

The East End baseball boys got their heads together last night and decided to play two games tomorrow, as originally scheduled. It had been decided to play only one game on account of the military exercises in the afternoon.

Toronto, the silent (?), is again in the lead, and everybody's happy, even if the other Canadian entry, Montreal, is running a race for "cellar" honors.

In the National League, Bowerman leads the batters. Youngs has two more points than the big fellow, but has played in ten less games. Bates, of Boston, is the king pin in run getting, and Wagner has the most base bases charged up to him. Seymour excels in long hits, Magee tied with Wagner for third place. The Phillies lead in long hits by clubs.

Bob Edgren, in the New York World, says:

Gameness is a trait brought out in other professions than boxing. I stood in the paddock yesterday after the big race and saw the jockeys come staggering back to their quarters. They literally staggered. And it wasn't the nervous and physical exhaustion alone that made them reel unsteadily. They could hardly see.

Jockey Miller came along with the rest. A man stepped up and took his arm to guide him. Miller, with his eyes full of black, gritty sand, fairly blinded by the flying mud of the track, could hardly see where he was going. And all of the others in every race of the day were in the same plight. Imagine what gameness it takes to ride a race out, fighting all the way, under such conditions!

The track was hard underneath, but covered with a thin ooze of sand and mud. The flying hoofs threw this up in splattering showers. The jockeys, leaning far over their horses' necks and staring straight ahead, with every nerve stretched, could not flinch. A single swerve of a second's duration might lose or win a great race, reputation, thousands of dollars. They could not close their eyes. They could not even blink or raise a hand to brush away the mud that was gradually smutting out their sight. To lose that sight entirely might mean a sudden collision, a throw, and then the terrible tramping under steel-shod hoofs. But still, with blurred sight and straining eyes, they fought it out, hoping only that they would be able to see until the finish line was passed.

And they were not old enough to know fear.

It was rumored last night that Amos would not start in the Y. M. C. A. road race tomorrow. This morning the little fellow stated that he did not think he would run in the Y. M. C. A. races, but that he intended to enter the two-mile team race to be put on at Queen's Park at 3 p.m. on Friday in connection with the military day. Amos also took occasion to remark that if he did decide to run in the morning he would have to travel a few to take a place, as the other entries had been allowed a handicap of four minutes over him. "That," said he, "is an awful start to give a man in a five-mile contest." And it is, but the idea of giving such a large handicap is a very good one, inasmuch as it will give some of the younger runners an opportunity of taking first place in the event, and thereby encourage the boys to enter the other races in the future. Amos is a good fellow, and no one begrudges him his well-earned laurels, but he has shown such a decided superiority over the other local runners in distance events that he is practically conceded first honors in any event run on even grounds that he enters. For sport's sake it were better if the honors were more equally distributed.

SOUTHPAW.

[Written Specially for The Advertiser by J. V. McAree.]

It is safe to say that not many old country horsemen would have lost money on Sea Wall in the King's Plate race, for the very good reason that they make it a rule to avoid backing mares in the spring. Here any such prejudice is unknown, and the better does not trouble himself about the sex of a horse. It is usually the colors of the owner or some equally important circumstance that concerns him, and influences his judgment, and so we have such results as Kelvin, 10 to 1, and even as long as 40 to 1, running unbacked.

The "dope" of the race fails to explain the disappointing run of Mr. Beck's Photographer, made second choice at 3 to 1 by the public. There are three theories, any one of which would serve: The horse may have been not fit; he may not be a stayer, or his fast trial before the race may have taken the razor-edge off his speed. He was not interfered with, and ran in front for most of the journey, but then he faltered and went back to his horses, to finish behind the Kirkfield pair. Either one of the Mackenzie starters would have got a position in another furlong, for they were closing on the tiring Billberry.

The owner of the plate winner is probably the youngest on the long list of horsemen who have won this coveted prize. Ambrose Wood, who practically unknown, "Pud" Woods is one of the best-known names in Toronto among the sporting crowd. "Pud" is only about 20 years old, and keeps a liquor store on Dundas street. He recently married a daughter of Abe Orpen, the noted sporting character. One of his brothers, under the nickname of "Soapy," is an advertising man known from one end of Canada to the other, while an equally expressive nickname—"Bohoo"—also adorned Mr. Woods' father, who was once a Toronto alderman. "Pud" is of the half-fellow type and his victory is very popular.

To the non-initiated, the circumstance that Kelvin was bought a couple of years ago for $100 seems a remarkable fact, and adds a smack of romance to the race. As a matter of fact, that is about what a winner of the King's Plate should cost. If Kelvin were put up at auction he would sell for perhaps a couple of thousand dollars, but on the strength chiefly of his appearance, and his stout breeding; he is a better horse than the average winner of the stake. Where are the horses of other years? How many of them have done anything for the horse-breeding industry of the country? Could Mr. Seagram tomorrow auction off his stable, lock, stock and barrel, and get as much per head for his thoroughbreds as Eaton's store could get for its delivery horses, also per head? Think it out and mail answers to the society editor.

By next year, we are told, there will be another King's Plate open to foals dropped in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. There is no question about the sporting blood of the west.

and the race would be sure of a good entry. Moreover, the probability is that in ten years there would be a better class of horse running there than in the east, for the simple reason that it comes natural to a westerner to demand a good article and to "unbelt" correspondingly. If the race is established it is to be hoped that the eastern pattern of King's Plate races will not be too slavishly copied. It has been a tremendous success, socially, but as a stimulus to raising a better type of horses, it has been a flat failure.

GIANTS EVENED UP WITH CUBS

Trimmed Champions Easily, Knocking Overall Out of the Box.

New York, May 22.—Overall, Chicago's jumbo pitcher, who had won about fifteen consecutive games for the Cubs was knocked from the throne in the fifth inning of today's game at the Polo grounds. Not only did he make forced abdication from the box, but his winning streak, dating back to last grass or some other medieval period, was severed. Outplayed and beaten on the merits of the strife in the first game, New York turned around today and played a much better ball in every respect than the Chicago. They gave the Cubs a harder lacing than that team is in the habit of getting, scoring seven runs, five in one inning. The Chicago plumes dropped greatly after those five runs, and they finished the game with little sign of fight. Nobody was mobbed.

McGinnity's excellent pitching threw a wet blanket over Chicago's hopes. The iron one kept the hits scattered, and it was only by grace of his easing up that the Cubs scored at all. There was not much pepper or dash in the game, but several sparks between players. Steinfield and Chance both assailed McGraw verbally, when walking back from first base to the bench, and there was a scrap between Tinker and Seymour at second base. In the third inning, Seymour went into the back field first, the men fell over each other, and Tinker declared that Seymour had tried to spike him. He shook his gloved hand. In Seymour's face, told the latter what he thought of him, and Si replied in kind. O'Day brushed the pair apart and bade them cease squabbling. The ancient lemon incident cropped out several times today. Lemons came singly and in showers at the Chicago players. This was so prodigiously funny that at least three persons laughed.

A POPULAR WIN AT THE WOODBINE

Merry England Redeems Himself for His Defeat on Monday by Preen.

Toronto, May 22.—Warmer weather greeted racegoers at the Woodbine today. The attendance was the largest of the week. The sun came out just before the first race and made it pleasant for everybody. The track was fast and every condition was favorable for good racing.

The bookmakers were laid out in orderly fashion today beyond the iron fence. They formed a three-sided square with the public in the inclosure. The plan worked beautifully. The pencils all stood in line and it proved a great convenience to the betting public, both in placing and cashing their wagers. There were only three starters in the fifth race, the Leamington handicap. Main Chance and Temerair were scratched, leaving Inferno, Col. Jack and Sir Edward to run for the purse. There were seven races on the card, the first event having been split in twain, the second half being run as the seventh race.

The victory of Merry England in the first race was very popular, as the Scotman champion is a great favorite with Toronto racegoers. He redeemed himself for his defeat on Monday by Preen and showed conclusively today that the victory of the Clyde horse on that occasion was more or less of a fluke. The public choice in two days, which was followed in the second race by the success of another favorite, Oscar T. Summary:

THE TIRE WILL ENFORCE LAW.
Buffalo, May 22.—Sheriff James Smith when asked today if he was going to call on Governor Hughes regarding betting on racetracks, replied in the negative, but added that his lawyer was looking up the law.

"If the bookmaking and the selling of pools at the racetrack must stop, you can depend upon it that it will be stopped. The law will be enforced both in letter and spirit."

Asked what he would do if he made arrests and the justice of the peace let his prisoners go, the sheriff said: "I'll take steps to have them removed."

PEDESTRIANISM.

A LONG WALK.

St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—Wm. A. Smith and Richard C. Belle, who have accomplished several feats of pedestrianism, started today to walk from St. Louis to the Jamestown Exposition, which they expect to reach Aug. 19. The distance is about 2,800 miles. The walk is in the nature of a race. The general route extends to Helena, Ariz., where the Mississippi River will be crossed, thence to Alabama, Atlanta, Ga., the capitals of the two Carolinas, thence to Jamestown. Railroad tracks will be followed to avoid hills. The race will end at the exposition. Several years ago Belle accomplished a "cross-country" walk from St. Louis to New York. Smith has mostly confined his efforts to track work.

It's Time to Think of Bicycle Riding

Nothing ever happened the bicycle. Nothing ever came along to fill its place. Nothing ever turned up to make the bicycle less useful than it always has been. Nothing in the final outcome of the wide and general use of the bicycle ever tended to show that it is not a most handy vehicle for speedy and direct locomotion, as well as for healthy, pleasant exercise.

It is a good guess to say that the falling off in the once surprising enthusiasm for the bicycle was owing to its having reached a fixed standard of construction and equipment. Every year used to bring around a new feature of improvement for the bicycle. When invention along this line ceased the buying of bicycles lost its novelty.

Once all bicycles were hard tires. If invention had stayed there the bicycle fever would have cooled off in 1888. But in that year Dunlop Pneumatic Tires were introduced and interest in the bicycle took a fresh new start.

And in this season of 1907 Dunlops once more put out a new style of tire as an improvement to the bicycle. In general features it is the same "these are the only tools you need" tire, but it is made by the Doughty Process—a valuable patent controlled exclusively by the Dunlop Company.

Smooth, noiseless riding over rough spots you could not take on your hard tires. Well, renew that pleasure and try these Doughty-made tires.
