this respect it has given us perfect satisfaction and we get all the heat we want and it is not at all hard on fuel. It heats every part of the house, and its consumption of coal does not cost any more than the baseburner we have been using in the past."—Jonathan West, Charlottetown.

The air feed installed on latest models of the Fawcett raises its economy still further by utilizing the gases that other furnaces allow to escape. It is an integral part of the furnace and there is no possibility of its burning off. More than ever Fawcett Furnaces save fuel.

No Repairs!

"Ten years ago I installed in my seven room house one of your No. 181 Rival Furnaces, and take pleasure in stating that it has given me perfect satisfaction in every way.

"I have not bought any repairs for the above mentioned furnace since same was installed."—John Bedford, Vancouver.

Although there are more Fawcett Furnaces in use than any other Maritime make, and though some are a generation old, the parts and repairs business received by Fawcett on its own products is negligible.

Easier to Install

All the work of installing a Fawcett Pipeless Furnace is done in the basement save for the ten or fifteen minutes required to cut for a single register.

The whole work, in fact, can be done so quickly that if required it can be delivered in the morning and be heating your house the same night.

So now is a splendid time to secure a furnace. You've felt the cold already, and there's a long Winter ahead. Send for the Fawcett Catalog, giving details about your house.

Today--It's Toncan

Yesterday furnace makers were divided into camps. One favored steel radiators because of the quickness with which they radiated the heat. The other favored cast iron because of its durability in spite of the fact that it has a serious drawback, its slowness in radiating heat.

Along comes Toncan to combine the durability of cast iron with the radiation of steel. Standard with the world's greatest furnace makers—exclusive in Canada to Fawcett.

Free!
