Salvation Army Emigration Official, Here Today, Emphasizes Need

Ensign Herbert Hill, Salvation Army emigration official, of London, Eng., who arrived in the city Saturday from Western Canada, emphasized, in an interview with a Times-Star reporter, the need of more advertising of the Maritimes in the British Isles. While he has made previous trips to this country, this is his first visit to the Maritimes and he expressed great surprise at the lack of propaganda regarding this territory in the Old Country. The average emigrant, he said, hears very little of this part of the Dominion but is fairly well versed in matters pertaining to Western Canada, New Zealand and Australia. Naturally, the tendency was to cook appropriate the control of the control o ally the tendency was to seek employ ment in the West when coming to

He said that it was about 28 years since his brother John, as a small boy, became interested in motor boat engines and was practically the pioneer in auto business in Saint John, starting with a small garage in the rear of the Pugsley home in Chipman Hill. Later he moved to Canterbury street, where he conducted a garage business where now stands the new post office.

The industry failed mostly for the reason of the difficulty encountered in bringing in parts from the various and distant points in United States, which industry afterwards greatly developed along the Canadian frontier, mostly in Windsor and Ford in Ontario.

Later the late Mr. Pugsley was successful in interesting the Ford Company in taking over the plant at Glen Falls for assembling purposes and export business. He became interested in real estate, particularly at Glen Falls, where a model town was laid out and a water system installed. His more recent activities were devoted to Improvement and extension of Glen Falls property and still later to a power development which his late father proposed to install on the old Scovil brook on the Golden Grove road, where a dam was constructed and a series of lakes thus created.

Of recent years he had suffered a great deal from ill-health and after brook of the content of the summer and the people have opportunity to make preparations to meet winter conditions.

Quick Action Saves Structures After Quantity of Hay Destroyed

Fire in the new cattle sheds in West Saint John vesterday shortly after mid-day assumed so alarming proportions that a second alarm was rung in and the West Side fire department had a desperate fight for one hour before the flames were subdued and the menacing fire had been quenched.

William Ring, engineer of the government works, rang in the alarm from box 14 at 12.45, when he discovered the fire in the hay in the sheds. Inthe fire in the hay in the sheds. Immediately on his arrival on the scene, District Fire Chief Charles Clark had the second alarm rung in because of the threatening aspect of the blaze and the highly dangerous surroundings. The fire department responded very promptly and No. 7 engine soon had two streams of hose playing on the flames. The government stationary engine was put to good use in pumping more water and in a little more than an hour the fire was extinguished. A considerable quantity of hay was destroyed by fire, smoke and water and a large area of the woodwork of the ceiling,
