McKAY STILL MISSING.
No further word has been heard as to the whereabouts of Robert McKay, the detective said yesterday. Mr. McKay has been missing from his home for about two weeks and his disappearance has caused quite a sensation, which the detective department are working on. A wire sent some days ago by Serge Detourant to the police department in Toronto has not been productive of so much as an acknowledgement of its receipt.

Cases Dealt With In Police Court
Yesterday morning in the police court, Roger Hunter appeared to answer to the charge of keeping a dog which bit Mrs. Walter Holden's child. Mr. Hunter explained that the child, who had been playing with the dog and the little girl had been patting him on the head, but had happened to step on the dog's paw, causing him to howl and jump up. When he said this, his teeth struck the child in the face, causing a slight bruise. The length of the dog's fangs demonstrated that he did not bite the child.

The dog was on leash, he said, and was always being petted and played with by children. It was very valuable he said, two of his cousins in Philadelphia having been valued at $25,000 recently, and Miss Armore having paid $10,000 for a similar dog just a short time ago. The dog is an Alsatian shepherd dog, commonly known as a police dog, a breed extensively used by police in some of the larger cities in the States and in Europe on account of its strength and its uncommon degree of intelligence.

Mr. Hunter's explanation was accepted and the case was dismissed when Mr. Hunter promised to be more careful of the way in which he allowed the dog to play with children.

25th Anniversary Fittingly Observed

Miss Emma J. Mitchell, Matron of General Public Hospital, Presented With Address, Cheque and Bouquet.

On May 13, 1922, Miss Emma J. Mitchell celebrated the 25th anniversary of her appointment as matron and superintendent of nurses, and last evening in the reception room of the Nurses' Home the twenty-fifth anniversary of that occasion fittingly observed. Miss Mitchell being made the recipient of an address and cheque from the commissioners of the hospital, a large bouquet of roses and an original poem from the nurses and staff, and congratulations from representatives of the Ladies' Hospital Aid and the St. John County Hospital. In a feeling of appreciation Miss Mitchell gave a review of the changes which have taken place in the hospital during the twenty-five years. At the close of the formal proceedings refreshments were served by a committee of nurses, under the direction of Miss Hamo.

M. E. Agar, president of the board of commissioners, occupied the chair, and in opening said they were there to perform a very pleasant task and one it was not often given them to do, to express in a public way their appreciation of the services of one who, for a quarter of a century, had given faithful service to the hospital, and who they all hoped would be spared to continue that service for many more years. He then called on J. King Kelley, K. C., the senior member of the board of commissioners, to read the formal address to Miss Mitchell. Mr. Kelley said in part:

"Dear Miss Mitchell, you are more to me than a mere official, you are a friend and a confidante. You have been faithful, loyal, industrious, painstaking, sympathetic and intelligent in all your relations to the hospital and its various interests, is admitted. Those who are more intimately acquainted with your life in the General Public Hospital join with me in this expression of appreciation. The reason why the matrons were placed upon you not long after your graduation from this hospital, and you developed in your position as the work developed and extended. In 1897 you were appointed matron of the hospital, which at that time included the dates of superintendent of nurses. In that year 117 patients were admitted to the hospital and 1,714 cases treated in the out-patients' department. The total number of hospital days was 24,348, and the average number of days patients were in hospital was 29.45, and the cost of maintenance of the hospital was $19,836.22.

For the year 1921 the hospital records show that 2,190 patients were admitted to the hospital and 1,714 were treated in the out-patients' department; total hospital days, 46,111; that the average number of hospital days had been reduced to 27.53 per patient, and, in addition, the department of pathology shows treatment of 5,216 cases and X-rays of 629 patients. The total cost of maintenance of the hospital for 1921 was $17,047.00.

In your early days there were but two officials upon whom the routine work of the hospital depended—the superintendent and the matron. The superintendent and the matron was always in the hospital and on duty, and naturally, therefore, your touch with the patients and all departments was very close. While worried no doubt at times your duties became too numerous you were relieved of teaching and the training of nurses; but new conditions in the hospital brought you, in your early days, new, relieved of many former duties, the commissioners admit you are a busy official.

You have, without varying more than a wonderful woman, and we are free to confess your life work in this hospital has not been as fully appreciated as it deserves. The life of an active nurse is not a long one, usually a comparatively short period; the nurse must retire through sheer physical exhaustion—worn out. You have been blessed with good health, a serene temper and agreeable disposition have served you well, and this company here this evening may be to you some compensation.

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Agar on behalf of the Board presented Mrs. Mitchell with a cheque as a small tangible token of their appreciation of her long and faithful service. Miss Mitchell, in reply to the address said she appreciated very much the kind sentiments expressed in it. During her time of service she had only done her duty and the twenty-five years had passed away rapidly, as that duty had always been a pleasure. Of the Board of Commissioners who were acting when she was appointed, only two remained alive, Dr. Thomas Walker and Dr. James Christie. She had entered upon her duties on May 12, 1897. At that time Dr. Ellis was superintendent and there were eleven nurses on the staff. In 1901, she had asked that her duties be lightened by the appointment of a superintendent of nurses and Miss Hewitt had been appointed to that position. When she first took office the laundry work was done by two women, who did the washing by hand; today they had a modern and fully equipped laundry with seven girls and two men employed. At that time they had seven maids, today they had twenty-two.

The nurse of today had a wide field open to them. There was the social service work, the V. O. N., and public health nursing as well as the hospital and private nursing fields. She advised every nurse to become registered and to uphold the dignity of their training school. Since the training school was established there had been 286 graduates and of those about one-half were registered. In closing she thanked the Board of Commissioners and staff for the consideration shown her during her connection with the institution.

Miss Margaret Murdoch, superintendent of nurses then presented her with a large bouquet of red roses and read an original poem which set forth in felicitous terms their opinion of Miss Mitchell.

Radio Association Regular Meeting

Constitution Adopted and Executive Nominated—General Discussion and Valuable Information Given.

A large number of amateur radio telephone enthusiasts, ranging in years from sixteen to sixty, attended the regular meeting of the Radio Association which was held in the Commercial Club, Prince William street, last evening. C. F. Sanford was the chairman of the evening and a constitution which had been drafted by a committee appointed for the purpose, was adopted. The following were nominated an executive: W. A. Nichols, H. H. Wickes, George M. Robertson, A. L. Atkinson, J. B. Harris and Richard Wetmore. Plans were made for future meetings, and the secretary was authorized to inquire into the advisability of bringing an expert to the city to lecture on Wireless Telephony.

Wm. Longmire gave an interesting account of his experience overseas while serving in the Wireless Corps. He told of the different apparatus used and the experiments made, and of "listening in" on Fritz, who he said when sending out news of a victory was careful to send each word twice, so the Allies would have no difficulty in picking up the message.

The "Poz" station was the most important of the Hun, and located near the wireless station at Paris. The Eiffel Tower, the most important of the French, the messages were picked up from both constantly. Mr. Longmire said he heard the first word of peace broadcasted from the Paris station towards the close of war. The message was sent to Austria, but he could not pick up the reply.

Albert Day gave an account of how he constructed a crystal receiver, and it is planned to have another member describe how he built his entire receiving set at the next meeting.

The wireless fans are all wide awake and on the alert to pick up pointers from any other explorer in the new realm of science. The club numbers one hundred and twenty members, of whom six are ladies. One of the young ladies was present last evening, and seemed to have quite as good a working knowledge of the new pastime, as many of the High School boys' experts, who were hurling "meteo waves," "lengths," "aerials," etc. at their seniors, thirsting for an equal knowledge.

Marlborough Lodge House Warming

Lodge Marlborough, S. O. E., who for some time have been crowded for room in their lodge quarters, Odd Fellows' Hall, have secured more commodious quarters in Orange Hall, up stairs, and Thursday evening they had a house warming. Lodge Portland were their guests on this occasion and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

E. A. Belyea, president of the Lodge was in the chair. Addresses were given by L. A. Belyea, president of Lodge Portland; Charles Ledford, A. Webb, E. A. Lawrence, R. I. Cassin and H. Crabbe; songs were sung by F. J. Panter; Fred Evans of Portland Lodge gave several recitations; C. Beaman in your early days, new, relieved of many former duties, the commissioners admit you are a busy official.
