A Handkerchief Collection.

Dear Miss Grey,—I have never written to your circle before, but I enjoy what others have written very much. Your column has one serious fault—that is, it is not long enough. How many readers agree with me in this?

I see so many people asking for things, so may I ask a favor too? I see so many people asking for things, so may I ask a favor too? I am making a collection of lace-edged, fancy-cornered and slik handkerchiefs. May I ask the readers to make it larger for my birthday, December 22? I will write and tell you all how many I have for a good sleep, but Tom and Jerry thirteen now. I hope in my next letter

I see so many people asking for things, so may I ask a favor too? I am making a collection of lace-edged, fancy-cornered and silk handkerchiefs. May I ask the readers to make it larger for my birthday, December 22? I will write and tell you all how many I have received before February I, 1919. I have thirteen now. I hope in my next letter I can say more than that. I just love getting a lot of letters on mail days. Every one counts. In return, with thanks ahead, I'll send a good gingerbread recipe: Half cup butter, one cup granulated sugar, one tablespoon ginger, two eggs well beaten, one cup molasses, plnch of salt, one teaspoon soda, one cup cold water, three cups flour. Mix in order. What is the meaning of Ethel, also Rogers. I think Ura Kidd a fine looking young lady. Hoping my collection is enlarged greatly by Christmas. May I call again? Best wishes to all.

BLUE-EYED BETHIE.

Ans.—It is not customary in our Mall-Box to ask for things of such value as silk handkerchiefs. However, your letter is printed, and anyone who pleases is free to mail you one. Ethel means "a princess," or nobly born.

Another Card for "Loop."

Dear Miss Grey,—Just happened to have one leather postcard, so am inclosing it for "Loop." It is not very pleasant looking, is it? However, it may answer the purpose.

Page of Interest to Women BIG CONVENTION OF U.F.W. IN TORONTO DECEMBER 18-19

Margery Mills Urges Farm Women of Western Ontario To Att end.

And now for our convention—the first one for the U. F. W. O. We are hoping to learn a great deal about aims and ways and means when we meet in Toronto December 18 and 19.

By the way, though, we are still nominally but honorary members of the Farmers' Association. The U. F. O. executive, however, has given us official recognition inasmuch as we are to have an hour of Wednesday evening's session, during which time the president and secretary and one of the members of the standing committee will address the joint meeting of the conventions.

Plan to come to this meeting if possible. Every club may send a delegate for every 20 paid-up members, whose for every 20 paid-up descriptions, with must be sent the secretary-treasurer, Miss Emma Griesbach, of Collingwood, and do not fear to express them.

Dumb at Meetings.

J often get completely out of patience with many bright women of my acquaintance, when I sit down and talk with them. They are brimful of fine, helpful suggestions, but get them into a meeting and the proverbial oyster does not excel them in dumbness. They are afraid to speak up, distrust their really good ability, and leave the work to be done, very often, by other women who really are less clever, but who believe in themselves.

We do not for season tides and they considered ourselves such, the danger of our being forced mit really and session, the danger of our being to act as though we considered ourselves such, the danger of our being forced mit really and session, at the proper day and organized and organizing in sufficient numbers, and wisely enough to accuent plenty long the accuent of the form the proper day an

Might win By fearing to attempt."

You will find at the convention a group of farm women, like yourselves, anxious to get a grasp of the situation which faces them, that together they may intelligently face it and dominate it.

Tell me what I can say to the average farm woman of Ontario to induce her to see, as others can see, that as she is so capable in what she has hitherto regarded as her world, her sphere, she can and should use her ability in the wider sphere which is hers for the entering, in the big world of which her them is a part.

Must Have Wider Vision.

So here we are, repeating again, that we need, we must have, wider vision of our own abilities, of the relationship which we and our homes bear to the nation as a whole, and of the responsibility which attaches to the shutting of our eyes to the opportunities which invite and challenge us to embrace them.

A great eye specialist prescribes the "far-away look" to rest the tired eyes. Those of us who have tried the prescription know its value. And to our tired leyend is such a rest.

Too Many Marthas.

There are two few Marys and too many Marthas among us. Now, Marthas mistake in her being completely occupied with trivial "duties," while the great opportunity which war grasped was unheeded. I have no doubt that Mary shouldered her full

They had he honey they had brought tied up in big plantain leaf so that it would the Beaver's house. All this noise soon woke up all of Beavertown, the very smallost of the Beavers were crying, and were scared to death; and the older children were too excited to say a word, for they knew that Tom Beaver's plan was working and, while they trembled, they enjoyed every minute of it all.

Every blessed Beaver in that house was awake, and every one in the whole of Beavertown, too.

Father Beaver was excited, and he became worn out, with all this noise and worry after a hard night's work at the dam. All the little children were crying and fussing and scared to death and that was almost too much for Father Beaver.

"What makes old Mr. Bear come back? I thought when he fell off the roof, the last time, it would be enough for him!" said Father Beaver, "I can't think what's the matter! Mother Beaver, for mercy's sake keep those children quiet; he can't get in. Now I'll go up in the attic and see what he is doing!"
