She had heard nothing of the kind, however; this was only put forth as a feeler, but it brought forth a response for which she was wholly unprepared.
"I expect she is," calmly responded Mr. Trowbridge; "but she is going to take care of me all the same. I am to live with her, for—I have adopted her."
"What!" cried Laura, bounding to a ritting resture and actually gasping for at!" cried Laura, bounding to a posture, and actually gasping for

"It's a fact," continued her companion, with a satisfied nod. "I've proved her, and she's turned out to be pure gold through and through. She's been mighty kind to an old fellow who hasn't a friend in the world; I was a crusty old codger, and she's just made everything all sun-shine for me, and what's more, she didn't expect to gain anything by it either. She s as much surprised as anybody when learned that I had plenty of well-d noney-bags, and that she was going

"Well, Laura, you might have been in Agnes' place today if you'd taken the right way," Mr. Trowbridge said, gravely. "You had the chance. I offered to give you a home—an humble one, it is true—but that was only done to try you. If you'd accepted it cheerfully and done the best you could for me, you might have been independent today. But you scorned my offer; you sneered at the old bachelor in his old-fashioned toggery; you turned your nose at his homely way of living, and now you're getting your pay for it. Still, I'll never let any one suffer who is willing to work, and if you'll take a clerkship, I'll find a chance for you tomorrow, and then, if you do well, you shall have a rise by and by."

If Laura had only known what kind of a "rise" he meant, she would doubtless have received his proposition differently, for it was but another test.

But blinded by passion, malice, hatred, and jealousy, she threw aside all self-control and gave free rein to her anger. "A clerkship!" she cried, starting to her feet and confronting him with a and jealousy, she three asks.

"A clerkship!" she cried, starting to her feet and confronting him with a crimson face; "stand behind a counter all day with the common herd! No, you stingy old miser! I'll make my wits serve me a better turn than that!" and with this last fling, she bounced angrily from the room, leaving her visitor alone.

Mr. Trowbridge picked up his hat from the floor, and sat gazing meditatively into it for several minutes.

"Hum! Well, that was pretty vigorously done for an invalid," he finally remarked to some imaginary presence in the bett and with that observation, he had and with that observation, he

Horse-racing like many other things in this vale of tears, is mighty uncertain. The average racing horse, let his pedigree be as long as the moral law, and his past record never so brilliant, is an unknown quantity. Take the Latonia Derby yesterday, for example. A well-known Cincinnati turfman, after carefully reviewing the past record and the present capabilities of the four starters-George C. Bennet's Abe Frank, Charley Ellison's Harry New, and Baker & Gentry's pair, South Trimble and Martin Burke-on Sunday summed up: "Taking all things into consideration, the probabilities are that the result will be, South Trimble, Abe Frank, Martin Burke and Harry New." In this case the last came first. Harry New-in whom even his owner had but little confidence-won the race with ease. Abe Frank, the second named horse, finished a poor last.

Lacrosse has come to stay in London. With a team such as the one 16 to 5 and 6 to 5, 3. Time, 1:52. George Black is putting through its paces, the Forest City will soon come to the front as a lacrosse center. The Londons' victory over the Brants on Saturday convinced the members of the Guild of Knockers that the team is quite as strong, and perhaps a little stronger, than it was said to be. With the new impetus given to the national gan e, it is to be hoped a good crop of "I am afraid I ought not to have such a costly gift," Agnes at last said, with a little quiver in her voice. South Trimble, who was favorite in the betting, coupled with Martin Burke as an entry, finished second, with his stable companion third, Abe Frank, the 1:54. only other starter, finished a poor last. The closing price on the winner was 5 to 1. There was a big play on Harry New, and all the books quit losers to the race. The Derby was devoid of any sensational features. Otis, who rode the winner, allowed his mount to lag along in third position till the stretch was reached, and with a little urging the colt came away from the others and won by five open lengths. South Trimble landed the place handily. Abe Frank made a bid for the money at the head of the stretch, but the heavy impost seemed to tell on his speed, and he dropped back steadily in the end. There promises to be one of the most sensational trotting races of the year at Readville, when the great $10,000 event of 2:07 trotters takes place. The race will come off next September, and the following list of great horses is entered in the big list:

Lord Derby, 2:06½; Chain Shot, 2:06½; Boralma, 2:07; Charley Herr, 2:07; Dolly Dillon, 2:07; Peter the Great, 2:0714; Onward Silver, 2:08; The Monk, 2:081/4, and Elata, 2:083/4. There has never been such a field of great trotters entered in a trotting event in recent years, and it will, very likely, prove one of the great races of the year. Each one of the horses is reported to be in fine condition, and, if they all come to the wire in good shape, the race will certainly be a race of kings. STARTER FITZGERALD AND THE

in every race and watches things in an official capacity. He has the power to report any acts of disobedience on

For a time the new method of starting was severely criticised, but the fault-finding has subsided. It was argued at first that the no-recall system was a big advantage to the bookmakers, because it was possible for public choices to be left at the post. Several favorities were left, too, which caused a loud chorus of protests, but later on as both jockeys and horses became accustomed to the plan of action, those unfortunate things did not happen. In favor of the system much can now be said. - There are no long delays at the post such as that which killed Banastar's chances for the Suburban when Danny Maher had the mount several years ago. Then it was frequently the case that a field of a dozen horses would stand for an hour at the post before they could be sent away in fair alignment. In that way top weights were tired out and thereby had their chances ruined. Nowadays there is seldom a delay of more than five or ten minutes, which means that crowds do not grow impatient and horses do not tire under their burdens. It is up to the jockeys to get away when the starter says the word. To get the fields off is a simple matter too. It is just a question of getting the horses to take their allotted positions in front of the machine, stand still and then bound forward. Big Race Tracks. The no-recall system was introduced on the Metropolitan tracks at the sug-The no-recall system was introduced

OLD PEOPLE

Have a charm of their own when they are not weak and feeble, but hale and hearty, enjoying the sports and pleasures of youth though they cannot participate in them. The whole secret of a sturdy old age is this: Keep the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in per-fect order. The young man who does not think of his stomach will be made to think of it as he grows old. It is the weak" stomach, incapable of supplying the adequate nutrition for the body, which causes the weakness and feeble-

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes the "weak" stomach strong, and so enables the body to be fully nourished and strengthened by the food which is eaten.

BOXING.

THE APPROACHING BIG FIGHT. Just two months from Sunday last Champion Jim Jefferies and Lanky Bob Fitzsimmons will meet in the ring at San Francisco if nothing happens in the meantime to prevent the muchtalked-of match taking place. For months the two big fellows have over the champion, and has a large and loyal band of followers who are of the same opinion. On the other hand, the majority of the sporting men throughout the country look upon Fitz as being too old to hold his own against such a sturdy specimen physical development as the California giant, and predict an easy victory for the present holder of the championship. pelled to adopt some rather novel in the Eastern League, is hitting at a ting on the outcome, although Jeff will undoubtedly be a hot favorite. Those who back Fitz will not be taking such The lanky Cornishman is a man of into consideration, but withal there is no reason why he should not put up a good fight against Jeff. Jim Jefferies is a marvelously clever young fellow and should win the coming fight, but Robert J. Fitzsimmons is not a bad betting proposition by any means .-

Cincinnati Inquirer. LAVIGNE'S COMING CONTEST. There are hundreds of well-posted sporting men who still hold the opinion that Kid Lavigne, in his prime, was the best fighter ever seen in the American prize ring. Lavigne, after losing the championship to Frank Erne, fell by the wayside and was given up by many as a hopless has been. brother Billy, however, was among those who still had faith in the Kid's ability, and made him stop drinking and take care of himself. On next Thursday night Lavigne meets Jimmy Britt, San Francisco lightweight. The didn't hurt his hitting in those April Kid's friends expect him to win over Britt, and if successful in the attempt he will be matched with Joe Gans. ROOT-GARDNER FIGHT IS OFF. The Jack Root-George Gardner finish deserters from the National camp who at Carson City, Nev., early in July has fallen through.
