The surveyor general, however, reported that immediately after the sale, being convinced that such combination existed, the sale was, with the consent of the applicant, declared off and the limits had been again advertised.

The action of the surveyor general was approved and in all cases in future, where here is evidence of such arrangements, aps will be taken to prevent the timber nits being sold below their real value. It is understood that the ground of objection taken by the government of New Brunswick is that the effect of the treaty ground be to prevent the exacting of the Brunswick is that the effect of the treaty would be to prevent the exacting of the double succession duty from non-residents United States. The matter was again considered by the provincial executive at the recent meeting and a minute of council was passed in which the view is forcibly presented that it would be unjust to the province to require it to abandon this

Another matter considered by the government was an application from the government in Ontario for a grant of peat bogs within the province for the purpose of making fuel by a new process.
