

The Interpreter

In relations between peoples speaking different languages, especially when such peoples are joined as allies, competent interpreters are requisite for intelligent co-operation.

Qualifications for an interpreter consist largely in a correct knowledge of the language, the different points of view, and the mental habits of each people to whom he acts as interpreter.

With its news bureaus, its advertising offices, and its circulation all over the world, The Christian Science Monitor is able to gather and express correct knowledge of all peoples, and all viewpoints, and, speaking the language of Principle understandable to all peoples—it is the interpreter of those ideals toward which the world is being so rapidly impelled today.

Intelligent co-operation in the exposition and solution of the world's menacing problems can be extended by encouraging the reading and circulation of this daily interpreter.

The Christian Science Monitor, 3c a copy, is on general sale throughout the world at news stands, hotels and Christian Science reading rooms. Yearly subscription by mail anywhere in the world, $9.00, or one month trial subscription for 75c.
