

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—“I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

“When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house.”—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb.—“Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls.”—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Germany complain that a British submarine has sunk a German merchant vessel in the Baltic without warning, whether true or false, they show remarkable cynicism in complaining, in view of their own record.

Montreal Herald-Telegraph: The crown prince of Germany declared the other day that he was “longing for the joyful life of offensive battle.” According to the latest bulletin, he now appears to be longing for rose-water to bathe his fevered brow.

Britain has a good case to lay before the world's judgment in the great war, and in the firm, courteous and measured statements of Sir Edward Grey she has her case presented in a way that must be a matter of envy, even to her bitterest opponents.

Some newspaper critics seem inclined to question the wisdom of the “Patriotism and Production” campaign last winter because the farmers are not likely to get famine prices for their bumper crops. But surely it is best for all that there should be an ample supply of foodstuffs at moderate prices. The primary object of the campaign was not to make fortunes for the farmers, but to ensure that the British Empire should have a sufficient supply of food. On this score there is now no need of apprehension; and the farmers of Canada are to be commended for what they have done towards contributing to this end. But it is no more desirable in the interest of the common cause that farmers should make undue profits than that manufacturers should do so. There has not been heard among the farmers in this district a disposition to regret that the anticipated famine prices, which would have worked terrible hardships in the towns, particularly among the unemployed, and those on fixed or reduced incomes, have not materialized.—Ex.

Dresden Times: “Miss Leone McFadden and Wm. Slack spent over Sunday with Miss Carrie McIntyre, townline.” The foregoing item, which appeared in last week's issue and was sent to this office over the telephone, was altogether untrue.

Now and then items like the above are sent to the Press which are not only untrue but are an insult to the parties concerned. It is generally the work of some smart alec of the neighborhood, who desires to create talk at the expense of others and to the embarrassment of the publisher. Even the most careful editor sometimes gets caught unawares, and if the law as it at present stands does not make the author of such items subject to prosecution, it should be amended with this end in view.

It was recently deemed expedient to call upon the native chiefs south of Khartum to make a public declaration of loyalty to the British Crown. They were all brought up before the Sirdar, Sir Reginald Wingate, and all made the required declaration without comment, except one old chief, who asked if he might put a question. Permission to do so was given. “Well,” said the chief, “how many British troops are there now in Egypt?” Sir Reginald smiled at the directness of the poser, but gave the number of divisions. It was pretty substantial. And when the old chief heard it he said, without a movement of his face, that he would certainly protest his loyalty to such a vigorous government.

Many a middle-aged man of Canadian birth going back to the scenes of his boyhood looks and listens in vain for evidence of the presence of black squirrels, of which the woods seemed to be so full when he was one of their persecutors. Their human enemies and their racial enemies, the red squirrels, proved too much for them, and now the red squirrel is also becoming scarce. It is true, the black squirrel is reappearing timidly in some of his old haunts. This is because in those regions the game law is not disregarded, says a writer in the Toronto Mail and Empire. With a little encouragement, black squirrels would gradually people the woods from which they have departed. The example of the county of Waterloo ought to be generally adopted. Instead of being treated as vermin, the black squirrels ought to be fostered for their very edible flesh and for their skin.

The Baby-Killers' Protest

The Germans are protesting against the use of colored or “native” troops in the present conflict. And the complaint is on the ground that these troops are not civilized. Ye gods, and little fishes! Not civilized! And this from a people whose soldiers have broken every code of civilized warfare—from poisoning water to bayoneting little children and throwing them over their shoulders to gain a ribald laugh from the near-by troops. Well, it is some satisfaction to know that these fellows are getting what is coming to them.

WOMEN RARELY STAMMER.

And This is a Fact That Puzzles the Medical Experts.

Have you ever known a woman who stammered? It is very doubtful.

The fact that those afflicted with stammering are a hundred men to one woman is one of the most curious things in the science of pathology. Even the specialists in nervous troubles are utterly at a loss to account for this peculiarity. One eminent specialist says that in all his vast experience he has only known one woman to suffer from stammering. Stammering is a nervous affliction of the organs of speech, and the victim is usually a person of highly strung temperament. Where there is not any real reason for this trouble, the cause usually lies in the mind—that is, the stammerer stammers because he fears he will stammer.

Now, women are much more prone to nervous disorders, and this makes their immunity from the trouble all the more remarkable. For some mysterious reason their nervousness affects the organs of speech only in very rare cases. Stammering is said by some medical authorities not to be due at all to any defect in the organs of speech, but to come under the head of a bad functional disease.

Another peculiarity is that a person who may stammer badly in ordinary conversation can sing excellently and without hesitation.—London Answers.

LAUNCHING A VESSEL.

A Matter of Mathematics. With a Vast Amount of Calculation.

The launching of a vessel is primarily a matter of mathematics. In a ship of immense size it calls for a vast amount of calculation before the first step is taken in the actual work.

In the first place, the specific gravity of the vessel must be figured out so as to allow for the various strains to which the hull is subjected on its slanting journey into the water, with its sudden plunge as the bow drops from the ways.

An enormous amount of data must be collected to fix this center of gravity. The weight of all the material that has gone into the vessel up to the time of the launching, the distribution of this weight, the weight of chains and anchors and other material placed on board preparatory to the launch must all be considered.

When the center of gravity is fixed the successful shipbuilder knows just how to build his launching ways and just where to strengthen them. He knows then by a little calculation how long each part of the vessel will be subjected to certain strains and how best to prepare for them. He can figure almost to the second how long the ship will be in sliding into the water.—Exchange.

Getting Even.

The belle of the little town was getting married, and among the spectators was the reporter of the local newspaper. He was a miserable man. He had wanted to marry the bride, but the other man had cut him out. But he got even. This is what he wrote:

“The bride was radiant in a beautiful lavender silk frock, orange blossoms and veil and long, long white gloves, size 9 and split at the thumbs.

“The groom was as straight as a suit made by the best tailor could make him and as red in the face as was to be expected from boots two sizes too small and a fifteen inch collar round a seventeen inch neck. Fortunately before the ceremony was over his collar stud broke and saved him from choking to death.”—London Answers.

The Key of Death.

The “key of death” is apparently a large key which is shown among the weapons at the arsenal at Venice. It was invented by Tibaldo, who, disappointed in love, designed this instrument for the destruction of his rival. The key is so constructed that the handle may be turned around, revealing a small spring, which being pressed a very fine needle is driven with considerable force from the other end. This needle is so very fine that the flesh closes over the wound immediately, leaving no mark, but the death of the victim from poison is almost instantaneous.

Wasn't She Right?

The lesson in natural history had been about the rhinoceros, and the teacher wanted to know how well the lesson had been learned.

“Now, name something,” she said, “that is very dangerous to get near to and that has horns.”

“I know, teacher, I know!” called little Annie Jones.

“Well, Annie, what is it?”

“An automobile.”—Ladies' Home Journal.

Lambton Horticultural Exhibition

A number of special attractions, which should prove of interest to every fruit grower, have been secured for the Lambton County Horticultural Exhibition, which takes place in Sarnia, on October 27, 28, 29. Several firms, well known in Canada, have already applied for space in which to exhibit appliances connected with the fruit and vegetable growing industry. These exhibits will include potato machinery, spray outfits, spray materials, fertilizers, pruning tools, nursery stock and other materials of interest to fruit men.

Among the educational exhibits, of which several have been secured from various Departments, none will prove more interesting than an exhibit of market packages. This exhibit was a feature of the Government display at Toronto Exhibition. The exhibit will be in charge of F. C. Hart, Director of the Co-operation and Markets Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Other educational features will include an exhibit of insects pests and fungus diseases attacking fruit and vegetable crops. A large poultry exhibit, featuring model poultry houses, incubators, feeding devices, etc., will be on display. Also an exhibit in charge of S. C. Johnson, Provincial Vegetable Specialist, illustrating progressive culture.

An exhibition of representative manufactured products of Lambton County will be held in the Arena
