their choice, were ashamed of the power which compelled them so to do. Her deep melapsholy fell upon Helen, as it had never fallen before; the coming of a new day did not dispell it. It was such a sorrow as she could not tell, and so she bore it proudly, bitterly, and in silence.

At the midday interval the watchful Mrs. Buchanan prevailed her daughter to go out, to do some simple errands in the town. She generally managed all these matters herself; but the good mother was a skilled physician, and knew how something trivialenough in itself, might clear the atmosphere in a moment and bring out the sunshine. Mrs. Buchanan too was anxious and uneasy; when it seemed now sure that the Reverend Robert must succeed, she thought remorsefully of William, the son of her own training, to whom her house had been so long a second home. She remembered the confidence that there had been between them, and how old ties would have been made stronger and tenderer, had it been he who was the new son; and then she begon ta feel that Mr. Insches, with all his good qualities was a stranger; that he would introduce a new instruling element—that her sole child would be no more her own.

So the mother sent Helen forth with quiet sighs, and Helen went about her errand sadly, the gloom in her heart obscuring the gentle skies of May.

She walked slowly as her manner was in her times of depression, taking in the common sights and sounds around her into the mist in her own heart, where they remained to bring back in other moods remembrances of that dark hour. She had executed all her mother's commissions, and oncluded her business by a visit to Maxwell Dickson's low dark shop on her way home. She got such literature as he had from the librarian of Fondie, and it served now and then to enliven the long solitary evenings—the evenings which were not sufficiently solitary now.

On Maxwell Dickson's counter lay an unbound book, very clean and very new.

WORDS THAT BURN.

TO A PHOTOGRAPH.

Oh, Dick, after all that we've gone through
And suffered together, it does seem hard
That all remaining to me of you
Is this little bit of pictured card,
And a few dear letters yellow with years, And so me books that were pencil-marked by you.

I cannot read them through falling tears, For you were tender and I am true,

I cannot forget the fearful day
You charged by my side through raging

You charged by my sacross shell!

Our knees together—our sabres' play,
Or your maddened face when you saw I fell
With my sword-arm broken; there I lay,
In a little poel from my wounded side,
Till you bore me in your arms away—
But, that you nursed me, I had died.

And ever and always after then
We clung together in march or fight,
And seldom quarrieled like other men;
Your heart was pure as your sword was bright. We prayed with Stonewall and fought again: We followed Stuart, and both are not: Ourselves and swords were with Early when The men in the White House heard his shot.

Always ragged and often starved,
With Jingling spurs on our naked feet,
We helped our hero while he carved.
His cumbered way on the last retreat!
When all was over and Lee had bowed,
Then parted forever the shattered band.
We left that land of weeping loud—
Peace offered the olive, sword in hand.

And together we came to our people dear. ome of the loved ones were not here— And they all had prayed for us as lost. She whom you loved had rassed away— Grieving for you, to the spirit land; My mother looked on the brighter day, And, Dick—your going was near at hand!

Peace offered the clive, sword in hand,

And now you have gone—but I must stay,
With nothing of you but this pictured cardSome books, your letters, your coat of gray;
The heart it covered is still. Oh! hard, wait for the hour with little fear, When my name shall be placed on the n

PARENTS EXPECT GREAT RESULTS.

Never Disappointed When Lactated Food is Used.

Never Disappointed When Lactated Food is Used.

Parents are usually usery chary and cautious regarding the introduction of artificial foods in the home for the babies and young children. The large majority of the foods now offered for sale are totally unfit for infantile nutrition, and are often a source of danger.

Thousands of mothers in Canada have discarded the common foods and are now using the pure Lactated Food with grand results. No other food has saved so many babies' lives, and no other is so well spoken of in every direction.

A recent letter from a Toronto gentleman, Mr. H. Lovelock, dealer in badges, regala, etc., No. 100 Belleville avenue, says:

"I desire to substantiate what is said about Lactated Food. Our little baby is I year old, and if ever a child looked the picture of health and contentment, our dear little pet girl does, and she owes it all to your Lactated Food. She has never known the luxury of a mother's breast. For the first three weeks of her existence we were at a loss to know what to give her as she could keep nothing on her stomach. A kind friend suggested your Food, and from that time to the present, we have constantly used it, and now desire to thank you for your life-giving food.

"I cannot speak too highly of it, and have thought it only just that I should drop you sline or two in appreciation of your efforts on behalf of our darlings.

"Yours very thankfully,"

H. Lovelock."

Among the pains and aches cured with marveious rapidity with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil, is ear ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above aliment, but also to the hutts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, in which the young are specially subject.
