REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

How Lillian Planned To Out-Manoeuvre Rita Brown.

"All bunk, my dear," she returned smiling at my amazed face. "But don't you ever dare to tell that to the blicky-bird. If I had to, I could work with a sawmill going one side of me and a Belgian relief sewing bee on the other—and that's just what I would be up against if I didn't put that temperamental bluff," she added whin-sically. "My studio would be full all the time, and nobody would be more of a nuisance than Dicky, bless his heart—he's such a gregarious soul.
"But ally that's for ordinary times," She squared her shoulders as if confronting a difficult situation. "This is something unusual. When you go home tonight tell Dicky I want him to run up to see me tomorrow. I'd call him myself only I don't want him to get an inkling of my real purpose before an inkling of my real purpose before an inkling of my real purpose before in the factor."
