MRS. RICHMOND has sketched a delightful little vignette of an episode which is being multiplied a thousand times to-day in homes where the man-child has been called for the great service. It is a story for mothers and sons who may have to meet just such a situation as Mrs. Richmond has idealized in a way well calculated to inspire courage and a triumphant patriotism. It tells of a mother whose boy came home from college to say good-bye before he went to war and of how she blessed her young knight with a kiss and a smile at the parting.

NORTHERN DIAMONDS. Frank Lillie Pollock. Thomas Allen, $1.25 net.

M.R. POLLOCK has caught the trick of spinning yarns for boys and in "Northern Diamonds" he has compounded all the elements that appeal to a wholesome minded lad ambitious for adventure. The tale tells of three Toronto boys who make a winter trip to the north woods in search for a prospector's cache and a missing geologist. They pile into adventures way up to their necks, and have a strenuous time wriggling out of difficulties and "thrilling" situations. The element of suspense is well sustained, and the spirit of adventure is supreme throughout the narrative. At times the plot strains a little on the probabilities, but it is all done to good purpose and the total result is a book which any lively youngster will read with a stirring zest, and which, incidentally, will teach him much about the ways of the woodsmen and trappers of the north country.

THE MANNEQUIN. By Julie M. Lippmann. Wm. Briggs, $1.25.

BORED pallid by her daily round of unalloyed pleasure, Elizabeth Tierman happens into an adventure that promises decided relief from the usual. Her days on the mysterious yacht which has kidnapped her make a lively little story, which is told in a very readable way. Although the misunderstandings which occur are quite obviously exaggerated, one's interest is kept up until all are explained in the conventional happy ending.

LONG LIVE THE KING. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. Thos. Allen, $1.50.

MRS. RINEHART'S latest story is only a further proof of that author's versatility, and will not in any degree disappoint her host of admirers. The topic shows a new departure for her, being an account of intrigue in a European court. Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto is a very human and lovable small boy, who is in danger of losing his throne through the power of the Socialists. How it is saved to him, and how he comes to love Abraham Lincoln and his ideas of government, is shown in an absorbing story.

MY UNKNOWN CHUM. By "Agnecheek," with a Foreword by Henry Garrity. S. B. Gundy, $1.50.

This book, which consists of a number of sketches on foreign travel and of miscellaneous essays is instructive as well as delightfully entertaining.

The unknown author was both a scholar and a traveller and writes in a delightful style of his wanderings. His outlook on life is exceptionally cheerful and wholesome, as we discover during our perusal of all his articles, but especially in his "Philosophy of Life."
