HISTORICAL NOTICES OF JESUITISM.—Jesuitism was legalized by the bull of Pope Paul III., 1540. Its inventor, Ignatius Loyola, triumphed over all the opposition which was made to his scheme, by adding a novel vow to those which were then professed by the monastic orders. To the three vows "to maintain chastity, obedience, and poverty," Ignatius subjoined, unqualified submission to the Sovereign Pontiff. Hence the government of the Jesuits is an absolute monarchy. For every thing is decided by the sole decree of the General. Ignatius was the first, and Lainez the second Master of the Order. In the Council of Trent, Lainez contended that the council had no right to reform the court of Rome, that annutes and taxes were paid to the Pope by divine right, and that Jesus Christ having the authority to dispense with all sorts of laws, the Pope, his vicar, has the same authority.

The Jesuits speedily established themselves in Europe, Asia, and America; penetrated into all classes of society; wheedled the people by the exterior forms of devotion; and applied themselves above all things to cajole the great; by which they acquired vast power, and ruled their masters.

In one of the French Colleges, over the altar, they placed a famous painting which illustrated their ambitious schemes. The Church was represented as a ship, on board of which appeared the Pope, Cardinals, Prelates, and all the Papal hierarchy, while the rudder was held by the Jesuits.

At a very early period after the establishment of the order, the civil and ecclesiastical authorities of France proclaimed that "the society was dangerous to the Christian faith, disturbers of the peace, and more fitted to corrupt than to edify."
