

FOR A MILLION OF MONEY

BY ARTHUR W. MARCHMONT
Author of "By Right of Sword," "When I Was Czar," etc., etc.
Copyrighted, 1908.

At supper, when Olive had to eat a number of sour menses which, as a German, she was supposed to enjoy, Anna said that Herr Rosenfeld had called and would return. When he came, the two men had a talk about the project, Olive sat listening intently, drinking in every word, and fixing every detail in her memory for future use.

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAN.

NO. 5648—A PRETTY COMBINATION UNDERGARMENT.

An unusually attractive design for an undershirt and corset cover combined, is here pictured in a development of pattern, trimmed with narrow lace. The garment is made to slip on over the head, and is gathered at the neck in front, and may hang free from the shoulders or be tucked at the waistline, thus doing away with all unnecessary fullness. Cambric, longcloth, lawn and wash silk are all used for the making, and hand embroidery, Valenciennes lace, Swiss embroidery and medallions may all be used in the decoration. For a woman 36-inch bust measure, 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material will be required.

Ladies' Chemise or Corset Cover and Undershirt Combined, No. 5648—Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure.

A pattern of the above illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents.

SAVE THE CHILDREN

Insure Them Good Health.

Ninety per cent of children, under 12 years of age, are being poisoned and parents don't realize it.

Irregular bowels are the chief cause. You parents know that your bowels should move every day. You know you must be as regular as clock-work, or the blood will become tainted.

Don't you realize that the children must be as regular in getting rid of the waste matter of their system? Then, if you find that any of the little ones go two or three days without action of the bowels, don't run to doctor, or give them any of those "fruit-a-tives" tablets. Those simply purge the child—strain the bowels.

"Fruit-a-tives" are the ideal medicine for children. They are fruit juices and tonics in the form of a pleasant-tasting tablet. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulate the liver, causing more bile to flow. It is the bile, given up by the liver, which moves the bowels. "Fruit-a-tives" regulate the liver and bowels and thus completely cure constipation. They sweeten the stomach, and are the finest tonic in the world to build up the system and make children plump and rosy.

But you speak English, don't you? "Oh, yes, well, and understand; but not so well as my own language," she answered, with a smile.

"Well, what you have to do is this. The minister will return from Berlin in about two days, and bring back with him his secretary, the Hon. John Fenwick. In the meantime, you must get the run of the house."

"The run of the house? What is that?" And Olive crinkled up her brows in perplexity.

"Find out everything that concerns the way in which papers are brought to the house from the foreign office; who brings them; where they are taken; where the minister does his business relations; what hours; whom he sees; whether he is alone when he reads them, and if not, who is with him; how they are taken back to the office; and whether they are ever left in the house all night. You understand this?"

"It is very simple," declared Olive, with a shrug. "A child could do it. I thought I was to get some papers."

"Oh, no. Those which we have to get are sure to be kept at the foreign office. But we have to get all this information in order to make our plans to find the opportunity we need."

Olive laughed lightly. "I thought there was something difficult to do," she said to Karl. "Dangerous, perhaps, but this," and she threw up her hands. "How long do I remain there?"

"Until you have found out what we wish. You will have some time off, and then you can meet Karl, and tell him. You won't mind that part, at any rate," he added, with his unpleasant smile.

"I shall want some dress of a servant."

"That is all ready. A box will be sent to the house tomorrow afternoon. You will be at the house, 320 Cromwell Gardens, South Kensington, at 3 o'clock tomorrow, and will ask for Mrs. Grimston. Tell her you are Olga Schmidt, the new housemaid; that you have just come from Madame Boncourt's country house in Lichfield, traveling up by the Great Northern Railway. You won't forget all this?"

"I have memory," replied Olive. "Ask for your box, and say you sent it on by the railway. You will find all you need in it. As for the rest, you must trust your own wits."

"Do this well, Fraulein, and there will be ample work for you in the future. But I know you will do your utmost for Karl's sake here. I shall tell Mr. Mawford the high opinion I have formed of our new comrade."

Karl himself was in high spirits at the result of the meeting; and as they returned to the little house in Brixton, he was full of the success Olive had scored.

"There is something I don't understand, Karl," said Olive, after a while. "Why is that Mr. Franks so much better dressed than the rest? Has he more money? Where is this Whitehall avenue where he lives with Mr. Mawford? Is it a poor place like ours?"

"It is only dress, Rosa," he replied. "We all share alike in everything. But some of us must appear to be rich, and live in good society to find the work for us all to do."

"You really mean that you share everything—everything you have?" "I will tell you. We had once a man with us, named Cooper. An American from Denver. A shrewd, clever man, who put us on to many good things in the old time in Chicago. We all liked him, too. But he went crooked at last. We found he was getting money, plenty of it, and keeping it to himself. Gideon Mawford found it out by accident; Cooper was the leader in those days; and Gideon told us." His eyes had a steady light as he said this; an expression Olive had not seen in them before.

"Well," he asked, as he paused. "It was not well with him," he answered, with a short, significant laugh. "We taxed him with it; he lied; we proved it; and—well, Gideon shot him. Since then, there has been no trouble of that sort. I assure you."

Olive felt a chill at the story, and the tone in which it was told; but she answered in a hard, unfeeling voice: "Served him right. He was a traitor. But I suppose you mean you share only the proceeds of your work?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. Everything to the last dollar, no matter where it comes from or how it is got. It is a brotherhood, and we are Socialists to a man." "Then what little I have would be shared?"

"If we needed it, yes," he said, very decidedly. "Without that law, we could not work together. But it would not be much, I'm afraid, Rosa," he laughed. "I wish I were rich," she said, slowly.

"I don't; for then I might never have known you."

There was a long pause, during which Olive was thinking of Gilbert Merridew's act in shooting the leader for the very self-same thing he himself was now doing. "And this Madame Boncourt, Karl, who is she?" she asked, at length.

A woman of genius, Rosa, as you will see when you meet her. She plays a dozen parts, and all successfully. She plans all the big things we do, and works so cleverly that rarely ever do we fail now. It wasn't always so. She has much more money than the rest of us; she is the exception, but it is necessary, because she has to appear rich in order to win the confidence of those from whom she gains the knowledge that helps us."

"What is she like, Karl?" "Continuous," he laughed. "I am not good at describing. She is little, dark, ordinary looking. But she is clever. A genius, I tell you. Sometimes French, sometimes German—anything. She speaks a dozen languages as naturally as you speak your own, and much better than you speak English. She is wonderful!"

"You make me long to see her, Karl." This was true enough; and although there were many other questions she would have liked to ask about Madame, Olive deemed it best to restrain her curiosity.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Valuable Prescription To Get Relief Which Anyone Can Prepare at Home.

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease, which is no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it is not distinct disease in itself, but a symptom caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift these poisons and acids out and keep the blood clean and pure. The kidneys, however, are of sponge-like substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure become clogged and inactive, and as a result, in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving, too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy, and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

FURNACE ACCIDENT

MOULDER'S HAND INJURED

Mr. William Burdett who works for the Canadian Westinghouse Co., at Hamilton, and resides at 198 Simcoe Street East, says: "As the direct result of a heavy mould being rolled over, as I was assisting other workmen to lift a furnace, I sustained a severe injury to my left hand. Had this mould fallen it would undoubtedly have crushed both fingers and hand, as it was, I escaped with a bruised, blackened, and much swollen member. By the next morning my hand was so cramped and stiffened it was impossible to hold or lift any object. By noon the same day there was no improvement, although my hand had been bathed and well rubbed with liniments we had in the house. My wife having used Zam-Buk previous to this, now persuaded me to send for a box, which I did. Regular applications of this ointment well rubbed in over the injured and swollen member, soon drew out all discolorations, banished the swelling and worked so effectively that by the beginning of the week my hand was well again and I could go to work. I have suffered no inconvenience since and would recommend Zam-Buk to all workmen." The secret of Zam-Buk's clean and painless healing lies in the fact that it imitates Nature's own "healing by first intention." It is composed of pure vegetable saps and juices, which soothe the pain and allay inflammation by effective antiseptic and germicidal action. No tetter should be without it!
