GRIP VANISHES

So Do Deadly Colde

Headaches, backaches, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, kidney, liver and all kindred troubles, if nature's miraculous, disease-conquering, life-restoring St. Leon be used. All known mixtures in the world pale in insignificance to this creation's mystery. Safe as milk, and contains the most powerful poison absorbents known to science to purify blood and flesh; and also every element to build up frail, weakly, despairing sufferers to the highest pinnacle of perfect strength and joy.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT.

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT is at once the strength and weakness of the Liberal party. He is the best debater at present in Parliament, possessing ample powers of expression for the ample information with which his mind is stored. He is a ripe scholar, and a man of high personal character. But he is not and never has been a popular man. His soul (which may perhaps be genial if it could be got at) is enclosed in a triple steel of aristocratic reserve, and he ignores altogether the little things in which men like Laurier manifest their kindness, and through which they win the love of those with whom they come in contact. Moreover, Sir Richard is a good hater, and when the circumstances seem to justify it, (which is frequently,) he does not hesitate to scarify his opponents with the bitter invectives of which he is a consummate master. Everybody admires the gifts of Sir Richard, but very few like the Knight himself. As for the Tories, it is not too much to say they hate him most cordially; but the rank and file of the Liberal party also regard him with feelings far from affection. It is not uncommon, indeed, to hear good Grits declare that they despair of ever getting into office so long as Sir Richard holds a leading position in the party
