A MODEL FARMER. Bill Nye and His Farm Stock. Latitude 44.50, N. Longitude 63.32 W., Spring of 1894.

Once more I have returned to my little old red Venetian farm and am writing to you from the top shelf of same. The place still stands at an angle of 49 degrees and is well laid out. I took a precaution three years ago to lay all my gas pipes, drains, subways, etc., before spreading on the farm proper.

Farming in this State is not properly begun. We have many beautiful sites for farms, good foundations upon which to build farms, but we begin to plant and sow without having first put in our wires and conduits. Then the showers wash our conduits into the river far below, leaving the farm perfectly destitute of all. A farm may thus come too near for things to grow upon.

Racing on Skis. Ski are Norwegian snowshoes—strips of plank, tapered upward at the toes, eight or nine feet long, four and a half inches wide, and in the thickest part an inch thick. Mrs. Tweedie, author of 'A Winter in Norway', was in Christchurch at the time of the annual ski races, and of course, went to see them. It seemed to her as if nearly all the one hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants of the city must have gone out for the same purpose.

THE CHILD OF NAZARETH. How bright it must have been, When it lit the blood Child Who knew no touch of sin.

How glad his mother must have felt As day by day he grew, In strength and beauty by her side, So pure, so sweet, so true.

And often she spoke his name, Her name, and sang his name, And quickly at her call he came, She saw the light of heaven.

I went into the garden to gather blades and there I saw two pretty blades. 'What is it, that you are braiding of blades, babe? If you braid away blades at all, babe, braid broad blades, babe, or braid no blades at all, babe.' You snuff shop snuff, I snuff box snuff.

Biting Her Nails. A case was recently recorded in the Medical Record of New York of a young lady who presented herself complaining of a constant irritation in her throat. Two weeks previously she had been taken with a severe 'sore throat,' which has been treated by a neighbouring physician. Under his care the inflammation quickly subsided, but there still remained a sensation of irritation. Examination revealed a small fleshy-looking object; about the size of a kernel of wheat, adherent to the tissues posterior to the left tonsil, by one end. The other parts of the throat were normal. The little mass could not be detached by a cotton-covered probe, but by the use of forceps it was easily removed, and on examination proved to be a piece of finger nail, which had been covered by a cheesy deposit. A broken piece of the nail was also removed from under the mucous membrane at the same spot by a sharp-pointed probe. The patient then confessed to the habit of biting her finger nails, and, moreover, could remember, that a day or two previous to the onset of her throat trouble, a piece of nail which she had bitten off had become loose in her mouth, but after it had caused a fit of coughing she had forgotten about it until reminded by the discovery of the impacted fragment.
