

of those attributes of the seafaring gentlemen known as sailors, as I have no doubt you have a girl in every port; Oh yes, far be it from me to say you would ever neglect the fem-inine sex, but I really do think from what I read of the Walsh inquisition that you must have been too busy this time to receive or write letters to any of them.

My dear Mr. King:-
So many times have I thought of you, and of the really congenial chats we had, and I would have shown my appreciation of your cards from Chicago, had I not felt that were absolutely impractical with business, and had no time for the "girls" you left behind you!!
I do give you credit how-ever for possessing some
