

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TELEGRAPH, ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, AUGUST 6, 1904.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL

Four hundred bags of mackerel arrived from Harvey Tuesday night by Dominion Express to be forwarded to Boston.

The treasurer of the Home for Incurables acknowledges $25 to the funds of the institution, from David Russell, of Montreal. Mr. Russell has before generously contributed to the funds.

Dr. G. U. Hay, for the Champlain Memorial fund, acknowledges since the closing of the account the receipt of $13.80 from Judge Landy, in addition to subscriptions from the French Canadian.

Henry Brathwaite, the veteran hunter and guide, returned yesterday from a six weeks' cruise to his camp on the headwaters of the Little Southwestern Mountains. He reports big game unusually plentiful this season, having seen over 200 moose during his absence—Frederick Gleason.

George Campbell, of the west side, had a narrow escape from serious injury Monday evening. He went to bed down a station and the animal attendant, seeing him by the arm, George Clark ran to his aid and beat the stallion off, but only after Mr. Campbell's arm was badly lacerated.

On Monday Rev. D. B. Scott, who had been for forty-six years in the Methodist ministry, and is now a retired member of the Nova Scotia conference, passed through the city en route for Salt Lake City, where he will reside. His life has been eventful. He was cabin boy on the Jenny Lind in 1848, and was received into the Methodist ministry ten years later.

A Waterville (Me.) letter says: "The tour of the Kennebec lumber drive has reached Salem and is in good season. The drive this year, 185,000,000 feet, is the largest in the history of lumbering on the Kennebec. All the cut of the past winter, together with those logs which were tied up by low water last year, have reached the main river this year."

Last Tuesday night a strange young man applied for work at Mrs. McArthur's, on Lower Robinson street, Moncton, and stated that he was going to work in Lewis mill. He was taken in, but Wednesday morning when the inmates of the house arose, the stranger was missing and with him two suits of clothes and an overcoat belonging to Mrs. McArthur's son and another boarder.

M. F. Huestis, of Providence (R. I.), president of the Atlantic Grindstone Company and the Bay of Fundy Coal Company, passed through the city yesterday en route for the company's property at Lower Cove (N. S.). Mr. Huestis was accompanied by Walter Davis, Arnold Schire, Edward Jones, H. Jones and D. P. Williams, of Providence; O. Swanson, of Boston; and G. A. Mabbett, of Newport, who are also interested in the properties. The two concerns are to be amalgamated on Jan. 1 next year.

The factory commission had an organization meeting Thursday afternoon in the local government rooms. The meeting was of a private nature, and beyond arranging preliminaries it was understood nothing was done. There were present besides the chairman, Mayor John Dwyer, of Fredericton, the secretary, James G. Stevens, of St. Stephen, Kilgour Shivers, Campbellton; Mrs. Fiske and M. J. Kelly. The commission will begin the taking of evidence Thursday morning when the meetings will be open to the public. It is expected it will be four or five days before the commission finishes their work. It is not settled yet where they will go afterwards.

The city directory for 1904 has just been issued. The publishers are to be congratulated on its neat and workmanlike appearance. The printing was done by The Telegraph Co. and the binding by Barnes & Co. It will be found that considering the short space of time in which it had to be prepared this number is as nearly accurate as it is possible to get such a volume, where perfect accuracy is a thing rather to be aimed at than achieved. All the information usually found in a directory is in this volume. The street directory and list of clubs, societies and civic organizations at the end is most copious and will be found of great value to strangers in our midst. There are in this year's directory 18,340 names. Last year's edition had 17,235 names, an increase for the year of 1,105, which is a very gratifying showing.

DR. J. S. MACDONALD,
2362 St. Catherine St., Montreal, Que.

There has been a slight advance in the price of flour in the west, and the market is very strong.

Inspector Dalton has gone to New Mills, Restigouche county, to inspect the boilers of two boats owned by George Ditch, Inspector Eschelle left last evening for Halifax.

Rev. G. Fullerton, of Point du Bute, has been appointed second master of the Chatham Grammar school. James McElroy has severed his connection with the Chatham schools and accepted a position in Blackville.

The cotton mill at Windsor (N. S.) is soon to close down for a period of five or six weeks, one section being already closed. During the closing period new boilers will be installed, a new shaft for the fly wheel placed, and the machinery generally overhauled.

The contract for the mason work in connection with the new hall of the Portland Y. M. C. A. has been given to R. A. Corbett. The carpentry work which the building of the foundation and walls makes necessary will be done under the supervision of H. J. Pratt.

The late Hon. L. E. Baker, of Yarmouth, bequeathed $8,000 for a public library for the town, on condition that $8,000 more was subscribed. A committee of ladies raised $4,500, and one citizen has offered $2,000 more, leaving only $1,500 to be raised to secure the Baker bequest and the library.

The Peulah Camp meeting at Brown's Falls is still in session with quite a number of city people in attendance. It will continue until the last of this month. Rev. E. A. Allard is now in charge of the camp in place of Rev. J. H. Coy, who has gone to Riverside to attend the meeting there.

At the recent meeting of the Dominion Educational Association in Winnipeg the following maritime province people were appointed directors for the ensuing year: Superintendent H. S. Bridges, St. John (N. B.); Principal E. J. Lay, Amherst (N. S.); Mr. J. Robertson, B. A., Charlottetown, and Supervisor A. McKay, Halifax. Dr. J. R. Inch is an honorary president of the association.

The dominion government has voted $23,000 for the equipment of a detention hospital in Lunenburg and the care and detention of immigrants. It is expected that Dr. Bryce, of the interior department, will visit here shortly to confer with the local authorities with reference to the location of this building. It has been suggested that the City Hall, Charlton, would be suitable for the purpose.

The preliminary hearing in the case of John Campbell, accused of indecent assault on Miss Maxwell, daughter of George Maxwell, in the parish of Lancaster, was held before Justice Mason in Fairville Thursday afternoon, County Secretary Vincent presiding. The prisoner was sent up for trial at the next term of the county court, to be held the fourth Tuesday in August.

A letter from Judge Forbes to Judge Carlson, dated at Inverness, Scotland, on July 24th, states that the writer is in excellent health, and thoroughly enjoying his trip. He intends to sail for home on August 27th, unless he should decide to go to Italy, in which case he would not reach this side before the 17th of October. Mr. and Mrs. John Falls and family, of West Somerville (Mass.), are visiting friends in this city (their former home).

A number of St. John people will leave this week for Riverside (Me.), to attend the camp meeting to be held there under the auspices of the Reformed Baptists. The meeting, which will open on Friday next and continue until Monday, the 13th, will have as its chief speaker Rev. A. M. Smith, of Seymour, Indiana. Mr. Smith will be assisted by a number of New Brunswick and Maine ministers. Rev. Miles S. Trafton, of the city, will have charge of the arrangements for the different services at the meeting. The music will be conducted by a band of singers, while John F. Bullock will aid them at the organ.

TALKED UNION AT DEANERY MEETING

Church of England Clergymen Also Warmly Congratulated Rev. L. A. Hoyt on His Birthday.

The quarterly meeting of the clergymen of the St. John deanery was held Tuesday in Simonds parish at the beautiful Church of the Assumption, Rev. Head. There were present besides Rev. L. A. Hoyt, rector of the parish, Rev. Canon Richardson, Rev. John de Soyres, Rev. A. D. Dewey, Rev. A. G. H. Dicker, Rev. W. O. Raymond, Rev. V. Y. Dicker, Rev. G. P. Scoville, Rev. W. L. McKel and Rev. Joseph Smith.

After communion service in the beautiful little church, Rev. Mr. Hoyt, officiating, the clergymen dove into the home of Mr. Hoyt, where they were entertained at luncheon by that gentleman and his estimable wife.

Yesterday was Mr. Hoyt's 65th birthday, hearty congratulations and good wishes were extended to him by all present. Mr. Hoyt is one of the most highly valued clergymen in the province. He has driven more miles over the country roads in all sorts of weather, built more churches and founded more new mission fields than any of his brethren.

Rural Dean Rev. W. O. Raymond reported that Mrs. Medley, of Fredericton, had made a valuable donation of books to the deanery library, being part of the late Bishop Medley's library, and it was unanimously resolved that the thanks of the deanery be tendered Mrs. Medley for the valuable gift.

An informal discussion took place on Christian union, the result of the presentation of the report of the committee appointed to wait on the Presbyterian General Assembly last June. No resolution was adopted, but it seemed to be the general opinion of the members that Christian union will become a fact as a consequence of the tendency of the age towards unification in all things.

BEATS THE MAD MULLAN,

A watchful reader a few days ago let me have a tale sent from St. Petersburg to the "News of the World" about a Russian press censor who went mad, and ran about unclad, but with big black ink patches on his chest and legs, patches similar to those which the unfortunate gentleman was in the habit of dabbing on foreign newspapers. This tale was offered (and accepted by me) as evidence that the prowess of our newspaper men is equal to that of the emancipated gentlemen of the West.

It seems to me that the authorities on that let me have another tale from the same quarter in support of the same theory. This second marvel discovered by the indefatigable gentleman in St. Petersburg also deals with what is called mental derangement. The case, dated St. Petersburg, July 13, is reported in some papers where a talented young zemstvo doctor named Kovrov went mad owing to his continual anxiety about the war. His madness took the following curious form: "He was seen early one morning running along the street on all fours, with nothing on except a military saddle. When stopped by a policeman he whined round and looked up with his feet, neighing like a horse. He declared at the police station that he was General Kutuzov's charger. Food had to be forced down his throat, as he demanded hay and oats."

It seems to me that the authorities missed a great opportunity in not giving him brains. This St. Petersburg correspondent does "get 'em," and I have no desire to compete with him. At the same time, I remember having heard about a sail case of mental derangement in this country at the time of the South African war. A gentleman was observed to be on all fours, leaning wearily against a wall. Now and then he tried to knock a fly off his ear with one of his feet, and he was treated in a staggering manner to a sausage-making establishment, and was seized just when about to tumble into a meat-chopper. At the police station he explained that he was one of Brodick's remounts, and therefore only raw material for sausages.—London Leader.

A REMARKABLE MAN

He Used One Pen 14 Years, One Knife 18 Years, and One Pencil 5 Years.

The constant use of a pen point for fourteen years, a penknife eighteen years, and a keyring nineteen years to the ordinary persons sounds incredible, but such is the case with Cud Buba, a clerk in the general commission of the St. John's (Ky.). Mr. Buba, who was in the drug business at New Hope for more than ten years, is now using exactly the same pen, keyring, second hand, while in the drug business, and since he has been at work for Uncle Sam he has continued to use it, preferring it to any other. During that time he has worn out two penholders, but the point is still in the prime of condition, kept so by the care bestowed upon it by its owner.

A fellow clerk was discussing the matter of care of pens yesterday, when Mr. Buba remarked that any pen, or article of any kind, would last for years if given the proper care. To prove his claim he drew from his pocket a knife which he had carried eighteen years. The blades gave evidence of numerous whetings, but no gap or break could be seen. The knife, Mr. Buba said, had done a full share of work since he had owned it, and is good for many years yet.

After exhibiting the knife Mr. Buba drew from his pocket a keyring bearing the date of 1885. It is a souvenir of the Louisville Exposition, was purchased as such by Mr. Buba during the postal service. Mr. Buba has a special pocket for all these articles, and they may always be found there. He says he never buys it but that he watches it closely, and sees to it that it does not get away from him. He never leaves the pencil, keyring or knife lying on his desk, but replaces them in their respective pockets when not in use, and by such inviolate system and care he always has them about him.

THE FREIGHT ON PULP.

Chatham Will Be Put on a Par With St. John as to Rates With St. John.

The pulp freight delegates to Ottawa, with the exception of Mr. Cronin, returned to Chatham on Friday, says the Chatham World. They had an interview with Mr. Emmerson, minister of railways, on Wednesday, and the minister, while referring the matter to Mr. Tiffin, traffic manager of the Intercolonial, intimated that the grievance would be removed by placing Chatham on a par with St. John in the matter of pulp freight.

Mr. Keyes, the Massachusetts man who is negotiating for the mill, was present at the interview, and said he intended to buy the property if the freight rates were made right. All the requirements of the capitalists who have expressed an intention of buying have been satisfied, the town having granted exemption from taxes and the government having practically promised to give the freight rates asked for, and now it is up to the Massachusetts men, who are understood to be satisfied with the price asked, to make the purchase and operate the works.

Four Cases of Smallpox.

A few days ago it was announced, says the Yarmouth Herald, that the town of Yarmouth, formerly of the Hants Journal, but now of the Yarmouth News mechanical staff) was ill at Yarmouth, where he was spending Dominion Day at Hugh Aker's, his friend-in-law, and where his three children are making their home since the death of their mother. The sickness proved to be smallpox. The inmates of the home were at once vaccinated, and the house quarantined, but three of the children are now stricken with the disease. Dr. Creelman, of Maitland, health officer for East Hants, was a day or two ago summoned in consequence of the new complications. The four cases so far reported are only slight ones.

AT TICONDEROGA.

Story of Bloody Battle Where English Met Defeat.

The greatest defeat ever inflicted on the English by the French was at Ticonderoga. Writing in the August Canadian Magazine, A. G. Bradley thus finishes his description—

It was within a day of being the third anniversary of Braddock's defeat, and, as on that fatal field, the full heat of the summer sun shined down on the smoke-charged clearing, which even the warm lake breezes could not reach. It was 5 o'clock, and nearly four hours of the insensate work had not dimmed the spirit of these gallant men. For it was at this moment that the most furious onslaught of the whole day was made upon the French right. Then, and only for a few brief minutes, was Montcalm's position in danger, and he had to hurry in person with a strong support to a group of Highlanders, with supporters, and these yet to be gathered, their way up and over the parapet. But the gallant effort was fruitless. It was the last of the succession of furious attacks which the French made, and, marvelling in his heart at the madness which inspired them, and welling over with gratitude at his good fortune. One or two more half-hearted and despairing attempts were made upon the deadly lines, when the general, recognizing at 6 o'clock what he should have seen at once, gave the order to retire.

In this and some desultory firing of colonials and rangers, from the bordering forest, the shattered British regiments fell back to the saw mill, whither the wounded had been previously conveyed in batons, and these yet to be gathered from the battlefield were subsequently taken. The French had done enough. They were exhausted with the great strain of the day, and they were outnumbered, made no attempt to molest the retreat, and the British army spent the night in peace at the saw mill.

It now remained but to count the cost, and this was frightful. Very nearly 2,000 men had fallen in a short quarter of a summer day, and the greater part of these were the 6,000 regulars, who had borne the brunt of the day's fight. Three hundred provincials only figure in the returns; but no half-disciplined militia, without bayonets, however brave, could have been successful in such a desperate struggle. For sheer intrepidity, however, the "Black Watch" must bear off the palm on a day as memorable for individual heroism as for the loss of a battle. "Every one of those soldiers," says a contemporary writer, who knew them intimately, "considered himself as raised to a high position of glory and honour, and went into action over 1,000 strong, and came out 400. The French loss was more than 400, though de Bourlamaque was sanguine, and de Bougainville slightly wounded."

Such was Ticonderoga, the last remembered though one of the bloodiest, most desperate and most dramatic battles of our history, at once a glory and a shame. The school boy has never heard of it; the journalist, who in their stirring times is called upon to summarize the triumphs and disasters of bygone days, has no room in like plight. Thackeray's Virginia is probably responsible for much of the recollection that survives of the Monongahela, though the story of the battle is told in the history of the war, and the battle of Ticonderoga. Cooper was not so fortunate in fastening upon the public mind that heroic contest on Lake Champlain, which was, perhaps, the most humiliating reverse ever suffered at the hands of the French, and a fight that, save for Burgoyne's surrender, far overshadowed any of the numerous conflicts fought in that remarkable year.

THE CORPORATION CUP

Will Be the Chief Prize at Saturday Afternoon's Rifle Match.

On Saturday afternoon the St. John County Rifle Association will hold a competition, in which the historic Corporation Cup will be the principal prize. This cup was presented to the association over 30 years ago for annual competition, anyone winning it twice in succession to become the owner. No one has as yet succeeded in becoming the owner, and the cup is now completely covered by the names of the successive winners.

In addition to the trophy there will be P. R. A. silver medals and twenty-two cash prizes. Any resident of the county of St. John can become a member and compete in this match. Shooting will begin at 2 o'clock. Ranges 200, 300 and 600 yards.

Judges at Exhibition.

The following judges will, at the recommendation of the dominion live stock commissioner, be secured for the coming St. John exhibition—

Heavy horses—J. N. Gunderhouse, Highgate, and the late Mr. J. H. Galt, (Ont.).

Beef cattle—Duncan Anderson, Orillia (Ont.).

Dairy cattle—W. F. Stephens, Trout River (P. Q.).

Sheep and swine—Andrew Elliot, Galt (Ont.).

Fruit—Geo. H. Vroom, Middleton (N. S.).

The judge for the light horse classes has not yet been decided upon. Dr. G. M. Twitcheell, Augusta (Me.), is being arranged with to act as judge of poultry. For G. Spencer yesterday submitted to the exhibition executive a detailed description of the amusement features secured by him. This met with unqualified approval.

Damage by Lightning.

During a thunder storm Tuesday morning the Anglican church at Ferguson's Cove (N. S.) was struck by lightning. The tower was practically demolished, and the lightning rod along the roof of the church, and then down through the interior, coming in connection with a heavy wire covering on the organ, which was set on fire, but was extinguished before any further damage was done.

A terrific electrical storm, accompanied by heavy rain passed over Kentville and vicinity between six and seven o'clock Tuesday morning. At Waterville lightning struck the Reid residence, now occupied by Fred Kinsman, and tore away the chimney and part of the roof. It also struck a mirror on the wall and knocked it through the window. The bolt passed between Mr. and Mrs. Kinsman, who were standing near a window, but did not touch them.

English Syndicate Invests.

The transfer of the Cape Breton Coal and Railway Company to Colquhoun's Lake to an English syndicate headed by Messrs. Mayhew and Leech has just been consummated, and the money has already been paid to the original owners, who it is understood are mostly local men and will reap a handsome reward from the sale. The new company will proceed at once with the work of developing the property. Louisbourg is to be the shipping port and they are to have running powers over the Sydney & Louisbourg railway, with a branch line connecting the colliery and another with their pier.

A Stabbing Affray.

A stabbing affray took place in Charlottetown, Tuesday evening shortly after 6 o'clock. The victim was Harry C. Connolly and he was taken to the City Hospital about 7 o'clock suffering from a cut across the front of the stomach, inflicted by a knife.

It was difficult to obtain particulars of the stabbing as the principals were in a partly intoxicated condition but it is alleged that the fight was fought by one James Murphy, a saloon on Great George street. The quarrel which preceded the death was of short duration, but Connolly was a narrow escape, for a slightly deeper cut might have been fatal.

ADVANCE IN PRICE.

Flour Follows Wheat, and Sugar Has Also Gone Up a Notch.

The depressing reports of this year's wheat crop in the west has had its natural effect on the Chicago market in a sharp advance in price. Yesterday the market closed at 97½ and in some quarters the impression seems to prevail that no cheaper wheat may be looked for this fall. In sympathy with the price of wheat, Ontario millers have advanced their prices ten to fifteen cents on all grades of their output. Ogilvie's brands have also recently advanced 20 cents and although the Lake of the Woods Company have not yet fallen in line, it is expected they will soon do so.

The wholesale prices now quoted are on Quattro patents, $5.50 to $5.40; Ogilvie's, $5.75; Manitoba, $5.50 to $5.75. It may be worthy of remark in this connection that the highest, soft, flour, wheated last spring was $5 a barrel, in February, and in April it dropped to the price at which it is now held, $5.75.

Owing to a scarcity of raw sugar in New York, which may be due to the fact that the good tide the new crop of beet sugar comes in October, there was an advance of 10 cents per hundred there recently. In sympathy with this the local market advanced a rise of five cents on all grades. It may be noted that future beet sugar is now quoted higher than spot beet and a further rise soon may be looked for.

IN SIGHT OF HIS HELPLESS FRIEND, JAMES E. FRASER WENT DOWN TO DEATH

A Tragedy at Ashburn Lake Thursday—Well Known and Popular Citizen Rowed Out on the Lake, Said Farewell, and Went Overboard—Body Was Recovered and Brought to the City.

Seldom has a local death aroused more widespread commiseration than the tragic occurrence about noon Thursday at Ashburn Lake, by which James E. Fraser perished.

The body was recovered about 6.30 o'clock Thursday evening and conveyed to T. Fred. Powers' undertaking rooms, where it was viewed by Coroner W. F. Roberts, who will decide this morning as to whether an inquest is necessary.

That it was Mr. Fraser's deliberate intention to drown himself is now practically beyond doubt. It is scarcely possible that he died as the result of an accident, for in view of what has been learned from what may be considered a reliable source, Mr. Fraser made careful preparations to ensure his certain destruction.

It had been told this paper that when the body was dragged to the surface it was seen that a large rock was tied to the neck by means of a rope. When different members of the grapping party were seen in regard to the report, no one denied or admitted its truth. All were feeling keenly the deplorable death of one so heartily esteemed in life, and were loath to enter into details of the tragedy. Pending the inquest they did not feel prepared to be explicit.

Mr. Fraser, who was about forty years of age, and the son of Alexander Fraser, in the employ of the I. C. R., Moncton, was one of the most favorably known dry goods men in the city. He was unmarried, and lived with his mother and sisters at 207 City road. Since boyhood he has been identified with different city dry goods establishments, particularly those of Macanby Bros. & Co., and Manchester, Robertson, Allison, Ltd.

About half a year ago, through ill health, he was compelled to relinquish his position and for the past few months was taking treatment at a Montreal sanatorium. Last Tuesday he returned home, apparently much improved.

He was a member of the Ashburn Lake Fishing Club, and the lake had long been to him a most pleasant resort. He was exceptionally familiar with the locality. The lake (formerly known as Peter's Lake), is about three miles from the city, and, roughly reckoning, is in the rear of Rockwood Park. It is an oblong shaped and hardly the extent of twice the size of King square. The club had built a commodious boat house.

About 11 o'clock Thursday Mr. Fraser, in company with Charles Nevins, of Haymarket square, left the city for the purpose of spending a few days at the lake. It was the former's special wish. Prior to the trip he seemed in excellent spirits, and on the way out bought fruit and meat. Mr. McLean, the Marsh road florist, accompanied them on the way to the lake.

On arrival, Mr. Fraser lost little time in procuring a pair of oars for a boat drawn up to the club house wharf, and, shortly off, said he would go for a short row before dinner.

Mr. Nevins was opposed to his departure, and urged him to remain on shore and assist in preparing the meal. Mr. Fraser, though, would not listen to the other's remonstrance.

Good naturedly, he insisted on going out and as he pulled away said he'd be absent but for a very short time. There was nothing about his conduct to excite any grave suspicions. He rowed leisurely and strongly, but yet Mr. Nevins was uneasy, and again urged for him to return.

PLAISTED AND THE CASH.
